FIGHT FINN LOAN IN SENATE

LONG AND JONES ARE LEADING IN LOUISIANA VOTE

Run-Off Primary Is Believed Likely.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 16 (AP).—Unofficial and incomplete returns of today's Democratic gubernatorial primary indicated the Louisiana political regime was facing its most serious test since Huey P. Long started his dictatorship in 1928.

Gov. Earl K. Long, brother of Huey and standard bearer for the administration, was building up a commanding lead in New Orleans, his stronghold, but Sam Jones, Lake Charles attorney, topping the four "reform" candidates, was leading Long in slow returns from the country parishes [counties]. Three-fourths of the voters live outside New Orleans.

It appeared probable that no candidate would show a majority, and consequently that a second primary would be necessary Feb. 20. The Long dynasty never before in its 12 year old history has found it necessary to go into a runoff, either during Huey's lifetime or after he was shot and killed in September, 1935.

The Democratic nomination in Louisiana is tantamount to election.

Noe Running Third.

State Senator James A. Noe of Monroe, as bitter foe of Earl K. Long as he was a good friend of Huey, was running third in the early returns, but reports had not started coming in from the "strong" sections of James H. Morrison, Hammond attorney. Vincent Moseley, Opelousas attorney, was a poor fifth.

Returns at 1 a. m. from 373 of the state's 1,703 precincts, of which 261 precincts were from New Orleans, gave Long 66,804, Jones 37,855, Noe 27,764, Morrison 7,514, and Moseley 1,164. In 138 of 1,442 precincts in the country parishes Jones led Long by 6,613 to 5,519.

Long, receiving returns in the executive mansion in Baton Rouge said, "It looks like a runaway for my ticket." Jones said, "Based upon the present returns, I am confident I will be elected next governor of Louisiana." Noe said he felt "perfectly satisfied with results so far."

Day of Violence.

Violence, arrests, and reports of voting irregularities brought mounting tension to the primary.

Earl Long fought to retain his seat and to maintain in power the indictment riddled organization built by his slain brother.

The four "reform" candidates thru a rough and tumble campaign pledged an end to "dictatorship, graft, and corruption," and centered their attacks on the many scandals unearthed by federal agents since Richard W. Leche, now indicted, resigned the governorship last June and Lieut. Gov. Long stepped in.

Long Denies Participating.

Long denied all knowledge of or part in the proved or alleged graft and corruption which touched many former aids of "the Kingfish." He promised reforms of his own, sought to tie the "big business" tag to his opponents, and, above all, appealed to the state's 600,000 electors to preserve the Huey Long kind of rule.

Noe was the central figure in three of the most spectacular altercations that marked New Orleans voting. Noe, who was as friendly to Huey P. Long as he is bitter against Earl K. Long, knocked down one man who swung on him and shortly afterward got himself arrested in another disturbance. Later he was involved in a free-for-all fight.

One Punch Knockdown.

Noe's aids took a knife from the man he felled with one punch. His arrest came when he photographed an alleged election irregularity—a balcony above polling booths that gave watchers sight of how voters marked their ballots.

Noe's publicity man and photographer were jailed for an hour for "disturbing the peace" in this case, then paroled. Noe himself was not charged. Later police said they had orders to jail all news photographers taking pictures around the election polls.

A photographer taking poll pictures for Jones was knocked down by a policeman, while another man hit him. The photographer's jaw was broken and his camera smashed.

Scores of irregularities were charged. These ranged from electioneering by 1,500 special policemen sworn in to maintain order to attempts to spoil marked ballots by throwing an ink bottle into the box.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

2 U. of Chicago Bandits Seized After Splurge

Two young robbers held at the detective bureau explained last night how they [and a confederate who has evaded arrest] expended nearly all of the $4,200 they got Jan. 9 in a holdup of the University of Chicago bursar's office at 5758 Ellis avenue. An airplane was one of their purchases.

Earl Underwood [top] and Henry Carmen.

One of the pair, Earl Underwood, 23 years old, said he had been involved in 30 other robberies in the last six months. The other, Henry Carmen, 25, admitted a part in most of these crimes. The third member of the band, they said, was Lester Underwood, 26, brother of Earl.

$400 of Loot Left.

Only about $400 in cash was found in the possession of the men in custody. Earl Underwood had $385 of that. He said, and the police verified this, that he had bought the airplane for $700 and an automobile for $485. Both were recovered. He had kept, as leader of the band, $1,800 of the loot for his share. The others received about $1,200 each.

"I lent a friend of mine $1,000 because he said he wanted to start a filling station," asserted Carmen. "He was a fine friend. He skipped with my money."

Earl said he didn't know exactly how Lester, who has a police record in New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, and New Orleans, spent his $1,200.

"But," he added, "he was broke inside of a week and borrowed $15 from me Sunday. I heard that he got rid of his money buying drinks for the house in a dozen taverns."

Lester Underwood is alleged to have attempted a robbery in the United Small Loan corporation at 6253 Woodland avenue. Policeman William Armstrong fired at him and he fled, possibly wounded. A car he left at the curb was traced to him.

Names His Accomplices.

Early yesterday Detective Con Czernikowski and his squad, looking for Lester, found Earl in a flat at 6238 Blackstone avenue. He confessed, rather boastfully, and named his accomplices. Carmen was seized in his home at 5131 Winthrop avenue. Both had pistols.

Earl said that a red haired young woman had gone with him on several of his robberies. She is being sought. The airplane was found in a repair hangar at 87th street and Harlem avenue and Earl's car near the Blackstone avenue address.

The Underwoods, whose native state is Alabama, and Carmen met while they were all working as laborers in freight sheds of the Illinois Central railroad. Carmen came here from Mayfield, Ky.

BEN FRANKLIN, BORN 234 YEARS AGO, HAS MESSAGE FOR TODAY

Today is the 234th anniversary of the birthday of Benjamin Franklin, Pennsylvania's most noted sage and statesman. In 1757 Franklin, a prolific writer, published "Poor Richard's Almanac," a popular conglomeration of facts, fancy, advice, and prophecy. It included many of Franklin's homely maxims, which today form a part of our daily thought, such as:

A man may, if he knows not how to save as he gets, keep his nose to the grindstone.

God helps them that help themselves.

Early to bed and early to rise,
Makes a man healthy, wealthy, and wise.

Never leave that till tomorrow which you can do today.

Little strokes fell great oaks.

It is hard for an empty sack to stand upright.

Vessels large may venture more,
But little boats should keep near shore.

Two other thoughts of Franklin have even more pertinence today than when they were first uttered. In 1759 he said: "They that can give up essential liberty to obtain a little temporary safety deserve neither liberty nor safety." And in 1773, three years before the American revolution, he wrote: "There never was a good war or a bad peace."

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP).—The appointment of Sir Noel Hughes Havelock Charles as minister to Rome was announced tonight.

Sir Percy Loraine, the present ambassador to Italy, presented his credentials last May.

Coal Shortage Makes Berlin Close Schools

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—Altho the cold wave has abated slightly, the shortage of coal continued to be a serious problem in Berlin today. The capital's technical high school was closed because of the lack of coal. A number of schools which have used up their coal reserves sent pupils home for an indefinite period. The children were instructed to report twice a week to learn if enough coal had been accumulated to heat the classrooms.

The shortage of coal for heating water in apartment buildings is so acute that the authorities have ruled that hot water can be furnished twice a week at the utmost.

Shaving Becomes Problem.

The chief topic of conversation among men was how to shave with their tiny rationed amounts of shaving soap and the lack of hot water. Housewives bemoaned their washday difficulties in view of the shortage of soap, soda, and hot water.

Churches which have used up their coal supplies have been warned that they cannot obtain more fuel. The Hitler Youth organization, in an effort to keep "youth homes" warm and alluring for the young members, has instructed children to bring fuel from home for their Hitler Youth evenings. Churches for several years have been complaining that the Hitler Youth organization has been trying to draw children away from Sunday school and other religious observances.

Fear Loss of Coal.

All industrial companies and households which have a supply of more than two tons of coal must report the amount they have on hand. They expressed a fear that they may be compelled to relinquish part of their fuel.

Many houses in northern Germany still have huge old fashioned porcelain stoves. Householders have been advised that these stoves use too much coal. They were told that by next fall at the latest the stoves must be replaced by smaller modern ones that can be heated with all varieties of coal and use less fuel than the old models.

FINNS BOMBED FIFTH DAY; FACE 51 DEGREE COLD

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Jan. 16 (AP).—Russian warplanes for the fifth successive day struck at Finland today as 51 degree below zero, Fahrenheit, cold brought new suffering to civilians in bomb torn towns. The Finns reported dispersing two soviet companies in fighting near Salla, above the arctic circle.

The worst cold wave in 25 years caused intense suffering, particularly in smaller villages where bombs demolished and burned homes, leaving inhabitants without shelter.

Village Blown to Pieces.

Soviet bombing planes were reported to have blown to pieces most of the small village of Tammisaari [Ekenas], on the southwestern tip of Finland, yesterday. More than half of the 700 homes were said to have been destroyed.

Hango [Hanko], southern port some 75 miles southwest of Helsingfors, was raided twice today, the planes dropping 19 bombs. Damage and casualties were not determined.

The Finnish military communique reported that a Russian attack at Taipale on the Karelian isthmus was "repelled with heavy losses" and added: "On the eastern frontier, in the direction of Salla, our troops dispersed a couple of enemy companies."

Brothers on Opposite Sides.

A dispatch from the Salla front told how brother was fighting brother in Finnish Lapland. Salla was one of the most communistic areas in Finland six or seven years ago and many communist sympathizers who jumped across the border into Russia are returning with Russian troops.

An officer reported that one of his men discovered his brother, who had fled to Russia seven years ago, among a group of soviet prisoners.

"Brother, look what you have done," the officer quoted the Finnish soldier as saying.

Then, the officer said, the Finnish soldier drew a gun and shot his brother.

The Finnish authorities said that between 70 and 80 Red army warplanes took part in yesterday's raids on a half dozen Finnish cities outside the war zone.

Lose Lives in Shelter.

The communique said no lives were lost, but private sources asserted the loss of life had been heavy. A traveler from Turku [Abo] said a bomb had dropped on an air raid shelter and killed more than half of the 30 persons in it.

Three persons were reported killed by bombs and four wounded at Vilpuri [Viborg], ancient Finnish city in the Karelian isthmus war zone.

The intense cold made fire fighting almost impossible in smaller villages after bombing raids because hose lines froze quickly.

The Finns reported their fighting planes and antiaircraft batteries brought down four enemy machines during the day.

Russian Communique.

MOSCOW, Jan. 17, Wednesday (AP).—The Moscow communique on Russian military activities on the Finnish front, as reported by Tass, the Soviet official news agency, follows:

"Jan. 16—Activities of scouts in the Murmansk, Ukhta and Repola directions [sectors]. Clashes of infantry units continued in the Petrozavodsk direction. [These four sectors are on Finland's eastern frontier.]

"In the Karelian isthmus, there was slight artillery fire. The enemy's attempts to launch reconnoitering operations over a wide front were repulsed by our reconnoitering units. The enemy suffered great losses.

"Our air force made reconnaissance flights and at some places bombed railway junctions and military objectives."

Finns Mow Down Attackers.

WITH THE FINNISH ARMY IN LAPLAND, Jan. 16 (AP).—Four hundred Russian soldiers, urged on by fiery pep talks from their communist commissars, attempted vainly to smash an opening thru Finnish lines in the Salla sector today and left

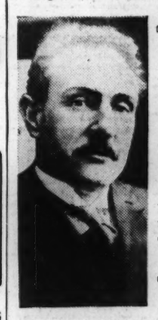
Vote to Oust French Reds in Parliament

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 16.—France's chamber of deputies today voted a government bill to oust communists from parliament and bar members of the party from holding office in France.



Camille Chautemps.

The vote on the measure was 521 to 2. It now goes to the senate, which is expected to pass it on Thursday.

Passage by the chamber followed a stormy five hour session in which many deputies attacked the government for failure to break relations with Russia. Charges were made that the communist embassy in Paris is a hotbed of treason and espionage.

Chautemps Opposes Break.

Camille Chautemps, minister of refugees and speaking for the government, replied to the deputies:

"The chamber makes a serious mistake if it believes that the government is dominated by Russia or that it tried to minimize the responsibilities of Russia, but a rupture of relations with the soviets would entail a complex situation."

He added that France has not forgotten Russia's "traiterous attack" in the rear upon Poland."

Disillusioned by Stalin.

In the speeches against Russia, even among the communists, the theme seemed to be progressive disillusionment by the Russian dictator, Josef Stalin.

Communist Deputy Dewez, now a soldier, told such a dramatic story of his original faith and his disillusionment that the chamber gave him the greatest applause of all the speakers. The bitterest enemy that the communists had in the chamber, the Socialists, won a fight to make Oct. 26, the date Dewez repudiated the Reds, the deadline on communism. All deputies who disavowed the party by that date will not be expelled.

Condemns War on Finns.

A sentence with which Dewez won the greatest applause was this:

"You can reject me if you wish, but today I declare publicly before this tribune how odious is the Russian aggression against Finland after Premier Vyacheslav Molotov himself had acclaimed the principle of the self-determination of peoples."

Jean-Louis Tixier-Vignacour, who introduced the bill, said the communists should be ousted as traitors.

Even after the senate passes the bill, 14 former communists will continue to hold seats in the chamber, having disavowed the communist party by Oct. 26. Seventy-four communists were elected in 1936, one has retired, and 59 will be expelled by the bill.

Capt. Robert Dawson, the pilot, said the ship reached a speed of 300 miles an hour and averaged 260.8 miles an hour.

DENOUNCED AS UNNEUTRAL AND PERIL TO PEACE

Garner Puts Weight Against Measure.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—President Roosevelt's proposal for additional financial assistance to Finland, submitted to congress today in identical letters to Vice President John N. Garner and Speaker William B. Bankhead, produced an unexpected storm of opposition.

In the senate debate which followed the reading of the President's letter to Garner, the proposed Finnish loan was denounced as an unneutral act, as much so as the dispatch of a battleship, and a move that would become a precedent for further involvement in the wars of Europe.

The indirect method proposed by Roosevelt for the extension of credit to Finland was assailed as a subterfuge, a "miserable program of whipping the devil around the stump," in direct violation of the spirit and intent of the administration's neutrality act of 1939.

Foreign Policy Under Fire.

The senate debate made it apparent that the Finnish loan question will raise the broader issues of the whole foreign policy of the Roosevelt administration. Before it had been concluded, Senator John A. Danaher [R., Conn.] and Senator Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.] had introduced resolutions calling upon congress to declare the existence of a state of war between Russia and Finland and between Japan and China.

Because neither of these conflicts has brought a formal declaration of war there has been no compulsion upon the President to invoke the restrictions of the neutrality act.

Altho Mr. Roosevelt has failed to invoke the neutrality law by recognizing the belligerent aspects of these two wars, congress itself, under the act of 1939, has concurrent power to make the finding upon which the President must issue a proclamation invoking the restrictions of the law.

Garner Opposes Loan.

Administration leaders in the senate privately acknowledged serious doubt, after the opposition expressed in today's debate and in conferences with the membership, that the Finnish loan bill will be reported by the committee on banking and currency. These leaders said there is even greater opposition in the foreign relations committee, which must consider the bill before it reaches the senate.

Vice President Garner, it was learned, is exerting his powerful influence with senators against the proposed Finnish loan. Mr. Garner, an avowed candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination regardless of whether Mr. Roosevelt seeks a third term, energetically supported the President's arms embargo repealer last fall, but takes the position now, it was stated by his friends, that financial assistance to Finland might imperil the peace of this country.

Munitions of War Barred.

Mr. Roosevelt stated in his communication that there is "without doubt in the United States a great desire to assist Finland to finance the purchase of agricultural surpluses and manufactured products, not including implements of war."

"There is at the same time undoubted opposition to the creation of precedents which might lead to large credits to nations in Europe, either belligerents or neutrals," he stated.

Mr. Roosevelt suggested as "the most reasonable approach" to the problem that congress authorize an increase in the revolving credit fund of the Export-Import bank and authorize the Reconstruction Finance corporation to purchase loans and securities from the Export-Import bank to enable it to finance the exportation of "agricultural surpluses and manufactured products not including implements of war."

Bank's Rôle Reversed.

The Export-Import bank, which already has advanced credit of $10,000,000 to finance so-called nonmilitary exports to Finland, has a revolving credit limit of $100,000,000, most of which is committed. The revolving fund would be increased if the RFC were authorized to purchase the loans and securities of the bank.

The Export-Import bank does not make loans directly to foreign governments, but advances credits, usually thru corporations organized in this country, to finance exports to foreign countries. Ironically, it was created originally for the specific purpose of financing exports to communist Russia, which the Roosevelt administration had recognized, and now is suggested as the means of assisting Finland in its fight against Russia.

While Mr. Roosevelt's letter specifically proposed to limit Finnish assistance to the financing of materials other than implements of war, the Finns assert that what they need primarily is fighting planes, guns and ammunition.

No Strings on Brown Plan.

The bill now pending before the senate banking and currency committee, introduced by Senator Prentiss M. Brown [D., Mich.], would authorize the RFC to make loans aggregating $60,000,000 directly to Finland for the purpose of financing the purchase of articles and materials of any kind whatever, whether produced in the United States or elsewhere.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, apparently sought to cushion the shock of his proposal by limiting it to articles and materials other than implements of war.

The President also sought to make it appear that his proposal was not directly, or at least not exclusively, related to the war in Finland by recalling that he recommended last summer, in his 4 billion spending-lending program, an increase of 500 million dollars in the lending limit of the Export-Import bank.

No Threat of Involvement.

The President said it was wholly within the discretion of congress whether to place a ceiling on the amount of such credits as might be extended to finance exports to Finland and "whether this legislation should include an additional increase in the revolving credit fund of the Export-Import bank, in order to provide for additional loans to increase our trade with South and Central America."

"An extension of credit at this time does not in any way constitute or threaten any so-called 'involvement' in European wars," the President wrote. "That much can be taken for granted."

At his press conference this afternoon, he said the question of this country's neutrality is not involved because there has been no declaration of war.

McNary Arranges Compromise.

The debate in the senate was set off by an effort on the part of the administration leadership to refer the President's letter to the banking and currency committee, which handles RFC and Export-Import bank legislation, without reference to the foreign relations committee. Such a reference was attempted by Senator William H. Smathers [D., N. J.], temporary occupant of the chair, at the request of Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky.

Barkley finally accepted the suggestion of Senator Charles L. McNary [R., Ore.], the minority leader, to refer the letter to both committees and to stipulate by unanimous consent that any bill reported by the banking and currency committee would be re-referred to the foreign relations committee.

Senator Tom Connally [D., Tex.], a member of the foreign relations committee and a close friend of Mr. Garner, was the first to oppose sending the letter to the banking and currency committee.

Charges It "Takes Sides."

"All of us know that this matter, no matter whether it is handled thru the Export-Import bank or is handled by the government directly, is going to affect our foreign relations," Senator Connally said. "It may not affect them unfavorably, and I hope it will not, but certainly in every chancellory in the world that cares anything at all about such matters, it will be viewed as a gesture of the United States in taking sides in a war already in existence in foreign countries."

When Senator Robert F. Wagner [D., N. Y.], chairman of the banking and currency committee, said there was no legal prohibition against the making of such loans by the Export-Import bank, Senator Connally asked whether such a loan could be made "to the German government, now in a state of war," and whether Wagner would favor such a loan.

Wagner said the question was purely academic.

George Assails Movement.

At this point Senator Walter F. George [D., Ga.], another member of the foreign relations committee and one who, with Senator Connally, supported the President's neutrality revision program last fall, arose to express some "fundamental objections to some things which have been carried on."

"I do not think any loan should be made to a foreign government, or for the benefit of a foreign government, by any mere creature of the congress," said Senator George. "I have all respect for and confidence in Mr. Jesse Jones [federal loan administrator], but I know and every one else knows that the loan of $25,000,000 made by the Export-Import bank to a corporation for the benefit of China was a loan made to China.

"I think there is a very vital question of foreign policy involved here and I think it is a question as to which, sooner or later, the congress of the United States will be held to very strict accountability by the American people.

"Same as a Battleship."

"When it was created it never was dreamed that the Reconstruction Finance corporation or any of its subsidiaries should ever extend a dime's credit to any foreign government. Let congress say if we want to make a loan to Finland, or if we want to make a loan to China, and let us state to the American people that we are making loans to these foreign countries.

"We all sympathize with Finland, but Finland is simply a foreign country, fighting, let us say, for the principles we hold dear. But she is a belligerent, and under international law a loan to Finland is an unneutral act.

"It is no different on the sound basis of international law than if we send an American battleship to Finland. If we wish to do that, let us do it, but let us stop this miserable program of whipping the devil around the stump, and letting Jesse Jones, or anybody else associated with Jesse Jones, fix the foreign policy of this nation.

Reviews Neutrality Fight.

"I apprehend, Mr. President, that the American people will begin to hold us responsible for what we do now with respect to foreign loans. We labored here in extraordinary session to bring out a neutrality act. The very heart of that neutrality act is the restrictions upon credit to foreign governments and restrictions upon American shipping.

"Break down the restrictions on credit carried in the neutrality act in the case of Finland, or any other hard case, and the hour approaches when this war between Germany and France and Great Britain becomes more acute, when the pressure will be doubled and redoubled to break down the restrictions upon credits to France and upon credits to Great Britain."

Senator Danaher said his resolution is necessary, under the terms of the neutrality act, to "promote the security and preserve the peace of the United States."

Senator Gillette said his purpose in seeking to invoke the neutrality act against Japan and China was to place restrictions upon Japan's imports of war supplies from the United States. China, he said, is not getting anything anyway.

Hugh Johnson Predicts Re-election of Roosevelt

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 16 (AP).—Re-election of President Roosevelt was predicted tonight by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, former NRA administrator and frequent critic of the New Deal. He predicted at a dinner of the Philadelphia Merchants' association that Vice President John Garner would announce, possibly next month, that he would not be a candidate. "And then," Johnson continued, "Roosevelt will be nominated by acclamation and elected by all the dissident and subsidized groups in the United States—I'm sorry to say."

LOAN TO FINLAND OPPOSED BY NYE AS STEP TO WAR

Senator Offers Six 'Ifs' to Preserve Neutrality.

United States Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.], declared last night that if the United States grants a loan to Finland it will be more difficult for this country to stay out of the European wars.

"We are emotionally aroused now," he said. "If we grant a loan the squeeze will become greater and greater. We will have to give more and more, and then it will be easy to go the rest of the route."

Senator Nye's opinion on the administration's proposal for a loan to Finland was given during a debate with Clifton M. Utley, director of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations. They spoke on the question "Can America Remain Neutral?" at the Anshe Emet forum, Pine Grove avenue and Grace street.

Differ on Means of Staying Out.

Both Senator Nye and Utley declared that this country can stay out of war, but they differed on the means of maintaining neutrality. The senator said it could be done by avoiding the lure of war profits which drew us into the last world war. Utley said the same end could be achieved by avoiding strong pronouncements and by realizing that we would be far worse off entering the war than by staying out.

"European wars," Senator Nye declared, "result only in shifting and drifting border lines. Some Americans would have us believe that we should make these border lines a WPA project for millions of American boys."

Nye Cites Six "Ifs."

Nye then cited six "ifs" by which neutrality can be assured. We can remain neutral, he declared:

"If:

"We avoid the pitfalls of the last war.

"We will sacrifice our so-called war profits.

"We maintain a normal peace time economy.

"We go back to the arms embargo [which he drafted].

"We mind our own blessed business.

"We hate less the things in Europe and love more our American institutions."

Utley Disagrees on Embargo.

Utley replied that repeal of the embargo has not led and will not lead to war. No feeling of complete pacificism, he said, will keep us neutral, because this would invite other nations to invade our own interests.

"The great reason for our entrance into the last war," Utley continued, "was not profits but a feeling that if Germany won it would be worse for us. There is somewhat a similar feeling now.

"There is not the slightest danger of this country going into a European war until it appears that Germany is going to win."

Rickenbacker's Company Signs with New Airport

New York, Jan. 16 [Special].—The disagreement between Eastern Air Lines and the management of New York City's new North Beach Airport ended today in a compromise. Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker, president of the company, announced that before the end of the week he would sign a 10 year lease for space at the field. Eastern Air was the last holdout of the five major air carriers which formerly used Newark airport as the New York terminal.

Suit Over Frog

Owner holding frog by ribbon.

A frog named Dan L. II. is the pet of Miss Frances Wills, 1347 North Dearborn parkway. Miss Wills is an acrobatic dancer. Under her tutelage Dan had learned to jump prodigious distances, and she's proud of his ability.

But on Dec. 15 Dan leaped right into trouble, according to a suit filed yesterday in Circuit court by Miss Mary Marshall, 22 years old, a singer and entertainer of 20 East Delaware place. Miss Marshall asks $5,000 damages from Miss Wills, Marion Isbell, owner of Isbell's restaurant at 590 Diversey parkway, and Howard Riley, a bartender there.

According to the bill, Miss Wills and her frog were at the bar. So was Miss Marshall. Bartender Riley plucked a common frog from a tank of them, kept for customers who like frogs' legs, and claimed it could jump farther than Miss Wills' highly trained Dan L. II. The contest was arranged. Dan, with a tremendous leap, landed in the lap of a lady sitting next to Miss Marshall. The lady screamed, threw up her hands, and bumped Miss Marshall off her perch onto the floor. Resulting injuries, she said, prevented her from working for several weeks.

Pasadena Seismograph Records Severe Quake

Pasadena, Cal., Jan. 16 (AP).—California Institute of Technology seismologists tonight reported a "great earthquake" was recorded in its laboratory beginning at 7:42 p. m. Chicago time. Distance of the quake was judged to be 6,000 to 7,000 miles, direction unknown. Seismologists said the quake was "potentially destructive of life and property on a large scale" if in a populous area.

SPENDING BILL CUT 94 MILLION BY HOUSE GROUP

Meets Economy Challenge of President.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—The house appropriations committee today accepted the economy challenge flung by President Roosevelt in his budget message Jan. 4. It slashed 94 million dollars from an appropriation bill which Mr. Roosevelt had declared was pared to the bone.

Moreover, the committee struck directly at the White House in its report, refusing to appropriate a penny for two of the President's pet agencies which were transferred to his direct management under the reorganization act of 1939. These were the so-called office of government reports, New Deal propaganda agency which was formerly known as the national emergency council, and the national resources planning board.

Refusing to follow the President's recommendations that $2,115,000 be appropriated for these two agencies, the committee declared that there was no authorization in law for the existence of either.

President Plans Legislation.

At his press conference later in the day, the President said he agreed with the committee that there was no legal basis for the two bureaus. He said he would send up bills authorizing their setup and predicted that the $2,115,000 would be appropriated after the passage of these bills. Strenuous congressional opposition to the legislation of the agencies was evident, however.

[The office of government reports is the admitted propaganda agency of the New Deal and is considered of particular value in election years when it functions as an ally of the Democratic national committee. The resources board is a central government planning agency which makes surveys which the administration uses as a basis for legislative recommendations.]

In his budget message Jan. 4, the President told congress that he had carefully checked the individual estimates in his 8½ billion dollar budget for the fiscal year 1941 beginning next July 1 and asserted:

"I am satisfied that no lower figures can be attained except at the expense of impairing efficiency with which laws are administered or of working undue hardship on individuals and economic groups. I refuse to accept the responsibility of adopting either alternative."

Woodrum Accepts Responsibility.

Representative Clifton A. Woodrum [D., Va.], chairman of the subcommittee which worked out the reduction of 94 million dollars in the first regular appropriation bill of the session, accepted the responsibility thus thrown upon congress by the chief executive.

"We believe these reductions have been made and can be made without seriously crippling any useful and needed government activity," he told the house. He added a plea that the members support the committee's stand.

The measure involved was that making appropriations for 30 odd government commissions, boards, authorities, councils, agencies, banks, administrations, and corporations, a majority of which have been set up since the Roosevelt administration came into power.

The President had insisted that 1 billion 194 millions of dollars should be voted by congress to carry on this vast burocracy. This was 78 million dollars more than was appropriated last year, but Mr. Roosevelt declared that every additional penny was needed. The committee disagreed. Its 94 million dollar cut eliminated the called-for increases and left the total of the bill 16 million dollars under that of the current fiscal year.

Eight Per Cent Slash.

The reduction under the President's request was approximately 8 per cent. That percentage, applied to the total 8½ billions demanded by Mr. Roosevelt, would insure total savings in the national budget of nearly 700 million dollars. Republicans and some conservative Democrats have asserted that such savings and more could safely be achieved.

Appropriation bills, however, have a long, exhausting gantlet to run in congress, and the most optimistic of the economy minded group would not predict such a large saving in the national budget. Blocs representing special interests cry out at reductions in the appropriations in which they are interested. The senate, less interested in economies than the house, customarily pads the totals of the measures.

About $3,000,000 recommended in salary increases for government employés were disallowed by the committee which asserted that pay boosts for such employés, well paid in comparison with the average scale, were not advisable with the government living off borrowed money.

The largest cut was in the appropriation for the United States maritime commission for which Mr. Roosevelt had asked 200 million dollars. This was reduced to 125 million dollars. That amount, however, is 25 million dollars more than was granted the commission during the current fiscal year.

NETHERLANDS DENIES EMPIRES PROMPTED CALLING OF TROOPS

AMSTERDAM, the Netherlands, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Netherlands government, denying assertions in Berlin that British-French tips prompted week-end military measures, declared today that its views on the international situation were formed only on information from sources controled by itself. The official statement, similar to one issued by Belgium, was accompanied by a further easing of tension.

The Netherlands government withheld action on the sinking of the freighter Arendskerk yesterday in the Bay of Biscay, by a submarine pending an inquiry into German charges that the vessel carried contraband destined for the British.

Belgian Chief Sees Envoys.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Belgian foreign minister, Paul Henri Spaak, tonight received the German, French, and British ambassadors. There was no immediate official explanation of the diplomatic activity.

GERMANS BRAND BRITISH REPLY TO 'AMERICAS 'RUDE'

BERLIN, Jan. 16 (AP).—Authorized German sources today called Great Britain's reply to the Pan-American conference's neutrality zone declaration "arrogant, insolent, and naive."

"The British act as tho they were masters of American waters and that Latin American states were merely their vassals," German sources said. "The British decidedly have the swellhead."

The British government yesterday rejected the protest of 21 American republics against belligerent activity of British warships in American waters.

OLYMPIC STARS TREK TO FINLAND, BUT AS WARRIORS

Enlist in 'Big Game' Hunt for Russian Bear.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Jan. 16.—Scandinavian sportsmen and athletes who had planned to visit Finland this summer for the Olympic games, which have not been officially postponed, are arriving in Finland, but as volunteers to help Finland in her fight against soviet Russia.

Some have visited Finland many times, competing in athletic events. Their names are as familiar to the sports loving Finns as the names of their own athletes. The sports pages of Finnish newspapers and the Scandinavian press daily contain reports of some additional world champion volunteering to serve in the Scandinavian legion. The sportsmen say they have come to join the Finns in a big game hunt. They all want to shoot the Russian bear.

The Swedish Champions.

Among the first to join was Bjoern Borg, Sweden's champion swimmer. Then came Karl Schroeder, lawn tennis champion, and Henry Kaelarne, Swedish 3,000 meter champion. Others were Thor Enochson, marathon runner; Sven Utterstroem, who twice won the most difficult ski race in Europe, the Holmen Hollen contest in Norway, and Ivan Skeppstedt, famous motorcycle racer.

The first group of volunteers from Norway consisted exclusively of athletes. They formed the Sportsmen company. Klas Marthinsen, one of the best soccer players in Scandinavia, was among the first to join. Other sportsmen are coming from Denmark.

Estonia, Finland's kindred nation across the Gulf of Finland and which now has treaty agreements with Russia, was obliged to forbid her nationals to go abroad. This halted a stream of sportsmen and other youths who wanted passports to go to Finland and fight.

Every Bullet Counts.

The resemblance of Finland's fight against Russia to an athletic contest or hunting skill is emphasized by the tactics and strategy of the Finnish general staff which aims to make every man and bullet count. The training of Finnish officers stresses that all operations be conducted with the minimum loss of men and materials.

Finland's defense has followed this policy. Comparatively small detachments of Finns have surrounded and annihilated forces of Russians 10 times their number.

How they do it was best described by a major of the Russian infantry who was taken prisoner in the battle of Suomussalmi, where the Finns annihilated a Russian division.

"We never saw the Finns until the battle was over," he told me. "They never left us for one moment. For two weeks we were under constant fire. If we congregated around a fire there would either come a burst of machine gun or pistol fire or a few rifle shots and some of our men would fall.

Afraid to Get Rations.

"The men were afraid to line up for their rations. They were afraid to sleep. We tried to make counter attacks into the forests and found nothing but ski tracks.

"We couldn't see the enemy who never slept, who was always following us, attacking our rear and flanks. How could we fight an enemy we couldn't even see?"

This frontier type of fighting has been equally successful on all fronts.

CLAIMS HUSBAND GOT ANNULMENT BY DECEIVING HER

Mrs. Lucille Karstens Dry testified last night before Judge Robert A. Meier Jr. of the City court of Chicago Heights that she had been deceived when she signed papers aiding Henry Dry of 3800 Lake Shore drive to obtain an annulment of their marriage. She said she had not read and did not understand the contents of the documents.

Judge Meier, who was asked to set aside the annulment on the ground of fraud, announced that he would rule Saturday on whether a divorce should be granted the wife. He did not indicate what action, if any, would be taken against Dry and his attorneys. An investigation into their conduct was started as a result of the wife's contest.

The Drys were married last June and lived together only a few days. The annulment was obtained in October under a new state law that permits city courts to grant annulments without publicity. Dry is the son of Morris Dry, an official of the American Sanitary Rag company.

CANADA ACCUSED OF INEFFICIENCY IN PRESSING WAR

TORONTO, Jan. 16 (AP).—Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario today accused the Canadian government of inefficiency in prosecuting the war.

Hepburn said he had been told some recruits had developed tuberculosis as a result of being improperly clad. They were given underwear not fit to be put on a human being and footwear that wouldn't last two weeks, he charged in a speech to the provincial legislature.

"This war is going to break out on a colossal scale, on a scale hitherto unknown," Hepburn said. "There will be a great demand for men and we're going to commit the colossal blunder of sending half trained men to battle. Aviators not half trained will face Germans who have trained for years."

Col. George Drew, conservative leader, said the Canadian public was being lulled into false security by the propaganda speeches of the prime minister [W. L. Mackenzie King] and the members of his cabinet.

their dead and wounded to freeze on the snow covered ground.

Shortly before midnight, the Finns heard the loud voices of the commissars crashing thru the frozen silence of 20 degree below zero [Fahrenheit] weather. The commissars were attempting to stir the frost bitten soldiers to a battle pitch.

Under cover of heavy artillery fire the Russians attacked, some of them yelling "Urraa! Urraa!" in response to the spirited sendoff of the political spokesmen. The commissars, who accompany Red soldiers all the time, remained behind, firing catchwords out of the trenches.

Hands Tucked in Sleeves.

The attack was aimed at Finnish posts which the enemy judged to be the weakest. The extreme cold forced the Russians to advance with their arms folded on their chests and hands tucked into the sleeves. Their guns were left strapped across their backs until they were close enough to shoot effectively.

Finnish machine guns withheld their fire until the Russians were near enough to be mowed down without a waste of ammunition. Then the Finns closed down on their triggers—and after a few minutes of firing those of the enemy who had not fallen were scattered and retreating. The number of dead was not determined.

Establish Front in Russia.

WITH THE CENTRAL FINNISH FORCES IN RUSSIA, Jan. 16 (AP).—Finland's ski troops have forced back the Russian army on this front from its early December positions, nearly 20 miles within Finland, to a line 5 to 10 miles inside Russia.

The Finns likewise have established outposts on soviet soil. Altho Finnish ski patrols regularly are cutting into the Russian force to reconnoitre, this is the only "front" on enemy territory.

The new lines here are opposite Lieksa, about 90 miles north of Lake Ladoga, high above the rolling, snow capped Russian hills.

The Lieksa Russian front [south of Repola, Russia] is a series of outposts to guard two roads from the border, one to the north and the other to the south of Lieksa. The roads are about 45 miles apart.

EARL BROWDER CANCELS U. OF C. SPEECH TONIGHT

Earl Browder, general secretary of the communist party in America, yesterday canceled tonight's scheduled talk at the University of Chicago. Word came from Browder's office in New York that he would be unable to appear because he is to go on trial there soon on a federal indictment alleging passport violations.

William Randall, assistant dean of students at the university, was notified of the cancellation by Miss Lorraine Lewis, a student, one of the members of the communist club on the campus. She said that tickets had been sold for Browder's address in Mandel hall and asked that the purchasers be told to keep the tickets in the hope that Browder will be able to come here after his trial.

Dean Randall said, however, that there was no assurance Browder would ever come here and ordered the money refunded.

NORWAY, SWEDEN SAY NO BRITISH HELP PROMISED

Refute Report Integrity Is Guaranteed.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Jan. 16 (AP)—Norway and Sweden, desiring to emphasize their neutrality, issued formal denials today that Great Britain had offered to guarantee their integrity.

Reports from Germany have insisted that the western empires were attempting to gain a foothold in Scandinavia for an attack against the reich. The German view, consequently, was that any such guarantee would compromise the neutrality of the northern states.

British Admit Offer.

The specific denials today followed upon press dispatches from London stating that British offers of a guarantee had been made, and came after Russian protests declaring that Norway and Sweden were sending men and supplies to Finland and were permitting anti-Russian press campaigns.

These charges, and Russian dissatisfaction with the Swedish and Norwegian replies to the protest, have increased the strain of relations between Russia and the Scandinavian countries and have made the latter all the more anxious to keep their neutrality before the public.

Russia Accuses Sweden.

A soviet Russian broadcast today accused Sweden of forcing the unemployed to fight for Finland against Russia.

The Moscow broadcast said Sweden was reducing her public works program, promising high pay for volunteers, and taking other steps to get the unemployed to enlist in the Finnish army.

King Gustav V. of Sweden told the riksdag [parliament] last week that the big Swedish defense budget would require curtailment of public building and social welfare programs.

JAPAN TO SEEK NONAGGRESSION PACT WITH REDS

TOKIO, Jan. 17 [Wednesday] (AP).—Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita told the Japanese press today: "We intend to make the strongest possible effort to adjust relations with soviet Russia."

Outlining the course of Japan's foreign policy under the new cabinet of Premier Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, Arita said a result similar to the conclusion of a nonaggression pact is sought with the soviet union thru current negotiations for demarcation of frontiers on the Asiatic mainland.

The press quoted Arita as frankly admitting that the Russian-German friendship pact last September, which resulted in the partition of Poland, had split the anti-Comintern pact, under which Germany, Italy and Japan, as the principal partners, pledged themselves to fight communism.

Arita was quoted yesterday as saying he expected Japan's relations with Germany and Italy to be further deepened. He said his efforts in connection with the totalitarian states would not interfere with attempts to normalize relations with the United States.

$210,000 IS ASKED IN ADVANCE FOR SUBWAY DAMAGE

Trustees of the Monadnock block, one of the city's oldest skyscrapers, petitioned the Superior court yesterday for a writ of mandamus directing the city to settle damages of $210,000 to the building which it is estimated will result from construction of the Dearborn street subway.

The 17 story building was completed in 1893. It is bounded by Dearborn, Van Burean, and Federal streets, and Jackson boulevard. The trustees' petition says the subway will come within three or four feet of the floating foundations of the building. It asks that the court determine the exact damages, including cost of measures to safeguard the building, before subway construction reaches the Monadnock block.

A test suit against the city for damages resulting from construction of the State street subway is pending in Superior court. The suit is backed by more than 100 owners of properties along State street between Division street and the river.

FAMOUS FINNISH BATH A CUSTOM FROM DIM PAST

Typical Bathhouse Is Built in Chicago.

The Finnish bath, which has been mentioned in recent news from Finland, has been a firmly established social custom in that country since the dim beginnings of its history.

To the Finns, the small log bath huts in which they steam themselves and whisk their bodies to a glow with branches of birch or cedar are almost as important as their homes. Often, in earlier years, the Finnish farmer, upon settling on new land, would construct his bathhouse before he built his home.

A Semireligious Ritual.

The kylpy, or bath, is a semireligious ritual to many of the natives of Finland. The Kalevala, the epic poem of Finland, which was composed by an unknown author probably before the beginning of the 11th century, tells how the legendary sorcerer Vainamoinen asked the great god Ukko to give the steam bath magical curative powers:

Come, O Ukko, to my rescue,
God of mercy, lend thy presence,
Give these vapor baths new virtues,
Grant to them the powers of healing.

The steam bath is still common in Finnish communities in this country, especially in rural areas, and some Chicagoans who have emigrated from Finland or who are of Finnish descent have clung to the old custom, and have constructed the bathhouses in their city homes. One such bathhouse, patterned exactly after those of Finland, is in the home of John A. Lake, at 3642 Overhill avenue.

Wife a Native of Finland.

Lake, a sheet metal worker, is of Finnish descent. His wife, Lempi [or Lillian in English], was born in Viipuri, Finland.

Their bathhouse is an 8 foot square wooden structure, sealed with cement, in the basement of their home. Along one wall are the ledges on which the bathers—often four or five at a time—recline. At one end is the stove upon which blocks of sandstone are heated red hot. Water, poured upon the hot stones, produces the steam for the bath.

Lake, his son, Robert, and several of their friends gather in the bathhouse twice a week. For 20 minutes they steam themselves in the almost suffocating heat of the bath, whisking each other's bodies with the traditional branches of birch or cedar, which have been dipped in boiling water to produce a rich, spicy aroma. Then follows a cold shower, which leaves the bathers gasping, then another 20 minutes in the steam, and so on.

"Greatest Doctor of All."

"The steam bath is the greatest doctor of all," Lake said yesterday. "When I come in tired and aching from a hard day's work, all I need to do is stretch out on one of the ledges. After an hour I am a new man, alive, strong, and ready for a big dinner. Is it not so, Lillian?"

His wife, a strong, rosy cheeked, and typically Finnish woman, nodded solemnly.

"The bath to my people is like a religion," she said. "It soothes the weary, cures the sick, and strengthens the strong."

Let Food for Germany Pass, British Bishop's Plea

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Dr. Ernest William Barnes, bishop of Birmingham, wants the government to adjust the blockade so as to allow the free importation of foodstuffs to Germany in accordance with the precept, "if you think the enemy hungers, feed him." He will move a resolution to this effect in the upper house of the convocation of Canterbury, which meets at Westminster tomorrow.

Ban Gatherings in Indian City After Moslem Riots

NAGPUR, India, Jan. 16.—An order was issued today prohibiting the assembly of five or more persons and carrying arms at Burhanpur 180 miles from here. The action was taken after Moslem riots in which one person was killed and 12 injured, including seven policemen. The rioting began yesterday when stones were thrown at a magistrate and several policemen who opened fire.

TURKS GET LOAN OF $174,000,000 FROM EMPIRES

$100,000,000 to Be Used for Buying Arms.

PARIS, Jan. 16 (AP).—French officials announced today that Great Britain and France have made loans to Turkey totaling £42,000,000 and 264,750,000 francs [altogether about $174,000,000], part of which is to be used to finance the purchase of armaments. The loans were provided for in financial records signed here Jan. 8.

Of the total $100,000,000 is to be used exclusively to buy arms and munitions for the Turkish armed forces. The purchases are to be made from France and Britain, both of whom have signed mutual assistance pacts with Turkey.

The remainder of the loans is to be used for liquidating old Turkish indebtedness to the western powers.

France and Britain also have agreed to buy $8,000,000 worth of dried fruits from Turkey yearly for the duration of the war, officials said.

Asks Bigger Defense Fund.

ANKARA, Turkey, Jan. 16 (AP).—Turkey's government boosted a record defense estimate by $20,000,000 today in addition to asking the national assembly for special powers to deal with national defense and economy in case of war.

The minister of national defense said the $20,000,000 was needed to supplement $48,000,000 already granted as an extra budget.

With rumors of a possible Russian-German push in the near east being circulated in the capital the national assembly received the government's bill for special powers to place the country in a state of readiness for any emergency on a moment's notice. Quick passage was predicted. Details of the bill were not announced.

Eye Russian Oil Fields.

Rich Russian oil fields near the Turkish frontier soon may be the goal of a French-British-Turkish military campaign to cut Russia and Germany from vital petroleum supplies.

Should Britain and France openly intervene against Russia in Finland, it was regarded here as almost certain that they would supplement their northern campaign with an attack on Russia thru the Black sea.

Large French and British armies already are concentrated in Syria and Palestine, ready for action with the strong army of their Turkish ally. New financial and economic agreements between this country and the western powers already have started huge quantities of war materials pouring into Turkish ports.

Vision Naval Blockade.

In event of action against the Russian oil fields, military experts said, the British-French fleet immediately would move into the Black sea to cooperate with the Turkish navy in blockading Russian ports, particularly the important oil port of Batum.

The three power army would crash simultaneously over the frontier to move on Batum, Tiflis, and the oil fields. Batum is only 10 miles from the frontier and within artillery range.

Capture of the oil wells by the three nations would cut off many of Russia's present sources of oil, vital to continued operation of the mechanized armies fighting Finland and from blockaded Germany's land, sea, and air forces in western Europe.

Army Commanders Confer.

Conferences between the Turkish general staff and the British and French commanders in the near east have been frequent.

Gen. Maxime Weygand, described by some as one of the best soldiers in French history, has been maintained as chief of the French armies in the near east. Military experts say he would play a big part in directing any operations against Russia. Lieut. Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, former Palestine commander, is head of the British middle east forces.

Most of the rich oil fields are in operation in the Russian republic of Azerbaijan, two-thirds of whose population is of the Turkish race. Many Turks never have reconciled themselves to inclusion of these racial brothers, numbering 2,000,000, in the soviet union.

Italian Steamer Collides with Lightship Off Britain

LONDON, Jan. 17, Wednesday (AP).—An unidentified Italian steamer collided with a lightship off the southeast coast late last night. The lightship crew abandoned the ship, in a sinking condition, and was picked up by a naval vessel.

Possible Development in War

(Story in adjoining column.)

If France and England decide to engage in a war on Russia with the help of Turkey, they might strike a decisive blow by capturing the rich Russian oil fields (black area). This could be done by British troops operating from Palestine, French troops from Syria, and Turkish armies (broken lines). British and French navies likewise might cooperate to blockade Russian ports.

GERMANS CHARGE FRANCE BROKE ITS PRE-WAR PLEDGE

Claim Paris Agreed to Expansion Policy.

BERLIN, Jan. 16 (AP).—Germany accused France today of backing down on a promise made after the Munich conference of Sept. 29, 1938, that she would not stand in the way of German interests in eastern Europe.

The German charge was made in an official statement replying to the French yellow book which made public documents relating to the genesis of the war.

The French promise, the statement said, was to have been the basis for a friendship pact.

Charges "British Influence."

The statement said that after Munich, when the first partition of Czecho-Slovakia was arranged, France gave Germany such a pledge, but in the spring of 1939 deserted that policy "under English influence."

The communique said that "thru prejudged selection of documents the French yellow book seeks to deceive the reader regarding the true sequence of prewar history.

"Thus, for example, an effort is made to convey the impression that France never—even after the Munich meeting—gave the slightest indication that in the future she would be disinterested in eastern European questions especially affecting Germany."

Speeches Are Cited.

The statement cited speeches by Senator Aime Berthod and Premier Edouard Daladier in October, 1938, and documents concerning conversations between Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop of Germany and Georges Bonnet, then French foreign minister, in Paris when the German-French friendship agreement was signed.

"The documents cited show with irrefutable clarity that France in December, 1938, as well as February, 1939, was informed by authoritative German spokesmen regarding Germany's claim to recognition of its living space in Europe and that responsible leaders of French foreign policy agreed France would not stand in the way of these demands," said the communique.

"Under English influence France gave up this policy in the spring of 1939."

FIRST DEFENDANT IN N. Y. SUBWAY PLOT CONVICTED

New York, Jan. 16 [Special].—Edward J. Rigney, first of 36 city employés to be tried on charges of robbing the city owned subway system of thousands of dollars in nickels taken from turnstiles, was found guilty today by a jury in General Sessions court. He was remanded to The Tombs to await sentence on January 30.

Rigney was charged with having stolen $25,000 from station turnstiles in collusion with others. The 36, mostly former station agents and maintenance men, were arrested about a year ago after an investigation by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, which revealed that perhaps $1,500,000—3,000,000,000 nickels—was systematically stolen.

Twenty eight of the defendants pleaded guilty.

INDIANA POLICE ARREST FORGER IN PRIEST'S GARB

A suave and expert confidence man who masqueraded in the garb of a Catholic priest was in custody last night at the Lake county jail in Crown Point, Ind. State Trooper Herman Chouinard, who made the arrest, credited the prisoner with more than $500 obtained by passing bogus checks in Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin in the last several months.

Known to have used at least twenty aliases, Trooper Chouinard said the prisoner's name is believed to be Howard Cox, by occupation a stenographer. Cox, 28 years old, confessed passing at least twenty-five $20 checks, mostly in banks. He called himself "the Rev. Father Paul Woods."

Chouinard seized the bogus priest in Benton Harbor, Mich., where he had attempted to cash a check. A warning had been sent from Indianapolis.

LATEST CLEW IN PETERS MURDER RESULTS IN ZERO

Police investigation of the murder of Paul Peters, union printing pressman, was back last night at the point where it was on the night he was slain, Oct. 31. Peters was shot to death in front of his home at 3505 North Oak Park avenue.

"We thought we were on the right track," said Sergt. John Hanrahan of the detective bureau, "but our latest information proved wrong. We can only hope that some one will turn up with the right tip. As it is now we haven't a clew."

The slaying of Peters has been attributed to a factional fight in the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' union.

GERMANS CREATE NETS IN SINKING OF 2 SUBMARINES

Third British Craft Sent Down by Mine.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—News that Germany had sunk three British submarines was followed today by reports that the Nazis owed most of this success to nets that guard their naval bases against undersea craft.

shaded area locates Heligoland bight.

Two of the British submarines, the Starfish and the Undine, were destroyed yesterday in German bay [Heligoland bight], and the third, the Seahorse, is believed to have hit a mine, taking its crew of 40 to the bottom.

Three Types of Nets.

Because an undisclosed number of the crews of the Starfish, which carried 40 men, and the Undine, which had 27 aboard, were rescued, it is believed these craft were caught in the nets.

Germany is reported to be using three types of nets. One sends up a buoy when it is contacted by a submarine and another discharges explosives. Distinctive features of the third type have not been reported.

Nazis hailed the destruction of the three submarines as a great success for their defenses.

Charge British Fleet Hides.

"British submarines which are sent into action while the grand fleet keeps hiding along Scotland's west coast," said a Nazi in navy circles, "meet the same fate as British bombers trying to attack the German coast. They are destroyed or compelled to return before attaining their objectives."

The German admiralty issued no statement on how the submarines were destroyed.

The bombing and sinking of the British patrol vessel Ivery by a German warplane was announced.

British Admit Loss.

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP).—Britain today acknowledged the loss of three of her submarines in the North sea while trying to keep the German fleet bottled up.

The submarines Undine, Seashore, and Starfish failed to return to their bases and must be regarded as lost, the admiralty announced.

These sinkings, which raised admitted British naval losses to 20 ships aggregating 79,128 tons and 1,875 lives, were announced shortly before Prime Minister Chamberlain in a war report to parliament declared:

"It may be that the war is about to enter upon a more acute phase. If that should prove the case we are ready for it."

The Starfish and the Seahorse were sister ships of the seagoing Swordfish class. They had a surface displacement of 640 tons. Completed in 1933, they each had six 21 inch torpedo tubes and mounted a three inch deck gun.

The Undine, one of Britain's most modern undersea craft, carried six 21 inch torpedo tubes, but no deck guns. She was a 540 ton craft.

Heaviest Blow for Weeks.

The loss of the three submarines was the heaviest blow to the British navy since the sinking on Nov. 25 of the 16,697 ton armed raider Rawalpindi by the German pocket battleship Deutschland, with a loss of 280 lives.

French naval officials said a French patrol ship had attacked a German submarine and was believed, but not known, to have sunk it, and that a German freighter, believed to be the Janus, had been scuttled by her crew to avoid capture when intercepted by a French warship in the Atlantic.

An unidentified oil tanker of about 10,000 tons caught fire and broke in half off the southwest coast of England tonight. Its crew is believed to have been lost.

Tanker Tonnage Gains.

Britain's tanker tonnage has gained since the war began, the admiralty reported, denying a German claim that 26 tankers had been lost. The report said losses actually were less than half that number.

For the week ended Jan. 13 twelve British ships totaling 34,077 tons and four neutrals totaling 7,792 were sunk by enemy action, the admiralty said.

The admiralty listed two German ships sunk during the last week: The Bahia Blanca, 8,558 tons, by an iceberg off Iceland, and the Dietrich Hasseldick, 172 tons, by an explosion.

German Freighter Quits Brazil.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 16 (AP).—Authorities disclosed today that the 5,943 ton German freighter Santos, which had been here since Oct. 30, sailed at dawn Sunday.

Plans Divorce

PRISCILLA LAWSON.

Hollywood, Jan. 16 (AP).—Film Actor Alan Curtis said today he and his actress-wife, Priscilla Lawson, had been estranged for several months and she was preparing to ask a divorce. They were married at Las Vegas, Nev., in 1937.

THE BIG BATTLE OF HORE-BELISHA PROVES A FIZZLE

Commons Debate Leaves Ouster Still Mystery.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Before crowded galleries, rival political forces of the house of commons met in the "Battle of Hore-Belisha" this evening. But, like the battle along the Maginot and Siegfried lines, it turned out to be a bare skirmish.

Spectators who had hoped to hear at least some acrimonious political wrangling went away with no more exact information concerning Leslie Hore-Belisha's retirement as war minister ten days ago than they had before.

Hore-Belisha's full moon face was sphinxlike when he arose to speak. He got a fair quota of cheers. Just before he spoke, Oliver Stanley, his successor as war minister, discreetly retired from the house.

No Attack on Chamberlain.

The only hot remark that Hore-Belisha made was one in which he said that he evidently had erred in trying to democratize the British army too much.

"It did not occur to me that we were making the army too democratic to fight for democracy," he said.

But he studiously refrained from attacking or even embarrassing Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain. He confined himself to a short account of his own record and policies.

Chamberlain in reply said simply that he was not going to give the house reasons for what he called Hore-Belisha's resignation, but which Hore-Belisha had referred to as his departure.

Jewish Question Raised.

All Chamberlain would advance was that it was not the brass hats who forced Hore-Belisha out. He implied, however, that Hore-Belisha was a source of friction in the government, but referred to this as difficulties arising out of his great qualities.

After the fallen war minister and his former chief had spoken no acute political controversy was precipitated in the short debate that followed.

Near the end of the debate Laborite J. C. Wedgwood asserted that prejudice had been held in exalted circles against Hore-Belisha because he was a Jew. Laborite J. McGovern asked Chamberlain to deny this.

Denied by Premier.

The prime minister replied:

"I didn't think it was worth a denial. I deny entirely that I asked him to take any other office than the one he was occupying on account of prejudice aroused by the fact that he is a Jew."

C. R. Atlee, Socialist leader, and Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal, did a little shadow boxing but did not raise any awkward questions or force an issue. Atlee called for more precision in the reasons for the ousting.

The reason that no issue was forced may be that some persons tonight think that Chamberlain fulfilled predictions in his speech that Hore-Belisha may not be gone long.

Hints at Future Job.

Thanking his former minister for his tone and spirit, Chamberlain said:

"He is anxious to make a contribution toward winning the war and I trust that it won't be long before he finds an opportunity."

[A dispatch from another source in London said Hore-Belisha, as a reward for keeping his lips sealed on the real reasons behind his resignation as war minister, will get a new cabinet job. The dispatch said it was believed that he would be made minister for economic coördination, a job similar to that held by Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering in Germany.]

Hore-Belisha implied that he was as mystified as the public on the reasons why he was fired. He denied that he had had any major disagreements with either his cabinet colleagues or the generals.

Refuses to Trade Jobs.

Hore-Belisha said that he refused to trade jobs with Stanley, who had been president of the board of trade, as Chamberlain had proposed because he could not feel that the considerations which had persuaded the premier to make a change would allow of his energetic discharge in national interest of the other office.

Another remark by Hore-Belisha was that the army should be a part of the nation, not apart from it. It should, he said, be a career which every young man could enter with the knowledge that he could rise by his character and ability regardless of his status or his means.

Chamberlain said that in wartime efficiency was gained by new allocations of cabinet posts from time to time. If he made public his reasons, he said, he would not be able to make changes.

BRITAIN'S REJECTION OF PEACE BELT AT SEA STUDIED BY AMERICAS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Americas' committee on neutrality studied Great Britain's rejection of the proposed 300 mile wide safety zone today, but announced no conclusions. The committee, composed of seven experts representing the 21 American republics, was called to study methods of securing observance of the zone by belligerents.

Some conference circles offered the opinion that Britain's position was not irreconcilable with the viewpoint of the American republics if Germany should agree to respect the zone. In a note yesterday, Britain said she could not undertake to keep her warships out of the belt unless she had assurance it would not become a refuge for the German navy.

A communique after today's session said that a memorandum from Uruguay and suggestions from various delegates as to procedure had been received, and that the conference would meet again at 4 p. m. Thursday. The sessions are private.

WESTERN FRONT QUIET; FRENCH WATCH FOR PUSH

PARIS, Jan. 16 (AP).—The British-French communique tonight reported: "A quiet day on the whole. Usual activities of patrols."

There was "nothing to report" last night, the morning communique stated.

France kept her armed forces on the alert against a possible German invasion thru Belgium or the Netherlands. One source listed next Saturday as a possible date for such an attack.

Foreign office officials said the empires' plans obviously provided for the defense of any neutral invaded by Germany, but no announcement to this effect was made.

Charles Morice, military commentator of Le Petit Parisien, wrote: "If the German offensive takes place Jan. 20 [Saturday] or before that date, it will surprise neither the allies, the Belgians nor the Dutch."

Nazis Decree Forced Labor for Polish Jews of 14 to 60

PARIS, Jan. 16.—Forced labor for Jews between the ages of 14 and 60 has been decreed in German occupied Poland by Chief of Police Krueger. Recruits must take their own food for two days, a blanket, and their own tools, and also must pay their fare to the labor camp. Desertion will be punished by ten years in prison and confiscation of property. Exception is made for Jews born in eastern soviet occupied Poland, who have the right to emigrate to the soviet union under the German-Russian population transfer agreement.

ENGLAND FORBIDS GERMAN SHARE IN SWISS DIVIDENDS

Threatens Exporters with Crippling of Trade.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BASEL, Switzerland, Jan. 16.—Swiss exporters with stockholders in Germany are being told by British agents to buy back the shares held in the reich. If they refuse, they are given to understand, their products will never pass the British blockade to customers overseas.

One chemical concern, which has been a heavy exporter to America for 70 years, has been notified that it can make no more shipments as long as there is the possibility of any earnings on its shares being paid to Germans.

Plans to Trace Stockholders.

I talked to a high official of this firm, who said dividends are payable to the bearer of stock certificates.

"We will have to trace down the ownership of our stock and find some way to recover any in German hands," he said.

This concern has the names and addresses of those who invested money in it, but, with 1,000,000 Germans under arms and countless thousands evacuated from their homes, the task will be long and expensive.

Many Swiss firms have German money invested in them and have annually poured thousands of francs across the Rhine river in dividends. It is the aim of the British to halt this flow of foreign exchange, which is so badly needed by the reich.

Swiss Industry Crippled.

The British also are opening American mail at Gibraltar to prevent shipments of funds to Germany and are seizing all German exports on the high seas regardless of their destination. All this is part of the British drive to prevent the Nazis from getting foreign currency with which to pay for oil, rubber, and other materials they must have to carry on the war.

Altho it is directed at the reich, the blockade is hitting some Swiss firms as hard as the Germans, business men here assert. One feature that is crippling industry in this neutral country is the seizure of its imports by the British on the grounds that they might find their way over the border into Germany.

Before the British permit shipments to enter Switzerland by way of the sea, the importer must file an undertaking that the materials will not be sold to Germany either as raw materials or finished goods. Since Germany before the war was Switzerland's best customer, this has been a hard blow to trade.

Swiss Government Neutral.

The Swiss government has not given its consent to the activities of the British agents in this country. Its attitude is one of strict neutrality. In the early days of the war it issued a decree stating that no Swiss should give any undertaking to any foreign power regarding the disposition of his products.

The British attitude is that the business men here are not obliged to coöperate if they do not want to, but, if they do not, they will not get anything thru the blockade.

"We don't have much choice if we want to stay in business," one industrialist told me.

Meanwhile, German salesmen passing thru here on trade stimulating missions in the Balkans say that the British are permitting shipments of German coal from Rotterdam to pass thru the blockade to Italy.

"In return we don't torpedo their vessels carrying butter from Denmark," they explained.

Frank Murphy Confirmed for Supreme Court Job

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Attorney General Frank Murphy is expected to take his seat on the Supreme court a week from next Monday as the result of his unanimous confirmation by the senate today. He probably will take his oath of office as President Roosevelt's fifth appointee to the high court late this week or early next week and arrange to turn his present office over to Robert H. Jackson, now solicitor general. Jackson also was confirmed unanimously today. The senate also confirmed the nomination of Circuit Judge Francis Biddle to be solicitor general, succeeding Jackson.

JANITORS SIGN 5 YR. PACT WITH REALTY BOARD

Bar Sympathy Strikes in Union Contract.

The Chicago Real Estate board and the Chicago Flat Janitors' union, local No. 1, yesterday announced the signing of a five year contract. The most significant provision of the contract prohibits the janitors from going out on sympathetic strikes in support of walkouts called by other unions having dealings with apartment and flat owners.

The property owners regarded this clause last night as an indication that the janitors, as a reciprocal measure, would not receive sympathy strike backing from the other unions in the event that they went on strike. The contract thus was believed to herald the end of a practice prevalent in years past, when striking janitors, by calling other unions out in sympathy, tied up all delivery services to apartment buildings.

Paralyzed Delivery Service.

During these janitors' strikes, milk drivers refused to deliver milk, coal wagon, and truck drivers would not stop at the struck building, and the operators of trucks carrying packages and merchandise likewise passed it by.

George Mitchell, vice president of the Teamsters' and Chauffeurs' joint council, to which the milk drivers' and coal drivers' unions belong, said there has been a growing trend toward discouraging sympathetic strike action in the last few years.

"This has been true except in cases where a closely affiliated or 'sister' local is in trouble and cannot solve its own difficulties," Mitchell said.

The milk drivers' and coal drivers' unions, both of which control delivery service to householders, would come under the head of 'sister' locals, whereas the janitors would fall outside this category so far as the teamsters' council is concerned.

7,000 Janitors Involved.

Mitchell said that the janitors' union, which has some 7,000 members, is a strong one, well able to take care of itself at present.

Paul Caspers, head of the committee which handled negotiations for the real estate board, hailed the contract as one that will prevent other unions, such as the painters' and decorators' unions, from using threats of a sympathing janitors' strike in settling their own claims.

The contract becomes effective March 1.

The janitors were granted two weeks' vacation each year with pay. Another clause sets up strict regulations against drunkenness and provides that the union will take away the card of any member found guilty of using alcohol to excess.

CUDAHY REACHES BELGIUM TO TAKE POST AS ENVOY

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Jan. 17, Wednesday (AP).—John Cudahy, former minister to Ireland who rushed from Dublin to take his post here as ambassador on urgent orders from Washington, D. C., arrived early today from Paris.

The envoy will be received by Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak at 9:30 a. m. and at 12:30 p. m. a royal horse drawn coach will call at the embassy to take him to the palace, where he will present his credentials to King Leopold. During the afternoon he will place a wreath on the tomb of Belgium's unknown soldier.

NEW POLISH CONSUL AND FAMILY TELL OF ESCAPING GERMANS

A perilous separation and escape from Poland was recounted yesterday by Mrs. Antonina Ripa, who with her husband, Dr. Karl Ripa, Polish consul general in Chicago, arrived here from New York.

With her son, Thaddeus, 9, Mrs. Ripa was held by German and Russian troops in northern Poland where Dr. Ripa had sent them shortly after the German invasion. By traveling for two weeks on foot and in a peasant's cart, sleeping in haystacks and piles of straw, they eluded guards and made their way to Warsaw, 350 miles away. They obtained permission to leave Warsaw to come to the United States only after Pope Pius XII, and Premier Mussolini interceded. Mother and son then were permitted to travel to Genoa, Italy.

The Ripas were reunited in New York last week when the liner S. S. Rex docked. From September until December when they reached safety, Dr. Ripa had not received word from his family. He made his own escape to the Latvian border with the fleeing Polish government, and was appointed to the Chicago post by the new Polish government which was formed in Paris. He arrived here in late November.

COUNTRY TOWNS ADD 7,000 NEW VOTERS TO LIST

A new registration of approximately 7,000 voters in Cook county's country towns was estimated last night at the close of local registration with town and village clerks. The registration, under the direction of County Clerk Michael J. Flynn, has been in progress since Nov. 21. Approximately 1,000 names were added to the lists yesterday. Tabulation of the lists will not be finished until after March 12. Voters may register with the county clerk up to that day. Registration will be resumed after the April 9 primaries.

Daniel J. Carey, who is in charge of the county election department, predicted that the permanent registration in the country towns will be in excess of 260,000 by March 12. Approximately 250,000 voters were registered for the judicial election last June. The figures do not include nine suburbs under supervision of the election commission.

BRITISH PREMIER CHARGES NAZIS KILL MANY POLES

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP).—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain today charged in the house of commons that Germany apparently is pursuing what he called a policy of deliberate depopulation in Poland, and that it appeared intellectual leaders were being singled out for execution. He said the Polish government in France proposes to issue a white book on the subject soon.

Germany Is Angry.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—German officials were indignant tonight over Prime Minister Chamberlain's charge that Germany was systematically decimating the intellectual classes of Poland.

"We probably shall not reply to such assertions, which are provocations," one official said.

WARSHIP CRUISE WILL TEST PLANS TO DEFEND CANAL

Navy Secretary Reveals Caribbean Maneuvers.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Secretary of Navy Charles Edison announced tonight that 22 vessels of the navy's Atlantic squadron would leave the Guantanamo, Cuba, base shortly on a training cruise in the Caribbean.

Naval circles understood the movement was a part of a thoro test of the defenses of the Caribbean and the Panama canal. More than 2,000 marines from Quantico, Va., arrived on battleships yesterday at Culebra Island, east of Puerto Rico. The marines and warships are to take part in attacks on the shore from the sea.

Gives No Explanation.

Maneuvers also have started at Puerto Rico, headquarters for new naval and military departments created last year. The National Guard has joined regular army forces in Puerto Rico to test a plan to defend that island against any foe trying to establish a base as a step toward seizing the Panama canal.

There was no explanation of tonight's announcement from the navy. The Atlantic squadron's movements customarily have been kept secret since the neutrality patrol was established last fall, lest useful information be supplied to European belligerents.

Edison said merely that the warships would depart for a training cruise thru the Leeward and Windward Islands of the West Indian group and in the southern Caribbean. Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis commands the Atlantic squadron.

Await California Coast Attack.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 16 [Special].—Mobile coast artillery, regular army and National Guard troops were scattered along a 300 mile Pacific coast front tonight, awaiting an attempt of the regular army 3d division and the navy to land an attacking force of 8,000 men.

The attack, expected some time tomorrow night or Thursday morning, is designed to test the coastal defenses of the California coast from San Francisco to Santa Barbara. The maneuver, closely guarded from foreign observers, also will test the army's ability to land its troops with full motor equipment.

Six army transports bearing the Black invading force were two and a half days out of Puget Sound, Washington, tonight. Steaming north from San Pedro, Cal., a powerful naval force of battleships, airplane carriers, submarines, and destroyers was headed for a rendezvous somewhere off the coast, perhaps several hundred miles west of Monterey bay.

Planes to Scout Foe.

When the rendezvous has been made and the ships actually start for the landing attempt, planes from the aircraft carriers Lexington and Saratoga will become the advance scouting force. Following the planes will be the surface craft moving behind booming guns and screens of smoke.

For warning of the approach of the invading Black army, coast defenders will depend upon military observers, forest service lookouts, lighthouse keepers, coast guards, amateur radio operators, and telephone company employés. Warning of the approach of hostile planes is to be communicated to army headquarters in San Francisco from where orders for the deployment of defense troops will be sent.

Defense of the coast will be virtually an artillery problem. The key defense unit will be the 250th coast artillery, a motorized and highly mobile unit equipped with 155 mm. guns with a range of 11 miles. These guns are drawn by trucks which have a top speed of 30 miles an hour.

Tanks, Planes to Aid.

The coast artillery will be supported by the 76th field artillery, a 75 mm. gun unit, which also is fully motorized, a squadron of cavalry, several battalions of tanks and necessary medical and supply units. Aircraft also will have an important part in the defense plan, and 200 pursuit and attack planes will be available for use against the fleet air force and for scouting far out at sea.

Theoretically, the defense zone is a triangle 125 miles deep, extending from the coast back to Fresno in the San Joaquin valley. The triangle is bounded by Fresno, Santa Barbara, and San Francisco. If they are able to make a landing the problem of the attackers is to capture coast defenses, principal cities, and sources of supply within the triangle.

The Blue defenders will try first to prevent the landing, and failing this against a far superior power will try to drive the invaders back to their ships or capture them.

SEIZE 2 FLEEING BURGLARS.

Two young burglars, trying to flee from a drug store at 3645 Division street early yesterday, were seized by Park Policeman Lester Walsh and Herbert Vanselow. They identified themselves as Joseph Pancake, 2648 Iowa street, and Adolph Starzyk, 1500 North Washtenaw avenue.

'Attack Problem

(Story in adjoining column.)

Ships transporting troops from Puget sound will be joined by naval ships from the south in attempting to land troops on the California coast (black area) in a combined army-navy problem.

MISHAP TO WIFE TRAPS EX-FELON AND PAL IN CRIME

A pound of bacon, an open gas jet and a telephone number were included in the instruments used by an unkind fate to put Albert Ruggio and Howard Warner, former convicts, in custody of the police.

M. L. Randall, owner of a tavern in Lincolnwood, forgot the bacon when he locked up the place on Dec. 3. He went back to get it and found the two men trying to open his safe. Policemen he summoned arrested Warner, who was indicted for burglary and released on bond of $7,500. Ruggio escaped, but Randall identified his picture and he also was indicted.

Early Sunday the police were called to 2124 Hudson avenue, where Ruggio's wife had been overcome by gas. Ruggio, who was using an alias, was recognized and arrested. In his possession was the telephone number. It was traced and led to 119 West Ontario street, where Warner was found nursing buckshot wounds alleged to have been received Jan. 9 when he attempted a robbery in Detroit. The two men met in Joliet penitentiary while Ruggio was serving a term for manslaughter and Warner one for robbery.

ASK REHEARING IN DEPORTATION UPSET BY COURT

Stanislaw Boraca and his wife were saved by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals on Jan. 3 from deportation to Poland, altho the Boracas entered this country illegally 11 years ago.

But the effort to deport them was renewed yesterday. William J. Campbell, United States district attorney, asked the court for a rehearing. He explained that the ruling has caused confusion regarding the authority of the secretary of labor, and taken from the secretary's office its discretionary power. The court, Campbell asserted, should have made a recommendation in the case instead of forbidding the department of labor to send the Boracas back to Poland. The court reversed a previous ruling by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward that the couple must go back. The appeals court branded deportation to Poland inhuman and shocking.

The Boracas live at 2611 Rice street. Boraca is an interior decorator and bartender, 40 years old. He and Mrs. Boraca have an American born son, Arthur, 8 years old.

2½ BILLION MORE NEEDED IN ARMY, NAVY ARMS PLAN

Congressmen Expect New Requests for Funds.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Two congressional committees heard testimony today that at least 2 billion 500 million dollars more than President Roosevelt recommended for national defense in the coming fiscal year would be required to complete the existing programs of the navy and army.

Several well informed legislators predicted that supplemental estimates would be submitted by both the army and navy after their regular supply bills are out of the way—particularly if the full fury of the European war develops by that time.

Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, gave the house naval committee figures showing that the navy hoped to complete between now and 1945, a total of 145 additional warships, the estimated cost of which will be 2 billion 276 million dollars. First appropriations to start work on 19 of the 145 ships already have been requested in the pending naval appropriation bill for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Tells of Army's Need.

In a room across the street Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring told the house military committee that deficiencies of critical ordnance and engineer items to supply the so-called protective mobilization force of 750,000 men would cost at least $300,000,000. None of this, he added, was to be included in the army's regular appropriation bill soon to be submitted to congress.

Preliminary to a closed session to discuss the army's needs and the progress of its current mechanization program, Woodring told the committee the forthcoming appropriation bill would enable the army virtually to complete modern equipment for 227,000 men of the regular army and 235,000 in the National Guard.

Vinson Bares Cruiser Plans.

Just before Admiral Stark completed his testimony on the proposed fleet expansion program, Carl Vinson [D., Ga.], chairman of the house naval committee, announced that naval legislation will be redrafted to permit construction of cruisers bigger than the previous treaty limit of 10,000 tons. Treaty limits on all categories of warships will be eliminated, he said.

In addition, Vinson proposed that the bill be amended to retain provisions of existing law requiring competitive bidding for all naval ship construction and requiring the allocation of such construction to private and navy building yards on a 50-50 basis.

U. S. NAVY SEEKS TO BREAK 999 YR. LEASE ON A FORT

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Jan. 16.—Government officials here and in Washington, D. C., again are seeking legal means of recovering part of the old Spanish fortifications known as San Geronimo, leased by the navy in 1921 for 999 years to Lieutenant Commander Virgil Baker, retired. The legality of the lease, the longest recorded in the history of the United States, has been upheld by the courts.

The "limited emergency" proclaimed by President Roosevelt several months ago together with a clause in the San Geronimo lease, stipulating its free use by the navy in time of war or emergency if necessary, are considered new factors which may facilitate the use and recovery of the property.

Fourteen years ago the United States government was unsuccessful in having the lease annulled on the grounds that it was obtained thru fraud. It was then contended by the government that the leased property had a value of $500,000. The navy's interest in the tract has been revived by the creation of the 10th naval district, comprising Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Fire in a section of the 27 apartment building at 815 East 53d street yesterday forced 50 tenants, including a number of small children, into the street. Firemen confined the damage to the three back apartments and the basement, where the fire was believed to have started. One of the first firemen to arrive was Lawrence Bittgen of Engine Company 53. His wife, Beryl, was on the sidewalk and greeted him. They live in one of the apartments damaged by the fire, sharing it with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Becker. First Deputy Fire Marshal Anthony J. Mullaney ordered an inquiry into the cause of the fire. Damage was estimated at $5,000.

COUNTRY TOWNS' ASSESSED VALUE SET AT $353,142,510

Increase 7.7 Per Cent in 4 Year Period.

The value of real estate in Cook county's 30 country towns under the 1939 quadrennial assessment totals $353,142,510, County Assessor John S. Clark reported yesterday. This is an increase of 7.7 per cent over the assessed value for 1935, the year of the previous quadrennial assessment, and an increase of 6.9 per cent over the 1938 assessed value. The assessed value was $327,911,081 in 1935 and $330,376,035 in 1938.

Assessed values had previously been announced by Clark for 20 townships Yesterday the value of the final 10 towns, in the south and southwest parts of the county, was placed at $69,674,753.

Reasons for Increase.

Clark said that new buildings and improvements and a general rise in real estate values in the last four years accounted for the increase in assessed values.

The assessor fixes the assessed value at 37 per cent of his estimate of the full value of the properties. The full value of real estate in the 30 townships was $954,439,217, for 1939, compared with $886,230,000 for 1935.

Compare Assessed Values.

Assessed values for the 10 townships reported yesterday, compared with the 1935 assessed values, follow:

	1939.	1935.
Bloom	$10,544,733	$ 9,889,496
Bremen	4,012,881	3,410,358
Calumet	3,202,414	2,997,708
Lemont	1,212,792	1,100,384
Lyons	18,601,864	15,555,174
Orland	1,204,480	1,129,981
Palos	1,687,465	1,485,295

Worth	7,318,699	5,844,126
Totals	$69,674,753	$62,035,026

Values for townships within the city of Chicago have not been announced yet. Assessment of these properties is scheduled for completion by Feb. 1.

EXPECT SENATE TO GET SEAWAY PACT IN MONTH

Roosevelt, Berle Discuss Proposed Treaty.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—President Roosevelt today refused to confirm or deny reports that he plans to sign next month a treaty looking toward a projected half billion dollar development of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence navigation and power resources.

Adolph A. Berle.

The President acknowledged that he discussed the pact briefly yesterday with Assistant Secretary of State Adolph A. Berle, who recently returned from Ottawa, Canada, after discussions on revival of the project.

A return visit is scheduled to be paid by Canadian officials on Jan. 22. It is expected that this visit will culminate in presentation of the treaty to the senate for ratification.

Further Discussions Planned.

Mr. Roosevelt said that he had talked with Berle only five minutes and expected to take up the treaty discussions with him further before the Canadian delegation visits Washington.

In administration circles it was generally understood that the White House plans to submit the treaty to the senate in February. The treaty would provide for a channel for ocean vessels from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of St. Lawrence and for power plants along the river. The bulk of the cost would be borne by this country.

It is understood that the treaty under consideration is a modification of that rejected by the senate in 1934, which was prepared largely by Berle. In the current negotiations instructions were issued to eliminate and modify those features which brought about the defeat of the old treaty.

Included in these features was the provision under which Chicago's diversion of water from Lake Michigan to the lakes to the gulf waterway would be fixed forever at 1,500 cubic feet per second.

Visited Ottawa Jan. 1.

Berle's visit to Ottawa was made Jan. 1. He went there with Leland Olds, chairman of the federal power commission and an ardent advocate of the seaway project, and J. D. Hickerson, state department expert on Canadian relations. The delegation conferred with Dr. O. D. Skelton, Canadian undersecretary of state for external affairs.

At the time spokesmen for both governments expressed the belief that there were no real obstacles in the path of agreement.

The seaway and power development project was out of favor in Canada until the outbreak of the European war, when Canadian authorities agreed that any American money spent in Canada would aid the British cause. When Canadian sentiment shifted to the treaty, President Roosevelt revived it.

Proposed Pact Criticized.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 16 [Special].—The proposed St. Lawrence Waterway treaty was criticized today at the annual convention of the Atlantic States Shippers Advisory board. The project was described as economically unsound, as creating burdensome taxes without compensatory benefits, and as opening possibilities for international controversies over the Great Lakes and tributary waters.

CITY BUDGET UP FOR LAST MINUTE CHANGES TODAY

Total Appropriations at 179 Million.

The city council will meet today to consider last minute amendments to the 1940 city budget. Under the city code the budget may be increased or decreased at today's session. Thereafter appropriations may be reduced, but they cannot be increased.

The budget, which was passed last week, is expected to be published Friday. It will become a law 10 days later, and tax anticipation warrants, to raise funds immediately, can then be sold against the 1940 tax levy.

City Clerk Ludwig Schreiber announced yesterday that appropriations for all funds for 1940 total $179,283,985. The corporate [operating] budget is $56,674,788, a reduction of $1,403,604 from the figure originally recommended by the finance committee and $1,130,460 less than the 1939 corporate budget.

Other Major Funds Listed.

Other major funds in the 1940 budget, and the comparable 1939 figures are:

	1940.	1939.
Water fund	$14,089,624	$14,514,455
Water certificates	10,648,250	15,762,720
Vehicle tax fund	5,489,455	5,629,890
Mot fuel tax fund	19,568,870	8,884,350
Traction fund	31,420,880	23,845,000
Bond redemption	14,018,785	13,514,035
Relief fund	5,400,000	6,305,000

The increase in the motor fuel tax appropriation is caused by the inclusion of 10 million dollars for superhighway construction. The traction fund appropriation includes 25 million dollars for subways, 1 million for a possible referendum on a traction ordinance—if one is completed this year—and 5 million for the possible acquisition of a city owned or leased street railway system. Mayor Kelly yesterday referred to the 5 million dollar item as "increased bargaining power" to be used against the traction representatives in endeavoring to obtain a settlement which would lead to a traction ordinance.

New Equipment Account.

The 1940 budget includes for the first time an equipment service account in the bureau of streets. All city street and alley cleaning and repair equipment is to be inventoried under the account and a complete cost record kept when the stock is used. The budget specifies the city is to be charged as the equipment is used and the record will show a comparison between the cost of operating city owned alley cleaning equipment and hired trucks.

H. S. DITCHBURNE ENTERS STATE'S ATTORNEY RACE

Seeks G.O.P. Nomination; Pledges Racket Fight.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Harry S. Ditchburne, Republican nominee for state's attorney of Cook county in the 1936 election, the last one for that office, announced yesterday that he will seek the same nomination in the primaries April 9.

Harry S. Ditchburne.

His is the first announcement for this office that is considered important. Three other possible candidates are under discussion, but none of them has given definite indication that he will run.

They are George E. Q. Johnson, former United States attorney; Edgar A. Jonas, former Municipal judge, and Judge Oscar F. Nelson of the Superior court.

Pledges Fight on Racketeers.

In his announcement, Ditchburne said:

"Remembering the mandate of my party given me in the Republican primary of 1936, I recognize an obligation to continue the fight for clean, decent government.

"I assure the citizens of Cook county that if elected I will not compromise with racketeers, elections thieves, and boodlers, and will carry on a continuous warfare against them, their instigators, bosses, and allies.

"I hate graft and official corruption and will extend my utmost energy to uproot them."

Leads 1936 County Ticket.

Ditchburne's candidacy in 1936 was launched by the regular county organization after weeks of searching for a suitable man. Later, the Deneen group, which had indorsed Leonard G. Reid, considered Ditchburne. Reid withdrew, and the Deneen faction swung behind Ditchburne. In the November election, in which Ditchburne ran against State's Attorney Courtney, Ditchburne led the Republican county ticket with a total vote of 606,666.

In the judicial election last June Ditchburne was one of the regular Republican nominees against the bipartisan coalition ticket on which the sitting judges were running. He led the ticket of 20 candidates for the Circuit bench.

Commended by Chamberlin.

Ditchburne was an assistant state's attorney from 1927 to 1933 and his work in that office, when he became a candidate for state's attorney, was commended by the Chicago crime commission thru its executive director, Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, and by its honorary chairman, Frank J. Loesch.

Two of the three possible contestants against Ditchburne have had experience as prosecutors. Former District Attorney Johnson, whom the Deneen group now say they may persuade to run, is well known as the prosecutor who convicted Capone and other racketeers.

Jonas, after serving as an assistant corporation counsel, as a public library trustee, and as president of the board of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium under a former Republican city hall régime, was appointed first assistant under State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe. He was appointed to a vacancy on the Municipal bench by Gov. Len Small in 1923. He was elected to the same bench in 1924, reelected in 1930, and defeated in 1936.

Named on Bipartisan Ticket.

Judge Nelson was widely known for his activity in both labor and political circles before he was elected to the Superior bench in 1935 on a bipartisan ticket arranged between the Republican and Democratic county organizations, which was run under the coalition label. His term expires next year.

Judge Nelson served as alderman of the 46th ward from 1923 until he went on the bench. He also had served as vice president of the Chicago Federation of Labor from 1910 to 1935.

Charles S. Dewey announced yesterday that the withdrawal of Otis F. Glenn from the Republican race for United States senator had not affected his own decision to run for congressman from the 9th district. Friends had urged him to shift to the senatorial race.

Chosen Manager for Green.

Headquarters of Dwight H. Green, candidate for governor, announced that Deneen Watson, legal adviser to Speaker Hugh W. Cross of the Illinois house of representatives, has been appointed chairman of the Green state campaign committee and that a downstate manager will be announced soon.

Watson, who supported Richard J. Lyons in his senatorial race in 1938, broke with him early last year over matters connected with the organization of the house of representatives.

EX-JOLIET GUARD REVEALS LEVIES FOR SLUSH FUND

2 Per Cent for Democrats Paid Captain, He Says.

A former civil service guard at Joliet penitentiary charged yesterday that the captain of the prison's guards collected 2 per cent of his salary from him for the Democratic slush fund.

The former guard told his story at the opening of the investigation which State's Attorney James E. Burke of Will county is making into the slush fund. Collections are being made by assessing state employés 2 per cent of their pay in the name of a dummy organization known as the Illinoisans. The money is to be used to further Gov. Horner's third term campaign.

Guards Given Notice.

Henderson Gibson, 45 years old, 215 Clinton street, Joliet, is the former guard.

"The 2 per cent payments began in July, 1938," he said. "We guards were called together, one shift at a time, and told that the collections would begin at once.

"There wasn't much explanation except that it was for the Democratic campaign fund. I didn't hear the Illinoisans mentioned as the outfit getting the money until October of that year.

"I paid my 2 per cent regularly on my $118.75 monthly salary to Capt. James McGuire of the guards, who kept a record of payments in a book. He told us:

"'You know what this means, boys. Pay up—or else!'"

Gibson was discharged last September on a charge of inefficiency. He said he appealed to the state civil service commission, but that the commission threw his plea into the waste basket.

Hopes to Get More Evidence.

State's Attorney Burke said at his office in Joliet that he expects to find others who will tell their stories among the 500 guards at the Joliet and new Stateville prisons. Gibson told his story to Burke's investigators, Edward Powers and John Kirincic.

Nelson E. Berve of Joliet, another discharged guard, previously complained to the civil service commission that he was fired after he quit paying the assessment. Evan Hugh Andrew, 3852 Maypole avenue, complained some time ago that he was transferred from the Stateville prison to the Vandalia prison farm after he had refused to pay and that he was subsequently suspended.

Burke said yesterday that it is illegal for any person to solicit or accept contributions from civil service workers for political purposes.

HANGS SELF IN BRIDEWELL.

Chin Yong, 21 years old, 3420 Southport avenue, a Chinese, arrested Jan. 3 on a charge of disorderly conduct, hanged himself yesterday in a cell in the Bridewell.

AGREE TO 7 CENT CARFARE TRIAL IN TRANSIT MERGER

Negotiators to Set Length of Experimental Period.

Representatives of the transit lines and the city agreed yesterday to draft a unified traction franchise maintaining the present 7 cent street car fare for an experimental period. The length of the period is still undecided. The agreement was announced by Ald. James R. Quinn [50th] after a three hour meeting of the city council's traction subcommittee and seven man board representing the companies.

Ald. Quinn said attorneys for both groups will meet jointly this week to draft sections of the proposed ordinance which have been tentatively agreed to. The ordinance will provide for merger of the surface and elevated lines and modernization of the united system.

Unwilling to Freeze Fare.

Until yesterday the companies' representatives had refused to be bound to present rates of fare by a franchise. They have maintained that they have the right at any time to petition for an 8 cent street car fare to the rate making commission. The city has sought to freeze the fare for three years at 7 cents.

Besides fare provision, attorneys will draft sections on the following points, in accordance with the agreement yesterday:

1. COMPENSATION. A provision for payment of compensation by the new company to the city for the use of streets. The expenses that will have a claim prior to the compensation are still to be determined.

2. USE OF CASH. A section binding the new company to spend all available cash now held by the lines for physical improvements of the new system. The amount of this cash is about $30,000,000, but it may be reduced slightly by costs of reorganization.

3. BONDS AND INTEREST. The new company will agree to refund [exchange] its 5 per cent bonds by selling new bonds at 4 per cent or less, if they can be sold. The 5 per cent bonds would then be retired.

Agree on Pension Plan.

Previous agreement that valuation of the properties should be omitted from the franchise and acceptance of the new company's obligation to set up a pension plan for its employés was confirmed at the meeting. Representatives of the lines and of their employés are attempting to work out a pension plan.

The chief issues that remain to be settled before a complete franchise can be drafted are the length of the experimental period for present rates of fare, the amount of compensation to the city and its position in relation to the company's other expenses, and the source of the estimated $8,790,000 needed to equip the subways with track, stations, escalators, and ventilating equipment.

Under the proposed franchise the new company will operate the city-owned subway now being built at a cost of $46,000,000, which does not include the cost of equipment.

Expect to Ask for More Time.

Ald. Quinn said yesterday that the city will apply for an extension of the Feb. 1 franchise deadline set by the federal Public Works administration in making its subway grant. As a condition of granting $18,000,000 toward the subway cost, the PWA provided that a unified franchise must be drawn by Feb. 1. The city is expected to ask an extension of 30 to 60 days.

AGREE TO SETTLE MINER CLAIM ON HARDING ESTATE

Settlement of the $25,000 claim of Julius H. Miner, Republican leader, against the estate of George F. Harding for $12,500 was expected today as a result of a conference of attorneys in the chambers of Probate Judge John F. O'Connell yesterday.

Miner said he advanced the money to Harding, then county treasurer of the Republican party, for campaign expenses in 1936 with the understanding that it would be paid back when contributions were sufficient. Harding died last April 2 still owing the money, according to Miner.

Attorney George W. Lennon, who helped Harding pay campaign bills, yesterday attacked the previous testimoney of George J. Halligan, a contractor who said he collected $73,000 for the party in 1936, most of it in checks made out to Harding. Lennon said he doubted if Halligan collected more than $1,500.

The attorneys will report this morning on details of the settlement.

ALDERMEN VOTE $162,504 TO BUY SUBWAY ROUTE

The city council finance committee yesterday approved payments totaling $162,504 for acquisition of rights of way for the subway. The payments, which are subject to final approval by the council, will be paid for easements to seven different properties in the vicinity of Milwaukee and Ashland avenues.

The Dearborn street section of the subway tunnel is to come above ground at Milwaukee and Ashland, where it connects with the Logan square-Humboldt park branch of the elevated line. To make the connection, the tunnel will be cut thru some private basements. Several buildings will be torn down.

BUILDERS OF CHICAGO (21)

By CALEB

PRECOCITY has seldom produced finer proof of its powers than the subject of the present sketch. An only son, William Rainey Harper was born in New Concord, Ohio, on July 26, 1856, and given every educational advantage by his parents. Receiving his A. B. degree from the Muskingum College at 14, he delivered his commencement oration in Hebrew; and spent the following three years at home in musical study—becoming proficient with every band instrument of the day.

Entering Yale for post-graduate study at 17, he won his Ph. D. two years later in Indo-European languages. Further scholastic degrees came in rapid succession—D. D. from Colby in 1881; LL. D. from the University of Nebraska in 1883; LL. D. from Yale in 1891; and the same honors from Johns Hopkins in 1893. Beginning with work at Masonic College, in Macon, Tenn., and Denison University at Granville, Ohio, he advanced to Professor of Hebrew in Baptist Union Theological Seminary; then Professor of Semitic Languages at Yale from 1886 to 1891, also Professor of Biblical Literature in the last two of those five years. He finally became President of the University of Chicago and head of its department of Semitic Languages, as well as director of Haskell Memorial Museum—from 1891 until his death. He was also a member of the Chicago Board of Education from 1896 to 1898.

Few men followed a more exemplary and meticulous life than Dr. Harper—every hour of his day being scheduled from 5:30 in the morning until midnight. Marrying Miss Ellen Paul of New Concord, at 19, his domestic life was as satisfying as his scholastic activities were brilliant. Not only was he recognized as America's foremost Hebrew scholar, but he reorganized and gave new impetus to the teaching of ancient languages, published numerous classical texts, and edited magazines—ultimately relinquishing these duties to raise funds for the University of Chicago; a task in which he truly excelled.

The University opened its doors on October 1, 1892, and during the fourteen years of Dr. Harper's presidency made remarkable progress. Generally recognized today as one of the world's greatest educational institutions—it fittingly commemorates the untiring labors by which he advanced its standing; and when he died, June 10, 1906, he had established a record as educator, businessman, and profound scholar rivaled by no other man. Accomplished in the short space of a fifty-year lifetime, Dr. William Rainey Harper's record ranks him with the city's worthiest builders and its most illustrious citizens.

NLRB INQUIRY REVEALS BIAS OF TRIAL OFFICIALS

Would Give Employer 'the Works,' Says One.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Testimony that Mapes Davidson, a National Labor board trial examiner, had written his chief in Washington that he would give "the works" to a company pleading a case before him if he had his way was introduced today into the record of the house committee investigating the board.

Other documents and oral testimony revealed that Martin Raphael, another examiner, had recessed a hearing so board officials could bolster a case by better preparation of evidence, and that William Seagle, a third examiner, was deprived of the right to hear cases when the board began an investigation—not yet completed—of his conduct in one hearing.

Letter Tells Intention.

Emund M. Toland, counsel for the investigators, placed in the record a letter written by Davidson to George O. Pratt, chief trial examiner in Washington, dated Feb. 12, 1938, in which Davidson reported on a hearing of a case involving the Hammond Redwood company, Eureka, Cal. He told his superior that so far as the merits of the controversy were concerned, "this respondent is going to be given 'the business' or 'the works' as others may call it." He added that "the situation is damnable and a disgrace to a free country."

Writing about an Omaha, Neb., hearing involving the Armour company, in February, 1938, Davidson told Pratt, "the case is in the bag." Davidson told the committee that he had recommended later that charges that the company had discriminatorily discharged 17 men be dismissed in all except three cases.

Hearing Delay Admitted.

Toland and Representative Charles A. Halleck [R., Ind.], a committee member, asked Raphael whether he recessed a hearing in Martinas, Cal., because the board had a weak case and because he wanted to build it up. The case concerned the California and Hawaiian Sugar Refining corporation.

Raphael said he took that action only because it appeared to him that the hearing would take a long time and should be reviewed with the aim of shortening the testimony.

Seagle testified that he had not acted as trial examiner in any board cases since last July when the board began to inquire into his conduct in a hearing involving the Stromberg Carlson Telephone Manufacturing company. He said at that time he was provoked by company attorneys into making statements that one of them had lied and that another was making a fool of himself.

OWNER OF CAFE AND 5 ARRESTED IN LIQUOR THEFT

Adolph Renucci, owner of Adolph's Italian restaurant at 1045 Rush street, and five young men were arrested yesterday in connection with the reported theft of $167 worth of liquor from Solomon's drugstore at 1121 North State street during the last two months.

The others in custody are Lawrence Duda, 4410 North Rockwell street; Vincent Ciccia, 814 Garfield boulevard; Edward Gapinski, 4627 South Taiman avenue, and Lamar Stubbs, colored, of 5025 Michigan avenue, all employés of Solomon's, and Frank Avery, colored, of 5937 Wabash avenue, a driver employed by Renucci. Renucci was charged with receiving stolen property.

Chicago avenue police said the others admitted selling the stolen liquor to him. All will be arraigned today in the Boys' court. Police said the drug store reported the loss of $2,700 worth of liquor during the last year.

CAMPBELL'S AID ROUTS BOOKIES IN LOS ANGELES

United States Attorney William J. Campbell, who is conducting a nation-wide campaign to cut off bootleg race news service to handbooks, announced yesterday that Samuel Klaus, his special assistant, had won a court victory in Los Angeles closing down wire service thruout California.

Los Angeles thus became the second large city to act against service to the bookies. The first action was taken here when Moses L. Annenberg agreed last month to cease operating his Nationwide News Service and its Illinois affiliate.

In Los Angeles Klaus obtained dismissal of a petition for a permanent injunction sought by operators of a scratch sheet to prevent discontinuance of their telephone service. He charged that the scratch sheet masked operation of a full wire information service to bookies. Kraus will go on to San Francisco, Indianapolis, and East St. Louis to take further action against the race news services.

CHARGES 2 FIRMS GOT HIS BUSINESS BY PRISON PLOT

Ex-Convict Claims He Was Forced to Sell.

Charles T. Davis, manufacturer of surgical supplies, who once was known as the millionaire convict, charged in a document filed in Circuit court yesterday that he had been forced to sell control of a $4,000,000 business in 1930 for $1,100,000. Davis said he was threatened with torture and told he would never leave Dannemora prison in New York alive unless he consented to the sale.

Charles T. Davis.

Davis' story, including a lurid account of alleged brutal proceedings in "Murder Alley" at the prison, was contained in an answer filed by his attorneys to a suit brought by Davis and Geck, Inc., and the American Cyanamid company. The plaintiffs ask an injunction to restrain Davis from doing business as a competitor, and seek an accounting of his present firm, Davis & Pitann, 1750 North Springfield avenue.

Charges Conspiracy and Fraud.

The answer, filed by Attorneys Paul Pomeroy and Charles H. Borden, charges Davis & Geck, Inc., and American Cyanamid gained control of Davis' original business by conspiracy and fraud.

In 1921 Davis shot and killed one of three detectives who came to his office in Brooklyn to question him about an alleged insurance swindle. He said he thought they were bandits. He was committed to the Matteawan hospital for the criminally insane, Beacon, N. Y. His wife, Henrietta, was made trustee of his shares of stock in his company. He owned 98 of 150.

In 1925 Davis was declared sane, tried for manslaughter, and sentenced to 10 to 20 years in prison. He was transferred a year later from Sing Sing to the Clinton prison at Dannemora. At Dannemora, the bill charges, prisoners were beaten and stabbed by guards and in one instance 248 of them were herded nude into a room and subjected to water shot at high pressure from a fire hose. "Murder alley" was the corridor between the prison and prison hospital where Davis alleges many wounded prisoners lost their lives.

Accuses Prisons Official.

Davis then charges that his wife fell under the influence of one Cornelius N. Tusynski [whom she later married]. A conspiracy to defraud him of his stock resulted, he alleges, with other parties to the conspiracy including the American Cyanamid company and Dr. Raymond F. C. Kieb, commissioner of corrections.

Davis said another inmate informed him of a plot to kill him. He said he became convinced he would be kept in prison for life unless he consented to the sale of his 65 per cent holdings in the corporation for $1,100,000. He was released Jan. 7, 1930, leaving the prison in a private railroad car with the money in his pocket. He lived in California until October, 1938, when he formed the Davis & Pitann company in Chicago.

His partners were Walter Pitann, Alexander I. Newman, Michael M. Newman, and Arthur Pitann. In an injunction petition which accompanied the answer, Davis said he was discharged as vice president of the new company on Sept. 12, 1939. He charges this violated his agreement with other members of the company and asks that they be restrained from using his name, that his agreement with them for use of his patents be rescinded, and that his property be returned to him.

FIRST OF INDICTED BUILDING TRADES GROUP GIVE BOND

Defendants in the first indictments returned by the federal grand jury investigating alleged trade restraints in the building industry in Chicago began surrendering yesterday at the office of William H. McDonnell, United States marshal. The 41 corporations and individuals named Monday will be given a few days to appear voluntarily, McDonnell said. After that, the government will start arresting them.

Among the first to surrender were officials of the Ceramic, Mosaic, and Encaustic Tile Layers' union, local 67, who were accompanied by their lawyer, Benjamin H. Vanderveld. Each was fingerprinted and posted a $1,000 bond to insure his appearance at the trial.

Today the grand jury is scheduled to begin hearing evidence on alleged violations in the plywood industry. This and other investigations are expected to require about four more months. Nearly 400 more witnesses are scheduled to be heard.

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday issued 17 additonal suppressed subpenas for individuals, contractors and manufacturers in the stone industry which is expected to follow the plywood inquiry.

Horner Names Dr. R. R. Cross Assistant Health Director

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 16 (AP).—Gov. Horner today appointed Dr. Roland R. Cross of Dahlgren, Ill., as assistant director of the state department of public health. Dr. Cross, 51, has been superintendent of the health department's district office with headquarters in Dahlgren, Hamilton county. He fills a position which has been vacant since Oct. 23, 1937, when Dr. A. C. Baxter, present health director, was named acting director of the department. Cross was an officer in the army medical corps during the world war.

BETTE DAVIS LEADS FOR QUEEN OF MOVIES; GREENE TOPS 'KINGS'

New York, Jan. 16 [Special].—Richard Greene and Bette Davis continued to lead today in the second day's voting to select the king and queen of the movies for 1940.

Leaders in the race for the kingship and the points each received were: Greene, 4,815; Tyrone Power, 3,953; James Stewart, 3,699; Mickey Rooney, 3,558, and Errol Flynn, 3,367. Those leading for queen were: Miss Davis, 7,908; Sonja Henie, 4,438; Priscilla Lane, 4,336; Alice Faye, 3,053, and Judy Garland, 3,021.

The contest is sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the New York Daily News and 53 other newspapers in key cities. Readers from among the 22 million reached by the participating newspapers list their choices. A vote for first place yields 3 points, second place, 2 points, and third place, 1 point.

15 CLIENTS SEEK LEGAL AID UNDER REFERENCE PLAN

Lawyers' Bureau Opened by Bar Association.

After two days' operations the new lawyer reference plan of the Chicago Bar association, intended to bring client and attorney together, has attracted 15 prospective litigants, those in charge said yesterday. The 15 prospective litigants have found their new counselors and paid them $3 in advance for preliminary consultations.

Walter T. Fisher.

The plan was started Monday in the bar association headquarters at 29 South La Salle street. Walter T. Fisher is chairman of the plan committee.

Under the plan a list of lawyers available for consultation is kept at association headquarters. A prospective client is directed to one of these attorneys and is charged $3 for a half hour consultation, or $5 for an hour. After that, arrangements are made between attorney and client. Any dispute over fees is arbitrated by the bar association committee on legal fees.

400 Attorneys Apply.

The service is intended for members of middle and low income groups, altho any one may apply. Formerly legal aid bureaus provided free counsel to the poor, but all other persons in need of legal representation were compelled to select a lawyer from the law directory.

More than 400 attorneys have applied for a place on the plan's roster, and additional applications are being received from day to day.

"And they are not the poor young attorneys either," commented Fisher. "A great many of them are well established—specialists in their line. For instance, we have the name of an aeronautical attorney, an oil and gas lease specialist—and of course a great many practitioners in the fields of real estate law, probate, wills, and trusts. We will soon separate them into classes so that reference will be simplified."

Three Clients Are Women.

Of the first 15 clients three were women. Two of them sought divorces, charging desertion, and a third hoped to collect on an insurance policy. She had feared, she told interviewers, to see a lawyer, whose fee might be more than her insurance.

Two of the men were evading claims of their wives. One, without funds, complained that his spouse took him to court constantly. He balked at the $3 charge for half an hour's conference with an attorney.

"I'll just keep on going to court," he said as he left.

The problem of a man who constructed a building without a permit, of a type which violated the zoning in his district, was uncovered. Another, who has spent a number of weeks in the county jail on a judgment with a malice count, appeared to sue for false arrest.

5 STATE INSTITUTIONS CANCEL MEAT ORDERS; ANALYSIS IS AWAITED

Five state institutions have canceled orders for meat from the Circle Packing company of East St. Louis, Ill., pending further investigation of the cause of a gastro-intestinal illness which affected 104 patients at the Manteno state hospital. This was announced yesterday in Springfield by A. L. Bowen, director of the state department of public welfare.

John Weigel, acting fiscal supervisor of the department, said a gas forming bacteria was found in the ham served at the Manteno institution. He said the packing company, which supplied the ham, was coöperating in the effort to determine the reason for the presence of the bacteria. A complete laboratory analysis is expected tomorrow. All those made ill at Manteno have recovered.

The Circle company also supplied meat to the St. Charles School for Boys, the Elgin state hospital, the Anna state hospital, and the Soldiers' and Sailors' home at Quincy.

NEWSPAPER ADS ARE GIVEN CREDIT FOR MIAMI'S RISE

Florida City Is Boosted as Winter Resort.

BY FREDERIC BABCOCK.

This is the story of what newspaper advertising has done for one American city.

A quarter of a century ago Miami was attracting about 2,000 visitors annually. This winter it will attract at least 2 million.

In 1915 the revenue accruing from these visits was almost negligible. This year it will total something like 200 million dollars in the greater Miami area.

Once Passed the Hat.

In the early days Mayor E. G. Sewell and others who believed in the future of their city had to pass the hat to get enough money to "put a few ads in the northern newspapers, so that maybe we can get somebody down here to go fishing." In these days the advertisments are blanketing the nation. As much of $350,000 has been spent in one year.

Not so long ago Miami was an alligator infested little town, known to northerners principally for the fact that about once in every four years it nearly got its head blown off by a tropical hurricane. Today it is known by the fact that it has become America's foremost winter playground.

Its whole history has been like that. The melodrama reached its climax in the boom year of 1926, when land worth perhaps $50 a front foot was selling for $5,000 a front foot. Five years later, at the height—or depths—of the depression, the owners of that land scarcely could have given it away.

The Boom Is On Again.

Now the boom is on again, even tho it is not accompanied by any such hysteria as marked the land and building craze of 14 years ago. Last year the building permits for the metropolitan area went above the 32 million dollar mark—the highest per capita record reached anywhere in the United States.

Times are so good there that the figures are almost unbelievable. A few examples: The Widener Challenge Cup Derby at Hialeah Park March 2 will be for $50,000 in prize money; the international four-ball matches at the Miami Biltmore Country club March 3 to 6 will be for $5,000; the current fifth annual fishing tourney has $10,000 worth of awards; it is estimated that visitors will have spent 100 million dollars to fish in that vicinity before the end of the season.

Miami claims it is playing host to the greatest winter trade in the world. And newspaper advertising, say Mayor Sewell and the chamber of commerce officials, turned the trick.

MINNESOTA MAPS DRIVE TO SPUR TOURIST TRADE

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 16 [Special].—Minnesota has decided to go after its share of the increased tourist business which is expected in 1940. It will do so thru a unified advertising and publicity campaign. Following a meeting called by Victor A. Johnston, director of the state tourist bureau, a committee of fifteen business and civic leaders has gone to work to coordinate the efforts of the various resort areas. The committee will direct all the expenditures of funds.

I have been told that there is one place in the United States where traffic is on the left hand of the street. Where is it, and why is this so? W. F.

The Canal Zone, which is under control of the American government—altho not strictly speaking a part of the United States. The zone has nearly 200 miles of highways on which all traffic goes to the left and where a right hand driver draws a $2 fine. The same system obtains in the Republic of Panama. When work was started on the canal in 1904, thousands of colored laborers were imported from Jamaica and other islands of the British West Indies, where left hand driving is the custom. After several disastrous experiences in trying to teach the imported truck drivers and chauffeurs to keep to the right, the authorities finally gave in and traffic has held to the left ever since.

What is the capital of Martinique? What else is to be seen on that island? F. R. H.

Fort de France. The town of St. Pierre, destroyed by the eruption of Mont Pelée in 1902, is worth a visit and the auto trip across the island is one of the finest in the West Indies.

I have been confused by various reports as to whether the Golden Gate International exposition will be held again this year at San Francisco. What are the facts? C. N. McE.

It has now been definitely decided to reopen the fair May 25 and to continue it until Sept. 29.

When is Garden week to be held in Virginia? L. M.

April 22 to 27. At that time historical estates thruout the state will be opened up to visitors.

SCHEDULE MORE SHORT CRUISES FOR OCEAN LINER

New York, Jan. 16 [Special].—Convinced that this is to be a year of short cruises, the Holland-American Line has decided to extend its current program into next May and to schedule eight additional voyages. The decision followed the Nieuw Amsterdam's recent eight day cruise to Miami and Havana with 600 passengers.

The Nieuw Amsterdam's 46 day journey around South America, originally scheduled to begin Feb. 8, has been withdrawn to carry out the new plan. Cancellation also makes this vessel available to cover the series of cruises which had been arranged for the Statendam.

In the new program there will be seven identical trips, each lasting 12 days, to the Virgin Islands, Curacao, Venezuela, and Cuba, and an eight day voyage to Haiti and Cuba at Easter time.

Air Trade of Americas on Increase, Port Shows

Miami, Fla., Jan. 16 [Special].—Trade carried on by air between the Americas has increased to more than 55,000 individual shipments a year thru the International Pan-American airport here. This is in addition to the channels of air express between the United States and Latin America by way of Brownsville, Tex., and Los Angeles, Cal.

GAY RIO DANGLES CARNIVAL LURE BEFORE TOURISTS

Four Days of Pageantry Planned Next Month.

BY ANTHONY PATRIC.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil [By Mail].—Brazil is laying plans to attract a large number of North Americans who, because of the war, are barred from visiting the old world this year.

An effort is being made by the municipality to induce tourists to visit this capital early in February and enjoy the four days of madness characteristic of the closing of the carnival season.

Carnival in Rio is a 60 to 70 day show climaxed by corsos, a battle of flowers, parades, and dancing in the streets, and the official fancy dress ball.

Nictheroy Puts On Shows.

Across the bay from this city and reached by ferryboat, Nictheroy, capital of the state of Rio de Janeiro, is putting on a series of shows and entertainments in the hope of getting its share of the visitors. Icarahy beach, adjoining that city's residential district, is one of the marvels of Guanabara bay. A new de luxe hotel and a fashionable casino are among its attractions.

The government of the state of Rio de Janeiro has organized scenic excursions into the hinterland from Nictheroy. The tours include districts where Brazil's castles of the imperial era have been kept up by the descendants of the barons and dukes who played leading rôles during the dynasty of the house of Braganca.

Rush Work On Huge Park.

The federal government also is working toward the further development of the tourist trade in the interior. It is rushing the creation of a huge park and the building of a modern hotel in the Iguazu Falls country. Communications between Rio and the falls have been improved.

Bahia, Recife [Pernambuco], and Fortaleza, leading cities on the northeastern coast, are building hotels and adopting measures to make themselves more attractive to travelers. They are capitalizing on the fact that they have a Brazilian flavor with a touch of the colonial era and remnants of the brief Dutch occupation.

So far the war has not materially affected the cost of living in Brazil.

New Orleans' $500,000 Zoo Project Is Completed

New Orleans, La., Jan. 16 [Special].—New Orleans has completed its $500,000 zoölogical gardens. Spreading over a semitropical expanse of Audubon park, the zoo is bordered on one side by the levees of the Mississippi river. It is already proving to be the city's leading outdoor attraction for visitors.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities."—From the Farewell Address.

BLOCKADE BY PREDATORY CRUISE.

Great Britain, in a reply to the protest of the twenty-one American nations against the naval warfare in the proclaimed safety zone, says that extension of neutral waters from the three to a 300 mile limit cannot be recognized. The British say that the only condition upon which such a limitation of sea activity could be accepted would be the barring of all German ships, merchant vessels as well as warships, from the zone.

Sea power could not submit to a new rule which gave immunity to the merchant marine of the enemy plying between American ports, carrying cargoes and making money for a hostile country. So long as the enemy shipping is within the zone only the three mile limit of neutral waters can be respected. Elsewhere the British and French navies must be allowed to seek the enemy where he can be found.

Our state department at least surely was not astonished to get this reply. The protesting nations cannot put up a very good argument for the arbitrary attempt to keep warships out of a zone of such distance from their shores and, of course, they won't enforce their proclamation, altho it has already cost the American treasury a neat sum of money to patrol the waters. The British doctrine of blockade is derived from the American. It is what Judah Benjamin, in protest against the federal sea operations, called the "predatory cruise."

Burton Hendricks, in his new work on the statesmanship of the confederacy, refers to an extraordinary long shot of British diplomacy which he says illustrates the acumen of long term British foreign policy.

Mr. Wilson and Mr. Lansing encountered it fifty years later. Lord John Russell, for Great Britain, accepted the civil war federal doctrine of the continuous voyage. He agreed that federal warships had a right to seize British vessels carrying goods to Mexico and to British ports, such as Nassau, it being obvious that the supplies landed would be transshipped to the confederacy.

The British shippers were indignant, Russell was accused of surrendering British prestige to Yankee arrogance, and the confederate officials blistered him for his failure to enforce the rights of neutrals, but in spite of his attitude in other respects toward the north—he was working for the recognition of southern independence—he persisted in acknowledging the right of seizure of British ships carrying British goods to British ports.

Russell was allowing Mr. Lincoln's government to establish a precedent which would be invaluable to British sea power in later days, when, as he apparently perceived, the old blockade of complete circumvallation would not be effective. He was getting rid of the Declaration of Paris and the only price he paid for it was a relatively small financial injury to British shippers, who were being enriched by the war in spite of their occasional losses.

DEFEATISM OR POLICY?

Thomas E. Dewey said in the speech which opened his campaign for the Republican nomination that Mr. Roosevelt's whole attitude toward the national problem is one of defeatism. The New Deal reply was that Mr. Dewey is a very young man, an infant out beyond his depth. That wasn't an answer and it didn't hurt Dewey.

Senator Robert Taft, another of the Republican candidates for President, said that the budget could be balanced. Mr. Roosevelt offered a handsome prize to anybody who would show him. Mr. Taft in a speech showed how a beginning could be made. Mr. Roosevelt replied that Senator Taft's plan couldn't get 8 million dollars out of an 8 billion dollar budget. It would seem that Mr. Roosevelt confesses that Mr. Dewey's charge is true. He says he can't stop the increasing of deficits and debts.

No one can be at all certain that the New Deal regards the monetary situation of the United States as defeat or a disaster. The debt is now up over 42 billion and so many vested interests have been established in the distribution of the treasury funds that the New Dealers say it would be political destruction for anybody to stop these outflows of money to the interests they benefit.

The New Dealers won't do it and if they are continued in office they will go headlong on the same road they have been traveling. That road leads to a communist-Nazi state by way of bankruptcy. The present nation cannot survive a continuation of the New Deal budget system. Inasmuch as the end would be inevitable, it is suggested that the purpose must be deliberate.

HIGHER PRICES FOR COAL.

Within the department of the interior is something known as the bituminous coal division, successor to the National Bituminous Coal commission in the business of price fixing. Within the division is something known as the consumers' counsel division, which is supposed to represent the consumers' viewpoint. The director of the consumers' counsel division, a Mr. Kirgis, observed the other day that the price schedules prepared by the government were going to increase the nation's coal bill by 44 million dollars.

Mr. Kirgis viewed with equanimity this increase to be paid by other people, including the poor. It was not an exorbitant price, in his judgment, for what he called the stabilization of the industry. Further than that, he saw in the higher prices a step toward what he called equalizing the costs between domestic consumers and industries. With ill concealed pride he showed that the householders will have to pay a mere 9 cents a ton more for their coal whereas the industrial buyers will have to pay a full 20 cents a ton more. Evidently the burocratic mind expects the householder to rejoice at the rise in the cost of living in the knowledge that factories are being gouged even more.

Maybe so. Maybe the consumers of both varieties will continue to buy coal as before and to buy as much as before; and then again, maybe they won't. There is today sharp competition between fuels. The increase in the price of coal may be large enough to induce more customers to change to oil or gas. Many did prefer the other fuels even at the former price ratio. One consequence of the 44 million dollar increase, therefore, may be a considerable shrinkage of the market for coal.

Consumers of coal are by no means without a defense against rising prices. Of late there has been an astonishing improvement in the efficiency of furnaces, and with the stimulus of higher prices for fuel technical progress in this direction is likely to be accelerated. In any event it is altogether probable that many domestic and industrial users who have not as yet installed modern coal burning apparatus will be encouraged to do so, and this, too, must result in a declining demand for coal.

The principal cause of the sickness of the mining industry is an inadequate volume of business. Mr. Kirgis speaks of a stabilization of the industry as if the new schedule were likely to promote it. On the contrary, the increase is almost certain to aggravate the difficulties by reducing the demand for coal. Consumers will find other fuels or more efficient ways of burning coal and in the end the miners and their employers will be worse off than before. They may receive a slightly higher price for each ton they sell, but they will be lucky, indeed, if the loss of tonnage will not take away more than the higher price brings in.

TVA'S UTTER FALLACY.

Mr. Roosevelt, in a message to congress covering the TVA report, said the belief that the Tennessee Valley project was primarily for the development of electric power was an utter fallacy. The authority reports now on the possibilities of converting the six state area under it into a great governmentally owned and operated playground—a playground, it may be supposed, primarily for the New Deal playboys who are playing with it.

The actual utter fallacy is the idea that the Tennessee Valley authority is anything but a socialistic power enterprise. If it were not for electric power there would be no TVA. If only flood control and navigation had been considered the army engineers would have done the job and the socialists would not have gone near the area.

The dams would have been smaller, the expense much less, and the planned society wouldn't have given the project a thought. The natural wild life of the hills could have played all over the playground without attracting any attention from the collectivists who now regard TVA as the apple of their eye. Everybody connected with this enterprise has endeavored from the beginning to deny that the real purpose is the real purpose.

Editorial of the Day

[Des Moines Register.]

President Roosevelt offered informally to give Senator Taft a "very handsome prize" if he would supply a bill of particulars on how to balance the budget in two years. The question is invariably put to any one who urges federal retrenchment. It was put to Mr. Roosevelt himself in 1932, when he promised to cut the Hoover budget by 25 per cent.

It is futile, Mr. Roosevelt said in 1932, to expect "any important economy" from an administration [he was speaking of Mr. Hoover's administration] "committed to the idea that we ought to center control of everything in Washington as rapidly as possible." For centralization of control necessarily involves the creation of "the unprecedented burocracy that has assembled in Washington in the past four years." It involves the establishment of "the innumerable boards and commissions which have grown up as excrescences on the regular system."

And it involves, when it reaches the proportions of the Hoover budget of 1932 [which was several billion dollars smaller than the present budget] an increase of federal expenditures at "the most reckless and extravagant pace that I have ever been able to discover in the statistical record of any peacetime government anywhere, any time."

So the answer to the question, "Where would you cut costs?" may be the answer Mr. Roosevelt himself made in 1932: "You cannot go very far with any real economy without a complete change of concept of what are the proper functions and limits of the federal government itself."

We wonder whether Mr. Roosevelt would care to repeat that principle now.

"I am as certain as any mortal man can be of anything in the future [said the 1932 Roosevelt] that from the moment we set our hands openly and frankly and courageously to this problem, we shall have reached the end of our long, hard, downward road, and shall have started on the upward trail. . . . Join me, and let's go."

We commend this address to Senator Taft. It should win the "very handsome prize" of some kind, certainly.

UNSELFISH.

There had been a nasty head-on car collision and both drivers were waiting for the police to come for particulars.

Sandy offered MacTavish, with whom he had collided, his flask. "Have a drapple," he said.

After MacTavish had had several "drappies," he remarked to Sandy:

"It's nearly all gone. Why don't you have a drapple yourself?"

"No fear, mon," said Sandy, "not until the policeman's been."—Lor

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

A TOUGH GUY TALKS.

So "Gone with the Wind" has its special double extra supercolossal grand première in Chicago come St. Polycarp's day, after opening in Atlanta, Ga., New York, N. Y., Cincinnati, O., and dozens of other burgs, does it? So what! Try and get us to join the merry throng of boys and girls about town that night. Send us a couple of ducats and an engraved invitation looking like a bid to Windsor's and Wally's wedding, and watch us foam at the mouth.

Not that we got a grudge against "Gone with the Wind." We're for it, and we'll go, paying our way, when we get good and ready. But we've been to one of these supercolossal movie openings by invitation, and "never again" is our battle cry.

"In Old Chicago" it was, about two years back. We had a hunch to stay away, but got sucked into it. The crowd milling around Randolph and Clark looked like the second Haymarket riot. It was raining, too, and we had to batter a way thru the ticketless goofs, inch by inch, getting wetter and madder every second. Searchlights hit us in the eye and gave us the blind staggers. Photogs shot bombs off by our ear.

When we got to the entrance, cops were herding the ticket holders, two by two like Noah's animals, thru a narrow opening. Once in the lobby, we found that nobody was moving at all. Every one took root to watch a few fifth rate movie actors in the flesh posing for their pictures. We spent 15 minutes getting from the doorsill to our seat. Those gawkers were tougher than Southern Cal. inside the 10 yard line.

Coming out was worse. The crowd moved like wooden Indians, and when we finally got to the door we discovered why. There were two files of beefy cops from the building line to the gutter, and they wouldn't let you turn down the sidewalk. Walk away? Jeepers creepers, of course not! You had to go to the curb and wait for your town car to roll up with Jeeves at the wheel, and get photographed for the newsreels. We said to one of these harness bulls, "Since when a law against walking on the sidewalk?" and he said, "Orders, chief, orders." If he hadn't grinned when he said it, we would have socked him, for all his 240 pounds.

So we went to the curb and down into the gutter, ankle deep in mud, and escaped along the car track.

Never again!

SONNET TO A CANARY.

Your lilting song comes quickly to a close
As I approach your cage. With wings outspread
You fiercely rush to peck my hand, my head,
And on my finger strike a warlike pose,
Your raucous voice resembling most a crow's.
Using my sleeve as ladder, you are led
To scale my shoulder without fear or dread,
Thence to attack my ear, my cheek, my nose.

You tiny bird! You bit of yellow fluff!
You know no faint regard for might or size!
Would I were made of that same sort of stuff,
That I might see life bravely, thru your eyes,
That I might see each fight as so much fun,
Instead of one more chance to turn and run!

Chat in the A. Conan Doyle Club.

Apropos of Conan Doyle, I am reminded of two books of his concerning a character, utterly obscure as a hero of fiction when compared with the famous Holmes, but to me, when I made his acquaintance many years ago, far more fascinating.

The two volumes, now regrettably out of print, bore the titles, "The Adventures of Gerard" and "The Exploits of Brigadier Gerard."

They were made up of short stories in which a delightfully boastful old gentleman sits by his fire and relives his youth by telling his grandchildren of his incredible exploits as a brigadier in Napoleon's crack regiment of hussars. And what breath-taking adventures they were!

Listen to a sample of old Gerard's gusto:

"The Guards lead the Grand Army. The Cavalry lead the Guards. The Hussars lead the Cavalry, but I, mes enfants, I lead the Hussars."

When I sit by my fire these winter evenings fantasy sometimes takes me by the hand, and then I am sure that the ghost of the Brigadier rides again. This time he leads a regiment of hussars on skis—in Finland.

The People's Choice in Old Masters.

How they batted in the Italian old masters' exhibition:

Greatest favorite: Raphael's "Madonna of the Chair."

Most praised by artists: Titian's "Pope Paul III.," with Tintoretto's "St. Augustine Healing the Plague-stricken" a close second.

The women's choice: Correggio's "Madonna and Child."

Commonest question: "What does the band about the forehead of the Madonna in Michelangelo's bas-relief signify?" Correct answer to it, supplied by one of the Italian commissioners: "Nothing; it's merely a decoration."

LINES BY A PROBLEM CHILD.

Been born grown up. Some day
When I'm great big it won't be bad
To talk as grownups may.

When I replied to Mrs. Greer,

LEAD POISONING IN CHILDREN.

YES, infants and children are subject to lead poisoning. This statement may seem strange, as we have been accustomed to assume that only workers in lead could absorb enough of this substance to produce trouble. Nevertheless, babies find many sources, altho toy manufacturers are exceedingly careful to omit this material from their colored paints.

We can account for this situation because every tot will put everything and anything into the mouth. Furthermore, the period of teething is especially dangerous, as blocks and other wooden articles may be chewed to the point of destruction. Other origins include unwashed fruit that has been sprayed with insecticide, articles of furniture, and lead nipple shields. Only rarely can the water supply be blamed. Sometimes dyes used in cooking have a metallic base.

Symptoms, of course, depend upon the amount that is taken in—either via the digestive tract or the skin. As a rule, beginning signs include digestive upsets with unaccountable abdominal cramps. The child will be pale, weight will drop, and considerable weakness will become obvious. In addition, discomfort, irritability, and fretfulness are characteristic. Constipation is marked and vomiting is seldom absent. In severe instances twitching of the hands—or even convulsions—may be observed. There may be enough inflammation of some of the nerves to bring about paralysis.

Fortunately, we have in X-ray films an excellent diagnostic aid and—with other causes eliminated—the physician may have recourse to these shadow pictures—particularly of the long bones. If a heavy band appears—indicating greater density near the growing ends—we may suspect lead.

A 14 month old babe presented indications of poisoning and X-rays disclosed heavy deposits of the metal. The mother was unable to furnish the slightest clew. An inspection of the home, however, revealed a row of freshly painted shelves in the pantry. Crawling about, the lad had been chewing and licking the smooth edges.

Another patient, 3½ years old, had been vomiting intermittently for four weeks. Occasionally she complained of burning sensations in the abdomen. Because her history was so puzzling a search of the living quarters was made. It was learned that old battery boxes had been used for kindling and the girl had inhaled enough of the fumes to occasion her distress.

Such cases are usually not dangerous if they can be recognized early. A blood examination will help, as the appearance of certain cells is typical. As we would expect, recovery is prompt if the portion ingested is small. With the nervous system profoundly affected, however, some fatalities have ensued.

Treatment consists, of course, in stopping all contacts with lead, and naturally all toys [and there should be none these days] that have been coated with lead paint should be removed. If a wooden crib or bedstead is assigned to the youngster, it may be necessary to cover all exposed parts with cotton sheeting—at least until the teething stage is over.

We may look upon the metal—once it enters the skeleton—as relatively harmless, and a diet rich in phosphorus will be curative. It may be necessary for a time to administer disodium phosphate either alone or in conjunction with a moderate allowance of lime. Even after all manifestations have disappeared it is well to keep in mind that the bones may contain a fair percentage. Hence it is essential that the condition known as acidosis shall not be permitted to develop, as some of the element may then move out of storage and enter the circulation. In every acute illness, therefore—even a cold—small bits of alkali will be helpful.

We must remember that our little ones are in a very delicate balance and it takes but a tiny quantity of lead to bring on discomfort.

PROBABLY NOT.

M. O. writes: After an operation on my head, followed by X-ray treatments, I lost my hair. Will it ever grow back again?

REPLY.

Not likely. Loss of hair following X-ray treatments may be permanent.

RECEDING CHIN.

T. M. writes: Is a receding chin an inherited characteristic? Is there anything that can be done to bring it forward permanently?

REPLY.

Sometimes a family trait. Oftimes correcting the occlusion of the teeth will restore symmetry.

YES.

M. D. writes: Could tonsilitis cause one to be nervous?

REPLY.

Any chronic infection which tends to lower one's general health may be a factor in increasing nervousness. The toxins produced by growing streptococci are no doubt responsible in your case.

THEY WON'T HARM YOU.

A. G. writes: I've often read that it is not good to have too many draperies in the bedroom. I sleep in a room with five pairs. Will it affect my health?

REPLY.

Not at all. Some persons curtain their beds as well as their windows.

PROBABLY A CRAMPED POSITION.

Mrs. J. K. writes: What causes the left foot to swell when I ride in an automobile?

REPLY.

Swelling of one leg is usually due to some obstruction to the return flow of blood. A cramped position, pressure, etc., may be responsible.

FALLING LASHES.

M. G. writes: What causes the lashes on the lower lid to fall out? I do not use a darkener.

REPLY.

Probably an infection of the hair follicles. Hot applications and mild antiseptic ointments, etc., are of value.

IT MAY HELP.

N. V. writes: Will the taking of mineral oil daily do away with gas?

REPLY.

If due to constipation the oil may help. In some cases, however, the practice may give rise to gas formation.

A NERVE IRRITATION.

G. M. R. writes: What is peripheral neuritis?

REPLY.

An irritation or inflammation of one or more nerves. The trouble is usually located in the terminal portion.

SEPTIC SORE THROAT.

J. T. writes: What are the symptoms of septic sore throat?

REPLY.

Pain on swallowing, fever, rapid pulse, and prostration are usually present. In such a malady skilled medical care is required.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY W. A. O'CARROLL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia.—The commonwealth government's greatest windfall in its defense policy, so far, has come from the Australian Council of Trades Unions. Unexpectedly, it indorsed the government's decision to enlist a volunteer force of 20,000 "for service at home or abroad."

In uncompromising opposition to the sending of troops abroad remains the political wing of the Labor movement.

Conscription for home defense—called universal service—will not precipitate a crisis between the Labor faction and the government. Labor once recoiled from compulsion in any circumstances.

The late Prime Minister Joseph A. Lyons gave a preëlection pledge on the present government's behalf not to apply conscription for service abroad unless indorsed by a referendum of the people. R. G. Menzies, Lyons' successor, has said that he would not hesitate to introduce universal service and that he was prepared to consider the taking of a referendum on the issue of service abroad—when and if that became necessary. Twice during the previous war voters defeated conscription.

The Australian tradition is the volunteer system. Any one who would try to change it would expose himself and his party to serious risks. Yet there remain some politicians and home front patriots who continue to urge the rushing abroad of Australian troops. Others claim that the empire's cause would be served better by Australians standing to for the defense of Australia.

Minister for Defense Street has announced in the house of representatives that Britain had not asked Australia for men and had advised that the best present contribution Australia could make was to provide for her own defense. The Sydney Sun commented: "The statement should silence those who are urging the dispatch of an expeditionary force to Europe. Great Britain and France between them can control all the man power necessary to hold the present front and to attack when expedient. . . . The British factories may be hard pressed, and Britain may be glad of such reserves as we can send her."

An Australian air expeditionary force of six squadrons of men has been offered to Britain by the government. They will operate as an Australian force in British machines. There seems little doubt that troops also will be sent abroad, not necessarily to Europe.

SALE OF FARM PRODUCTS.

Chicago, Jan. 11 [Legal Friend of the People].—Is there a law that would stop a farmer from bringing and selling eggs and poultry in restricted areas in Chicago posted with signs "no peddlers allowed"? These eggs and poultry would be bought and resold. Is a license required? U. B.

Illinois Revised Statutes, chapter 5, section 91, says that "Every farmer . . . shall have an undisputed right to sell the produce of his farm . . . in any place or market where such articles are usually sold. . . ." This state law would overcome any city ordinances to the contrary if the conflict should be clear, but there is room for doubt as to the meaning of the phrase "in any place or market." As we understand it, you would plan to sell on the street and if this is the "place or market" referred to in the statute, then it cannot be said that in the area in question farm produce is "usually sold" there.

As a practical matter, it seems probable that it will not be worth your while to pay the expenses of litigation, consequently the important point is to determine the attitude of the administrative officials. For this purpose you can try asking the police, either in person or by letter.

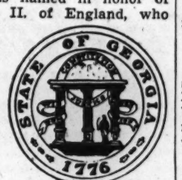
How Our States Got Their Names

9. GEORGIA.

Georgia was named in honor of King George II. of England, who granted the charter permitting settlement in 1732. It was named by James Oglethorpe and his associates, who came to the new world a year later. Georgia was one of the original states.



Georgia state seal. The device pictures an arch and three pillars engraved "Constitution," "Wisdom," "Justice," and "Moderation."

Georgia's nicknames are the Buzzard, Cracker, and Goober state, the Empire State of the South, and the Yankee Land of the South. It became known as the Buzzard state after passage of a law protecting those birds. The Cracker cognomen is said to come from the name given to its pre-civil war lower class white residents. Goober is a nickname for peanut, a Georgia crop. The other two names are intended to indicate that Georgia possesses an enterprise and industrial development more comparable to northern states than to southern ones.

The Georgia state motto is "Wisdom, Justice, Moderation." The state song is "Georgia," the flower the Cherokee rose, and the bird the brown thrasher.

ABOUT HYBRID CORN.

Weyauwega, Wis., Jan. 10.—I feel it necessary to correct some of the statements made in the article, "Hybrid Corn Upsets Crop Control Plan" [Jan. 7]. The article states that "one bushel of hybrid seed will plant six acres of corn yielding from 10 to 30 per cent more grain than ordinary corn" and "one bushel of ordinary corn will seed an acre and costs 50 cents a bushel."

This is not only incorrect but it is ridiculous. One bushel of open pollinated seed corn will plant just as much as one bushel of hybrid seed corn. Any farmer knows this. It is a fact that most farmers plant their corn too thickly and do not plant over three or four acres with one bushel of seed when using either open pollinated or hybrid seed.

The build-up for sale of hybrid seed corn thru the press and the radio was tremendous last spring and resulted in good sales, but from information gleaned talking to many farmers, who say "never again," I am sure the repeat orders are not going to be so great.

One of our best informed men on hybrid seed corn in this state recently said: "We have learned a lot about hybrid seed corn but have a lot more to learn. The worst enemy of hybrid seed corn is the seed salesman who makes too enthusiastic claims for it. We believe a true hybrid will outyield ordinary open pollinated seed by 10 or 12 per cent, but if a good farmer told me that his open pollinated seed corn outyielded the hybrid seed I would believe him." These are quotations from a man who gives most of his time to the development of hybrid seed corn. I have grown hybrid corn two different years and planted the hybrid seed by the side of our open pollinated seed and each time the open pollinated came off the winner.

The work of detassling the female rows in raising hybrid seed is so complicated and has to be done so thoroly and often that personally I believe one-half of labeled hybrid seed corn is not hybrid corn at all since it has been fertilized with pollen from its own stock and insofar as this happens it is another inbred.

Having been responsible for the operations on one farm for the last 27 years and during that time having grown, cured, and marketed about $40,000 worth of seed corn, I have some rather definite ideas on the relative value of the two kinds of seed.

EVIDENCE OF OVEREMPHASIS.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—THE TRIBUNE, or at least its sports department, professes to believe that football is not overemphasized. And, in order to prove its belief, it sends a flock of its sports writers to interview presidents of the Big Ten colleges and of Notre Dame to get their reactions to Chicago's decision to junk football. Printed under eight column headlines, these interviews have all run over a column in length. Can you tell us anything that Chicago ever did in the scholastic field that got even a small fraction of that much publicity?

Football is overemphasized? No, indeed.

DUTY ON A GIFT.

Roanoke, Ill., Jan. 5.—This Christmas we received a package at our local postoffice, sent by a sister in Canada, for which we had to pay $1.35 duty. Upon opening we found a little luncheon set that cost $1.50 altogether. We were told that if we refused to accept the package the donor would have to pay return postage.

Is there not a ruling that Christmas gifts, if not valuable, come thru duty free?

MRS. R. T. RODAWAY.

TAFT AND DEWEY.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—I would like to suggest that you start the ball moving for Mr. Taft as President and Dewey for Vice President. That combination could not be beaten. Industry and business would start moving like never before.

M. M. HUEBSCH.

JACKSON BOULEVARD BUSES.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—When are the people who depend on the Jackson boulevard motor bus service going to get some relief? We were promised better service with the new buses, and I must say the new buses are wonderful; they are warm and speedy, that is, if one is fortunate enough, after waiting 10 minutes, to get on one. The buses are not 10 minutes apart, but they just whizz by, so crowded that we know that the driver cannot open the door. Then one comes with a tiny bit of space and 10 people try to get on where there is room for only one. Yesterday I was crushed against the fare register for several blocks.

Why can't we have a few buses starting at Kostner avenue for those of us who live east of there? Also, why not a bus for the school children who ride for half fare and take up more than half the bus, thus keeping adults who must get to work standing on the corner? When we get to Central Park about 15 to 28 girls get off; then at Kedzie from 8 to 15 boys alight. From there on there is some room in the bus, but from Karlov avenue to Central Park the crushing is terrible.

VIRGINIA FRANKS.

A WAY TO ENFORCE NEUTRAL RIGHTS.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Can our foreign trade and our shipping move only by the gracious permission of an alien consul or be directed in its course by an alien force? Is there no other remedy than the writing of despicable little schoolboyish notes, reserving our rights?

Sure there is. Rights that are reserved are surrendered. Rights must be enforced. All that is necessary is a simple order to our own port officials to the effect that no English ship shall be allowed to enter or clear any port of the United States so long as any American ship cleared for a neutral port is being held in an English port.

This is an American foreign policy which should appeal particularly to every American of English descent, as I am.

G. E. HUMPHREY, D. S. M.

UNPAID INTERNS.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Interns are paid in 80 per cent of the 734 hospitals approved for training interns, according to statistics from a recent copy of the Journal of the American Medical Association. Of the 93 city or county hospitals so approved, 87 per cent do pay their interns an average salary of $20. The interns at Cook County hospital are not paid a salary.

X. Y. Z.

THE SOUTHERN GATEWAY.

Michigan City, Ind., Jan. 7.—Every time I look in the paper I see a new highway being erected on the north or west side. On the south side are the worst and narrowest of all roads leading into Chicago. Why not get a highway into Chicago from Indiana?

QUIZ EX-BAILIFF ON PLOT TO FIX VOTE FRAUD JURY

Lawyer Refuses to Sign Immunity Waiver.

James Creed, superintendent of city dumps, was questioned yesterday before the grand jury which is investigating an alleged jury fixing in the acquittal of two vote fraud defendants.

George Crane.

The investigation resulted from the acquittal on Dec. 20 of Sam Orlando, Democratic captain of the 32d precinct of the 11th ward, and Joseph Vinci, one of his workers. Investigators for State's Attorney Courtney's office charged that 10 persons are involved in the bribery of the jury.

"I am absolutely free of any connection with jury bribing or attempted jury bribing," Creed said as he left the grand jury chambers.

Bailiff at Time of Trial.

At the time of the trial Creed was personal bailiff to Judge Joseph A. Graber, before whom the vote fraud case was tried.

George M. Crane, attorney for the two vote fraud defendants, refused to sign a waiver of immunity when he appeared in the Criminal Courts building on a grand jury subpena. The grand jury then decided it would not hear any testimony from him.

After he left the grand jury anteroom, however, Crane was questioned by Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney. He made a general denial of the jury bribing plot. Marvin Olson, an ex-convict, who said he had arranged the bribery of members of the vote fraud jury, then was brought in and Crane was asked whether he knew him.

Denies Knowing Ex-Convict.

"I never saw him in my life," Crane said.

Olson then was asked whether he knew Crane.

"Sure I know him," Olson replied. "He's George Crane, the lawyer."

Olson had told assistant state's attorneys that Crane, on the first night of the trial, came to a saloon where Olson had brought Mrs. Lillian Conners, 7833 Evans avenue, and Mrs. Martha Aumond, 6234 Blackstone avenue, who were serving on the vote fraud jury. Olson said Crane gave him $20 to entertain the women.

Mrs. Aumond denied accepting money. Mrs. Conners admitted accepting some and said Crane also gave her $50 for her services on a jury which acquitted some handbook operators Dec. 6.

In addition to Mrs. Conners, another juror, James McNamara, 5630 Wells street, admitted taking a bribe. He said he was paid thru three south side saloonkeepers.

Tells of Firing Ex-Convict.

Creed, it was reported, explained that he had met Olson in 1938.

Creed said he gave Olson a job as a garbage truck driver on the recommendation of a party worker, but dismissed him for loafing. He said he last saw Olson just after the jury had been completed in the vote fraud case.

He said Olson encountered him in a courtroom hallway and said: "It's a funny thing, but my girl is on that jury in your courtroom."

According to Olson's story to investigators, Creed knew in advance of the plot to fix the jury, sanctioned it, and promised that the two women Olson said would prove acceptable jurors would be given jobs.

The only other witness before the grand jury yesterday was Mrs. Linnea R. Fister, 6118 Stewart avenue, a member of the jury. She denied knowing of the bribery plot and agreed to take a lie detector test.

INDICT 9 IN N. Y. ON $10,000,000 RACKET CHARGE

Lepke Gang Accused of Garment Extortion.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 16.—Nine men, including Louis [Lepke] Buchalter and Jacob Shapiro, notorious public enemies, were indicted today on charges of extortion in a 10 million dollar racket in the New York City garment industry.

If convicted, the nine could be sentenced to 540 years each—a maximum of 15 years on each of 36 counts. Lepke and Shapiro also would be subject to life sentences as fourth offenders. Lepke is under a 14 year federal sentence for violation of the narcotic laws and Shapiro is serving a five year federal sentence.

New York's garment industry is the largest single industry in the city. Dewey's investigators estimated the ring had levied tribute for the last 15 years on all phases of the business.

Thirty-six corporations were named victims in today's indictment. A total of $514,900 was said to have been extorted from these companies and their officials are expected to tell at the trial how it was done. The $514,900 represents provable items which come within the five year statutory period for prosecution.

Prey on All Branches.

All four major branches of the garment industry here were infested by the racket. These include men's clothing, ladies' garments, sponging, which has to do with the treating of raw cloth before it is cut into garments, and trucking.

Crimes ranging from murder to mayhem were perpetrated by the racketeers as they built up the extortion ring within the industry.

Lepke and Shapiro first appeared in garment circles in 1925 when two gangs of hoodlums had the field divided between them. They served as strong arm men for Hyman Holtz, who is believed to have been murdered in 1931.

The other gang was run by Jack Diamond and Jacob Organ. Diamond, also victim of a gangland assassination in 1931 and Organ finally left the garment racket.

Tries to Escape Dewey.

Lepke, who surrendered several months ago to federal authorities rather than to District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, will be put on trial Jan. 24 for racketeering in the flour trucking industry.

Shapiro is in Atlanta penitentiary on a five year sentence on a fur racket conviction. He will be returned to New York for trial on the garment racket charges after Dewey has disposed of the flour racket case.

Other defendants named in the indictment today include: Ben Levine, once a partner in a garment manufacturing firm; Herman Yuran, who disappeared in 1938; Joseph Amoruso, captured by police last summer; Louis Scharf, who disappeared in 1938, and Paul Berger.

Names of two other defendants, who have not been apprehended, were not made public.

SON CONFESSES KILLING FATHER, BURNING HOUSE

Admits Fleeing in Nude to Allay Suspicion.

Salem, Ill., Jan. 16 [Special].—A young man who ran nude thru the snow in a pretended quest for help to rescue his father from a fire confessed tonight he killed his father and set fire to the latter's house in an attempt to hide the crime.

The victim was William T. Campbell, 70 years old, a well to do farmer who lived alone in the Fredonia community, nine miles northwest of here. His charred body was found last night in the ruins of his farm home.

The son is Edgar Campbell, 21, of St. Louis, Mo. State's Attorney Ward P. Holt asserted the young man signed a confession which said he shot his father to death "because he was so mean to my mother."

Slays Parent with Shotgun.

"I shot him in the neck with a shotgun about noon yesterday," the young man related, according to authorities. "Then I spent the rest of the afternoon trying to decide how to cover up. I finally decided to burn the house and to run out without my clothes as tho I had been taking a bath or changing clothes and had been caught by the flames.

"For a while I thought of committing suicide. I was going to drown myself in the old well beside the house. Without my clothes, I went out and lowered myself part way down in the well, but it was so cold I decided not to do that, so I went back and set the house on fire."

Parents Divorced in 1936.

Officers said the youth ran about half a mile thru the snow and freezing weather to the home of a neighbor, whom he told of the fire. By the time this neighbor and other persons attracted by the blaze could reach the scene, however, the flames were so high they could not enter the house. The elder Campbell's body was found near where the kitchen door had been.

Edgar's parents were divorced in 1936, and Mrs. Campbell and the five sons and two daugthers moved to St. Louis after a division of property had been arranged. Mrs. Campbell was the farmer's second wife.

At intervals since the family's separation, Edgar had returned to the old home to spend a few days with his father.

Last Sunday he returned, and the two renewed the quarrel over the elder Campbell's treatment of his wife, a subject on which they often had bickered, the son said.

Under the latter's will Horace and another brother, Armin, each inherited half of Virgil's $3,000,000 coin collection. In the division of the coins and in their joint handling of administrative expenses, it was found that Horace had come out slightly ahead.

20TH DAY PASSES AND GOON KILLING STILL IS MYSTERY

2 Union Agents Quizzed at Garage Slaying Inquest.

Yesterday was the twentieth day since labor goons fatally bludgeoned Marinus Hvid, owner of a strike picketed garage, with baseball bats. It passed without the arrest of the assassins. Police confessed that their twenty days of investigation had not even disclosed the identity of the terrorists.

The coroner's inquest was resumed, however, and the grand jury's inquiry was continued. The two union business agents who called the strike at Hvid's garage, 3514 North Halsted street, were witnesses at the inquest. They are Edward H. Gale and William Bibby of the Auto Livery, Chauffeurs, Taxicab Drivers and Garage Helpers' union.

Emil Mermall, executive director of the Affiliated Garages of Chicago, a garage owners' association, attended the inquest but was not called to testify. His organization expelled Hvid four days before Gale and Bibby called the strike. William Crawford and John Long, assistant state's attorneys, said they had other plans for Mermall's testimony.

Special Squad Planned.

Police Commissioner Allman meanwhile announced plans for the formation of a special police squad to deal with strikes and the activities of employers' associations.

He said the squad at first will consist of four men whose duty will be to gather information on strikes and disturbances. It was understood they would seek the identity of any persons used as goons or sluggers in industrial disputes.

The grand jury investigation of the slaying will be independent of the coroner's inquiry. Crawford said he would continue calling witnesses before the grand jury each day for the next few weeks.

Facts on Tieup Are Sought.

In questioning Gale and Bibby before the coroner's jury Crawford sought information as to a working agreement between the union and the garage owners' association. Other witnesses had suggested that when the owners' organization had trouble with a member the union was asked to enforce discipline, and Crawford said he was following up that suggestion.

One point was brought out by Prosecutor Crawford. This was that the union, before calling a strike against Hvid's garage last March 20, had sought to negotiate personally with Hvid. Crawford said that under a contract between the two organizations the union representatives should have negotiated with a garage owners' committee and not with an individual member.

Gale and Bibby denied that they had called the strike at the request of the owners' association. Both admitted, however, that a few days before March 20 they had received a notice from the owners' association to the effect that Hvid had been expelled.

Gale First Witness.

Gale was the first witness. His attorney, George Bieber, sat beside him, and later flanked Bibby. Attorney A. L. Marovitz, state senator for the 19th district and counsel for the Affiliated Garages, was present to represent Mermall. Gale said he is recording secretary of the union as well as business agent.

"Where were you at 10:40 o'clock the night of Dec. 27?" Crawford asked Gale. That was the time Hvid was slugged.

Gale said he was home. Bibby was asked the same question later, and said he, too, was home.

Gale said he learned of the slugging when he drove to Hvid's garage the morning of Dec. 28 and was told that one of the union pickets, Frank Dougherty, had been arrested and that another, Charles Gilliam, had been forbidden by police to display his strike banner.

Tells of Paying Pickets.

Gale said he personally hired and paid the pickets in cash. He said he received the cash from William Kerrigan, treasurer of the union. The pickets were paid $5 for a twelve hour day and also were given 50 cents a day for lunch money.

Crawford previously had asked whether garage owners' organization had not paid the pickets. Both Gale and Bibby had denied being so financed. At the inquest Crawford repeated this question and received the same answer.

"What grievance did your union have against Hvid?" Crawford asked Bibby.

"He had two employés who did not belong to the union," Bibby said.

Quizzed on Union Drive.

"Why had you never tried to unionize Hvid's employés while he was a member of the Affiliated Garages?" Crawford asked.

"There was a different business agent on the job at that time," Bibby said.

Dougherty, the picket, testified that he sat in an automobile across the street from Hvid's garage and that his main job was to see that no gasoline was delivered to the garage.

Deputy Coroner Edward Edelstein, who is conducting the inquest, continued it until Jan. 31.

CONTINUE QUIZ IN MYSTERY DEATH.

A coroner's jury yesterday continued indefinitely its inquiry into the death of Clark H. Slover, 45 years old, a WPA writers' project official who was found fatally injured Christmas morning outside his home at 18 North Hoyne avenue.

A LADY EXPLODES THE MYTH THAT MAN PROPOSES

Marital Expert Also Hints Girl Disposes, Too.

BY DORIS LOCKERMAN.

The old fashioned idea that love is accompanied by dizzy spells, thumping hearts and a vague feeling of floating in space, was debunked last night. So were the homely truisms that opposites attract, and that men do the proposing.

In the first of a series of lectures on marriage at the Lincoln-Belmont Y. M. C. A., Mrs. Diana Holzheimer, staff member of the Association for Family Living, gave her audience the modern day version of romance and marriage. She spoke to a group of 36 young men and women, about half of whom were engaged, and the other half newly married. Four subsequent lectures will deal with economic aspects, physical adjustments, and emotional factors in marriage.

Love Is Unselfishness.

It is love, she said, when a girl begins to think of a man's comfort above her own. Or vice versa. Marriage follows when the girl decides it would be a good thing. And the marriage succeeds if they set up housekeeping in the right social area; differences of tastes, and interests have little to do with the result.

The best prospect for a husband, Mrs. Holzheimer declared, is the child who grew up in a happy family. Preparation for marriage begins at birth and the qualities of loyalty, kindness, and consideration learned as a child will be reflected later. The worst prospect for nuptial felicity is the man or woman who has been divorced. It indicates a pattern for failure.

"But where," asked a young woman in the audience, "can a girl meet these good prospects you mention, and get to know about their early life?"

Don't Let the First Escape.

"It's a long, slow process," Mrs. Holzheimer replied. "Some say dance halls [some successful marriages begin there], and some say churches. Social centers are good, but generally there isn't much choice for a girl in a large metropolitan city. I hesitate to advise it, but it really isn't a bad idea to marry the first man who asks you."

The next query was from a man, a married man. He wondered, he said, what happens to the flirtation, handholding, and thrill of courtship after the honeymoon.

Mrs. Holzheimer answered him readily.

"Did you ever hear," she replied, "of anybody running for a street car after he'd caught it?"

ROADSIDE CAMP SOLVES FLORIDA VACATION COST

Many Enjoy Pleasant, Inexpensive Living.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

West Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 16.—A tour south of here in the Tribune road car today showed how winter visitors are beating Florida resort costs. In a camp on the ocean front where we spent several days two years ago there were 178 trailers under palms and Australian pines on lots which rent for $3.50 a week plus extras. The extras include electricity charges—$1.75 a week for a stove, 50 cents for lights, $1.05 for a hot plate, 15 cents for an iron, and 7 cents for a toaster.

Bill Porter and his wife, who have a golf school at 89th street and Jeffery avenue, Chicago, were interviewed in their elaborate trailer outfit. They said their groceries, including eggs, butter and milk, cost approximately $1 a day.

Once Settled, They Stay.

There are not so many trailers as there were two years ago when we visited this camp and they aren't jumping from camp to camp as they did in former seasons. The Porters agreed that it's a hardship to pull the trailer load behind an automobile, but that, settled in a camp, the life was pleasant and economical. Most of the outfits at this camp were settled, with awning or tents attached to the trailers to add to the living quarters.

"We have good fishing, good bathing, and a happy social life here," said Porter. "We plan to store much of our equipment here in the spring rather than haul it back and forth."

Driving back north from Del Ray on the Dixie highway, U. S. 1, we saw tourist camp after tourist camp erected in the last two years. They housed other winter visitors beating the Florida resort costs either for one night stops or for stays of from a week to a month.

At Boynton on Lake Worth we stopped at a group of freshly painted cabins among tall palm trees.

Many Transient Customers.

"We're full every night," said the manager, Capt. George Sheaf. "About half of our customers are here for only one night. Others are here for from a week to a month."

For $35 a week, Sheaf rents a three room cottage that will sleep four persons. Furnishings include a bathroom, an electric refrigerator, a gas cook stove, an electric heater, linen and table ware. A smaller cabin without the kitchenette rents for $20 a week for two persons.

Row boats for fishing cost 75 cents a half day and for $3.50 he rents a boat with a three horse power engine for a half day.

Such opportunities, here and elsewhere in the state, account for 2,250,000 northerners coming to Florida during the winter season. The expensive hotels, charging from $10 to $30 a day, can't attract such numbers. The society columns of northern newspapers don't tell about the Florida that is enjoyed by the millions.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Each year in the last decade the press agents for the new fashions for men have predicted that this year [whatever it was] the American male will resemble the peacock. He never has.

So yesterday the stylists used what may be a subtler means of accomplishing this end. They stuck a peacock feather in a cream colored felt hat, a hat that looks like an angel food cake. They hope to see it worn in 1940.

The hat was one of hundreds of sartorial creations for men shown in the style show of the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers. The clothiers and furnishers, 1,000 strong, are holding their 26th annual convention in the La Salle hotel.

Conservatism Gets the Gate.

The new styles, decidedly, are not conservative. They dance with color, with blues predominating—not navy blues, but lake blue, turquoise, and teal. Trousers of summer formals, for instance, are midnight blue, but the coats are powder blue, pearl gray and so on.

The new topcoats are short, hitting the leg about an inch below the knee. They have fly fronts, that is concealed buttons, and most of them boast Prussian collars. They, too, come in such horticultural colors as goldenrod and string bean. Even raincoats are on a color binge.

In business suits jackets are longer. Backs are plain, as a rule, and both box and draped jackets are popular. Trousers are supposed to be long enough to break over the shoe and velvet corduroy trousers combined with tweed jackets are the tops for sports.

But the practice of wearing out two old suits by mixing them up is definitely out!

Laugh's on Males Now.

The show established one fact: Men no longer can laugh at women's hats. Four leading designers of women's hats had creations for men in yesterday's show.

One, by John Fredericks, was about 18 inches in diameter, a flat, floppy model of Bavarian hare with a wide band of folded brown silk.

Jay Thorpe produced a little green Alpine number with an assortment of long, curling white feathers in front and a bundle of edelweiss berries in back. Annas created what looked like a sewing basket of rough straw with a dainty little brown brim and Lily Daché achieved the peacock feather.

WIFE AGAIN SUES ATTORNEY BURKE; SAYS HE BEAT HER

Attorney James M. Burke, who specializes in criminal law cases, was sued for divorce for the second time in two months yesterday by his wife, Yvonne.

Mrs. Burke's first suit, filed Nov. 29, charged cruelty. She complained that Burke had a habit of pleading for imaginary clients in imaginary cases in their home, while she was forced to listen. This gave her nightmares, she said. She also alleged she was forced to flee into a hotel corridor and down several flights of stairs when he drew a gun while drunk.

The Burkes were reconciled Dec. 11, and the divorce bill was dismissed. In her new bill Mrs. Burke added one new charge. She said they separated Dec. 30 when her husband beat and kicked her after a quarrel.

Thru her attorney, Irving Eisenman, Mrs. Burke asked an injunction forbidding her husband to molest her.

COLD CUTS AUTO LICENSE BUYING; WARNING ISSUED

Snow and cold are discouraging Illinois motorists from getting their 1940 automobile licenses, Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes said yesterday. Issuance of the new licenses started off briskly, Hughes reported, but the severity of the weather with the advent of the new year brought a sharp drop in the number of applications received. Hughes reminded all motorists that licenses were due on Jan. 1.

At Chicago license headquarters at 334 South Ashland avenue, only about 5,000 applications are being received a day, Hughes reported. This office is equipped to handle 20,000 a day without imposing outdoor waits. Yesterday motorists whose applications were in proper order were being issued licenses with less than a minute's wait.

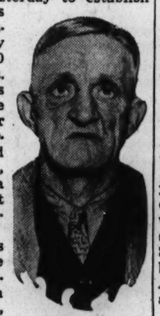
2 SUE FOR SHARE OF 80 MILLION IN GOLD RUSH RICHES

Two Chicagoans brought suit in federal court yesterday to establish themselves as heirs to an estate which they say is worth 80 million dollars. The avowed heirs are Mrs. Alice Telfer Huntziger of 555 South Fairfield avenue and her brother, Charles Telfer, a plumber living at 2226 Wabash avenue.



Charles Telfer.

The estate is that of the late Charles D. Farquharson of San Francisco, Cal. The bill states that he died in 1896 and that a brother, David Q. Farquharson, took charge of his wealth without giving a sister, Mrs. Mary Telfer, her share. Mrs. Huntziger and her brother assert they recently learned they are the sole heirs of Mrs. Mary Telfer.

Their attorney, Bernard J. Higgins, said they were left orphans and never knew of their relationship to the founder of the fortune.

Exciting Times Live Again in These Novels

"Turn Ever Northward," by Margaret Barrington. [Knopf $2.50.]

"Heroic Dust," by Theodora Dehon. [Macmillan, $2.50.]

BY MARCIA WINN.

"Turn Ever Northward" is Margaret Barrington's first novel, and it marks her as a writer of distinction. Here is a story, superbly told, of an Irish girl, Loulie; her darkly brooding cousin, Justin, and the strange, rebellious Egan O'Doherty she married. Altho the scene shifts to the world war and the Irish revolt, to Dublin and London, it always returns to that point where it started, an old house in the northern fastness of Ireland.

It is a swift story, of sudden impacts and of deep intensity, a story torn by dreams, longings, and a wild Irish love. Miss Barrington, telling it with great beauty, has produced a book that must be classed exceptional.

Theodora Dehon's "Heroic Dust" is said to be a true story, handed down by the generations. If so, she tells it well. It deals with a facet of the French revolution that novelists have touched little, the wars of the Chouannerie, when the Breton and Norman peasants arose to fight, with an owl's hoot as their battle cry and a white handkerchief as their standard, for the return of the throne. Their leader was the gallant Count Louis de Frotté.

However, the story is not that of De Frotté, but of Louis-Auguste de Boisdesert, a young Norman nobleman, and of his intrepid deeds among the Chouans. His love, of course, is the daughter of a man ostensibly siding with the revolutionaries, which almost complicates matters.

A Remarkable Queen and Her Court Politics

"Caroline of England," by Peter Quennell. [Viking, $3.75.] Published last Friday.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

In his foreword to this brilliant and dashing biography Peter Quennell disarmingly says: "It may be as well to include a few lines on the intention of this book. My study of Caroline of Anspach and England does not profess to be a work of intensive historical research or an essay in the interpretation of political motives. What I have attempted to do is to compose a portrait of a remarkable woman in the setting of one of the least known periods of English history and to examine the effect of her position on her private character."

That statement so exactly describes what Mr. Quennell has done that it remains only for the critic to say how well he has done it. This reviewer thinks he has done it supremely well, with verve, a delicate sense of the allure of a prettily turned phrase and in the spirit, tho not in the language, of the period.

The period of Pope and Gay and of Voltaire's visit to England, and of Lord Chesterfield, "whose worldliness," according to Mr. Quennell, "was as earnest as other men's saintliness," lives in these pages, recorded with a nice wit which would have been appreciated, perhaps, more then than today. For in those days wit could change the heart of a nation and broadsides of the pen had an influence which the broadsword had lost.

Here Peter Quennell tells the life story of a woman who, even to the hour of her death, thru all of the vicissitudes of child-bearing, dynasty-intriguing, family feuding, and being a queen to a foreign nation, retained the romantic love of her husband. George II. of England was always a Hanoverian, always a somewhat slow witted, not too amiable man whom fate had brought to England as king. He had early taken as mistress an Englishwoman, Lady Suffolk, a liaison smiled upon by the old electress of Hanover, who "regarded the affair as eminently suitable, since her grandson would now have a chance at improving his English," and accepted as inevitable by Caroline, who saw to it that her husband and his mistress were faithful to each other.

Says Mr. Quennell: "To George Augustus adultery was a duty, marriage a pleasure. In his liaisons he was punctual and prosy; to his wife a romantic." So romantic was he that after her death "the sight of a queen dealt him at the card table was once sufficient to make it impossible for him to continue playing; and for some time the royal family used imperfect packs from which all the queens had been abstracted."

The politics of the period as well as the life of the court Mr. Quennell sees as the personalities which influenced them—Robert Walpole, the arch-politician, allied with Caroline so cleverly and skilfully, and on Caroline's part, so affectionately, manipulating their puppet, George II., that he never suspected the strings.

Wisecracks and Poison Ivy

"A Smattering of Ignorance," by Oscar Levant. [Doubleday Doran, $2.] Published last Friday.

Oscar Levant, the witty wizard of the Information Please radio program, also does a neat job of drawing his critics' fangs in the last of the six essays which make up this book. All of the six have to do with music, altho at least two of them have as much to do with personalities as they do with the music—or laughs—they produced. Some of them concern Hollywood and all of them concern primarily Oscar Levant.

Oscar Levant.

The disarming part of the book is that Oscar Levant, the writer, is on to Oscar Levant, the exhibitionist, and as soon as the reader has had an almost irresistible impulse to turn the book over his knee and wallop it, the author tacitly says: "That guy Oscar thinks he's smart, and his name ought to be Alec."

The essays aren't as full of wisecracks as that sounds, however. They contain a great deal of interesting information about composers and conductors and movie producers and their tricks and tantrums, but also some deadly nightshade. Some of the laurels which the author twines about the brow of George Gershwin, for instance, have the unmistakable contour of poison ivy. But nowhere more than among musicians is one man's poison another man's meat, and Mr. Levant makes refreshingly certain that his readers remember that he is a composer and not a writer.

Charming Story of Children

"Polonaise," by Martin Hare. [Macmillan, $2.50.] Published yesterday.

Against the background of the beautiful Baths Palace park in Warsaw, with rooms in the little Orangery as a temporary home, three English children become enchanted by Polish charm in these pleasant, gentle pages.

As the book opens they are being sent away from England by their parents, who are going to get a divorce. Their mother, almost violently determined that everything shall be done in a "civilized" fashion, insists that the oldest boy, who is 15, must decide for himself whether he is to live with her or with his father. The two girls, younger, she will keep with her.

While the negotiations are being made all three of the young Dovemounts are to visit a remote Polish relative, a scholar who is making a catalog of the treasures of the palace in Warsaw. His household consists of a wife, her son, and two nieces, and when the three English children are added there is little space for anything but intimacy. The two "cultures" are happily contrasted by the author in a tale of no vast importance, but so charmingly and so happily told that it is memorable. The skill with which Martin Hare pictures childhood and adolescence has no small part in making "Polonaise" memorable. All of the children are enchantingly natural, and the book is really theirs, altho there is a nice satirical touch in the author's portrait of Madeline Dovemount, the "civilized" wife and mother.

Life in English Circuses

"Luke's Circus," by Ruth Manning-Sanders. [Little-Brown, $2.50.] Published today.

That this is an authentic literary lithograph of life in small English circuses is as plain to the reader as that its hero has the circus in his bloodstream. No creative artist ever saw his goal more vividly nor worked for it more unremittingly and with greater self-sacrifice than does the hero of this tale. The fact that his goal is the tinsel trimmed, flare lighted ring of a living and ever fluid circus and not an immortal canvas or a static group forever caught in marble does not make of him a less passionate creator.

But, altho Luke and his dream and its realization are studied with understanding by the author, "Luke's Circus" is less a study of one human being than it is a record of a way of life. For English circus life is no carbon copy of other living. It is structurally and physically, as well as psychologically, a unique way of life, and Mrs. Manning-Sanders has described its uniqueness with the best of her considerable skill. The reader rightly will suspect that the author is an ardent circus lover.

Daniels Starts Account of His Eventful Life

"Tar Heel Editor," by Josephus Daniels. [Chapel-Hill, $3.50.]

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

Shells were bursting thruout the town on the day in May, 1862, when Mr. Daniels was born in Washington, N. C. The man who was to become Woodrow Wilson's secretary of the navy and later ambassador to Mexico spent his boyhood in the atmosphere of the reconstruction period that followed the civil war.

While still a youth he became an editor—a militant one. He became an influence in his community, then in the state, and later in a large part of the south. He has known politics and political figures for half a century.

"Tar Heel Editor," which is readable and interesting, is the first of a four volume autobiography which will include an intimate study of Wilson and behind-the-scenes events during the world war. There also will be an evaluation of the New Deal. The first volume takes the reader up to the time of Grover Cleveland.

Best Books on the South

"The South to Posterity," by Douglas Southall Freeman. [Scribners, $2.50.]

Recognized as the greatest authority on the life of Gen. Robert E. Lee, Mr. Freeman has received thousands of queries on what to read about the south in the years since 1935, when the civil war novel had its great return to popularity. In reply he has compiled this bibliography of the Confederacy, including those books which he considers best and most enduring.

Included are contemporary writings, from the battlefields, from newspapers, and from women at home; the better of the vindicatory writings and apologia that followed the war, and the best of the histories. There is much incidental material that makes the volume far more than a mere bibliography.

Story of Charming City

"Charleston," by William O. Stevens. [Dodd-Mead, $3.]

This is an excellent book about a city of magnificent and stirring traditions. Piracy, revolutionary, and civil war days are touched upon. There are stories of the great houses and great families, illustrated in pen and ink and in color by the author.

Those who enjoyed Stevens' "Old Williamsburg and Her Neighbors" will find "Charleston" the story of an equally charming city, charmingly told.

Stirring Novel of Georgia

"Lightwood," by Brainard Cheney. [Houghton-Mifflin, $2.50.]

When the big lumber companies began driving into the Georgia pine forests they applied the name "squatters" to the pioneers who had wrested this region from the savages and the wilderness. Surveys meant nothing to these hardy men, but they knew where their boundaries were. Micajah Corn was one of this tribe and he was not afraid of the killers sent by the sawmill interests.

"Lightwood" is a stirring novel. It is the first important writing by Mr. Cheney, who is a Nashville, Tenn., newspaper man.

Authors and Their Work

Mignon G. Eberhart, one of America's most popular writers of mysteries, recently made a flying trip to Jamaica. The plane's passengers were all finger printed on arrival. "So I was right at home," she says. Incidentally, she writes, there were 13 passengers. In true thriller fashion the flying boat ran into a storm and, "first thing we knew we simply dropped. Seats fell away from us . . . everybody came down in a scramble, man beside me on my lap. He gave me a very wicked look and hurriedly withdrew. . . . Shall never forget disorganized look on steward's face. Not frightened, just surprised and disconcerted. I can't tell you how it felt to get safely down in the bay and whirl around up to the port." That is one way for authors to get material. Mrs. Eberhart's latest is "The Chiffon Scarf" [Doubleday Doran, $2.]

When Phil Stong, author of "Horses and Americans" [Stokes, $2], prepared a radio version of his juvenile story, "Honk, the Moose," one of the station officials objected to the periodic moose calls.

"They're mating calls," Mr. Stong protested, "and essential to the story."

"Pull 'em out," demanded the official, "too sexy!"

Taylor Caldwell, author of "The Eagles Gather" [Scribners, $2.50], is now in Hollywood, helping with the screen production of her first book, "Dynasty of Death."

Scientist Looks Beyond a Cold Bundle of Laws

"The Philosophy of Physical Science," by Sir Arthur Eddington. [Macmillan, $2.50.]

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

To those who are looking for a general philosophy of life which is in harmony with scientific development of the last 50 years, and whose religion, perhaps, is in conflict with scientific beliefs, this latest book by the Plumian professor of astronomy and experimental philosophy in Cambridge university is an event.

Whatever net we cast, whether in the physical universe or in the sea of thought, brings results in strict conformity with our particular sensory and intellectual equipment. That is one of the key thoughts of the book.

We are recovering now, Sir Arthur says, from 250 years of deterministic physics, and his is a philosophy of subjective natural law, indeterminism, and a slight, but all-important individual volition.

All the laws of nature that are usually classed as fundamental, he says, can be seen wholly from epistemological considerations. They correspond to a priori knowledge and are therefore wholly subjective. He returns to the old natural philosophy, in which philosophy and physics overlap. It is a duty, he thinks, which scientists cannot escape.

"The physical universe as it affects us day by day," he writes, "is not just a bundle of laws of nature—special facts are as important as the laws. Thru special facts we observe the universe. Special facts are partly subjective and partly objective. The purely objective sources of the objective element in our observational knowledge are life, consciousness, spirit. The purely objective world is the spiritual world; and the material world is subjective in the sense of subjective subjectivism."

The new contributions of physical science, with wave form at the root of everything, are to Eddington no less significant than the doctrine of evolution. Relativity, by which we observe only relations between physical entities, is an outlook that must unfold gradually to human consciousness. If he had to choose among the older philosophical systems, he would take Kant, but he takes no system as a whole.

"If we find reason to be dissatisfied with a purely physical world external to ourselves," he says, "there is room for a spiritual interpretation of the 'something' of which the physical universe is only the abstract structure.

"Volition remains, tho it is limited to certain centers in men and the higher animals. Prayer, propitiation may still influence the course of physical phenomena when directed to these centers."

The Girl in the Shadows

By Roy Vickers

[Copyright: 1940: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

SYNOPSIS.

On the eve of her marriage, Cynthia Brentiford, fashion artist, is sentenced to 18 months in prison under the name of Clara Brown—unknowingly an accomplice in crime with Rory Clarke. Unaware of the disaster, her fiancé, Michael Alloway, is on his way from Malta for the wedding. At Monsbyher, Cynthia's childhood playmate, Bessie Stockley, is a prison wardress. Bessie manages to take Cynthia's place and let Cynthia slip out in the guise of a wardress on a two weeks' leave. Cynthia marries Michael with his mother and sister Marion present. After a stolen fortnight of happiness, Cynthia persuades Michael to go back to Malta alone, pretending she has to have an operation and will join him later. Rory Clarke blackmails her. Back in prison, Cynthia discovers she is going to have a child and is determined not to have it born in prison. Bessie—the only one who could help her—is transferred. Rory Clarke visits her in prison as a solicitor and she is forced to accept his help in planning a break.

INSTALMENT IX.

NO LETTERS.

"Poor Cynthia!" said Mrs. Alloway. And "Poor Michael!" said Marion. "I had better run up and see Cynthia if you think you could manage without me for a day or two, mother?"

"Of course I could manage, but she definitely says she does not want us to come up. I know how she feels, poor darling—she has married into the family and she has started by being a great nuisance. I should feel the same in her place. I shall write her a nice letter. I wish she didn't find it necessary to call me 'Mrs. Alloway.'"

So Mrs. Alloway wrote a nice letter and in due course got a nice letter back. There were many such exchanges during the next six weeks. And then silence.

"I wonder why she hasn't written," said Mrs. Alloway. "She's generally most punctilious. And I miss those cheerful little bulletins."

"Perhaps she's a bit afraid of you," suggested Marion. "I think she felt she's not good enough for Michael."

"Nonsense, dear! That girl is good enough for anybody."

Three days later there came an agitated letter from Michael.

"I haven't heard from Cynthia for 10 days. She has always written regularly. If you have had news by the time you get this you might send me a cable."

"I think, after all, Marion, you had better run up tomorrow by the early train," said Mrs. Alloway. "There must be some reason why she doesn't write to any of us. The doctors ought to have notified us if there is anything wrong."

The early train landed Marion Alloway at Paddington shortly after midday. She at once took a taxi to an address in Camden Town—the address from which Cynthia had been writing.

Marion knew very little of London, so Camden Town was a bit of a shock to her. The noisy streets, the dingy houses, made up a very odd neighborhood for a nursing-home. Things seemed odder still when the taxi deposited her outside a very dingy, mid-Victorian house with a small strip of dank "garden."

"Are you sure this isn't a mistake?" asked Marion dubiously. "The place I'm looking for is a nursing-home."

"It's the address you gave me, miss."

Marion paid him off, walked up the broken pathway and knocked on the door with a heavy iron knocker. She had to rap again before she was answered by a tired, elderly woman.

The woman was a distant cousin of Bessie's. She had not been told the whole story, but Bessie had foreseen possible investigation on the Alloways' part and had coached her in some sort of a tale.

"Is this a nursing-home? 'Is Mrs. Michael Alloway here?" As Marion put the question she felt it to be an absurd one.

"She's not here now, miss; she's gone," answered the woman uneasily.

"Then, this is a nursing-home?"

"Well, it's not a nursing-home in the ordinary manner o' speaking. A Miss Stockley recommended her to come here and there was a nurse came regularly to do what the doctor said, tho there didn't seem to be much the matter with—with Mrs. Alloway."

"I am her sister-in-law," said Marion haughtily. "Will you please give me her address?"

"I'm sorry, miss, but I don't know it. She didn't say where she was going."

And to this the woman stuck. Nothing that Marion could say elicited any further information that was of the slightest use. The woman's very lack of knowledge was itself sinister and suspicious.

"What was the name of the doctor attending her?"

"I can't rightly say, miss. He was just 'the doctor' to us."

Marion was alarmed and utterly at a loss. She wandered into the busy, uninviting High street and found a fairly clean-looking teashop. Over a cup of tea and a sandwich she tried to puzzle it out, and presently remembered that in Cynthia's first letter she had mentioned a Dr. Treadgrove. She hurried to a postoffice, found his name in the directory and rang him up.

"Yes, I attended Mrs. Alloway at the Parnassus hotel. I knew her, of course, mainly as Miss Brentiford . . . I can't tell you where she is now as I am not treating her. But I remember she mentioned that she would go to a nursing-home at Brighton."

Brighton! But Cynthia had not gone to Brighton.

Marion's alarm was approaching panic. She could put a long distance call thru to her mother, but that would merely cause distress and would lead nowhere. Mrs. Alloway obviously could not suggest where or how to find Cynthia.

"Something has happened to her!" Marion asserted, and under her panic there was rising something more like triumph. She checked it, horrified. Even if she had never really wanted Michael to marry Cynthia, she must not feel this secret satisfaction at her mysterious disappearance.

She looked around for a taxi, then drove to Scotland Yard. After some delay she was interviewed by an official of the Missing Persons department. He took particulars, and as many dates and facts as Marion could give him.

"If she had been a street casualty we should have been notified. If she had entered any of the hospitals unidentified—with a loss of memory or something like that—we should also have been notified. But she's not on any of these lists. The nursing-homes are another matter, of course."

"It's very alarming for us," said Marion, and told him about her brother in Malta.

"She was not very ill when she was in the house in Camden Town?" repeated the detective. "Well enough to walk out of the house any time she wanted to? Hm! An attractive woman, is she?"

"Well—people seem to think so."

"H-m-m-m!" It was a long-drawn exclamation and again Marion felt a stirring of triumph. She did not need to be told that quite a large number of attractive women suddenly disappear in London, entirely of their own free will but without notifying their friends and relatives. The police generally find them and are promptly told to mind their own business.

"Well, we'll see what we can do and I'll notify you, Miss Alloway. But if I were you I wouldn't worry."

It was now three o'clock. She decided to go to Cynthia's flat in Cotswold Mansions. Here she unburdened herself to the porter.

"The flat's empty now," said that individual, "tho Miss Brentiford—I should say Mrs. Alloway after what you've told me—she's still the tenant. Come to think of it, she was here some weeks ago."

"I think you'll take my word that I really am her sister-in-law," said Marion with her most authoritative air. "Will you let me into her flat? There may be some papers, a letter or something which will tell me where she is."

"Well, it's against the rules, but as you're so worried about her, miss, I'll take the risk."

He handed her the master key and Marion went up to the flat. It was now half-past three. She switched on the light in the dark little hall and went into the sitting room to begin a systematic examination of Cynthia's desk.

A letter from Carleton Smith, dated Cuzco, Peru, Jan. 11, says that Manuel de Falla, greatest living Spanish composer, is spending eight months in the Sierras near Cordoba, writing a full length spectacle, Atlantida, which he says will be his last work—his last because the radio is driving away all his inspiration. He left Granada for Majorca, and finally Buenos Aires for his mountain retreat, in order to escape the radio.

Villa-Lobos, best known South American composer—dark-eyed Elsie Houston sang his Ena Mokoce Ce Maka and his Teiru, a lullaby and a funeral song, respectively, in the candle lit, lily fragrant Arts club Sunday evening—has a new method for writing his compositions, Carleton says. He has a friend photograph a mountain or other landscape and then draws the contours of the mountain on music paper. This gives him a melody.

Girl of 10 Will Play Piano at Symphony Concert Today

Children's Program Soloist

BY IRENE STEYŠKAL.

If any one had the jitters yesterday at the Samuel Brodsky flat at 4150 Jackson boulevard, it was not Diana. And the day was the eve of her debut as piano soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. But to Diana, a sturdy, dimpled little girl just 10 years old, the prospect had the pleasant promise of a party.

The only difference was that at a concert, you know, instead of talking and laughing with people as you would at a regular party, you make the piano do it in music language. It was as simple as that to Diana.

In Orchestra hall today Diana will play the last movement, the rondo, from Haydn's D major concerto. This will be the third concert of the Young People's series. Hans Lange will conduct.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Diana Brodsky practices three hours a day.

Five weeks ago Diana's teacher, Mrs. Meda Steele took her talented young pupil to play for Dr. Frederick Stock. Dr. Stock smiled and said, yes, yes, it was fine and the little one could play with the orchestra.

Diana has been taking music lessons from Mrs. Steele for four winters. Her summer vacations are free. Two years ago she won in a national piano playing tournament.

"She is so gay spirited and yet such a responsible little girl. She grasps a musical idea almost before you can explain, and always has something of her own to add to the interpretation. Her apprehension is far ahead of her small hands' ability to execute [Diana can't quite reach an octave], excellent as that is for one so young," Mrs. Steele said.

How long does she practice?

"Three hours. We-ll'" with an impish glance from the corner of her bright eyes for her mother, "it adds up to that practically every day."

A New Pianist Displays Skill in New Work

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The Woman's Symphony orchestra, Izler Solomon conducting, presented in Orchestra hall last night an important new work and an important new pianist to help play it. The work was Ildebrando Pizzetti's concerto, the pianist, Alexander Kelberine—a Russian.

The new concerto [new to Chicago, that is] turns out to be an introspective, lyrical, softly colored work which suggests Respighi occasionally in the subtle turn of a phrase. The work is deeply felt, admirably written, and displays an almost complete indifference to such qualities as brilliance or effectiveness.

Both the first and the second movements are slow moving and almost improvisatory in character. The third steps out a little, but even here there is nothing actually big until the beginning of the aspiring, sustained section with which the concerto ends.

Mr. Kelberine played it competently, achieving many a pleasant lyrical effect and making the more outspoken passages toward the end as big as the character of the piece permitted.

Mr. Kelberine appeared a little later in the evening to play Liszt's "Totentanz" in bravura style and with the air of portentousness which the music requires.

The orchestra's performance at this, the last concert of the 1939-'40 season, was marked by precision, vigor, and often a very exciting sonority.

SOPRANO MAKES DEBUT

Helen Ryerson, Milwaukee soprano, gave her first Chicago recital in Kimball hall last night. Her program included groups of Italian, German, and English songs and arias from Catalani's "La Wally," "Louise," and "Aida."

Possessing a voice of good size and range, Miss Ryerson was nevertheless heard to best advantage in music making use of the lovely pianissimo she has developed. Faulty production narred the more dramatic singing she attempted and disfigured her diction. Her sentimental style was notably out of place in the "Ritorna vincitor" aria from "Aida." R. E.

Pretty Blouses and Skirts

WOMAN'S AND MISS' BLOUSES AND SKIRTS.

The two patterns today are designed to increase your now useful wardrobe of blouses and skirts, or to begin one for you just in case you still haven't caught wise to its budget-saving possibilities. The blouse pattern creates three dressy and one tailored model to wear with the simple flared skirt. One of the styles is frankly Victorian, and the two other frilly ones delightfully feminine, too. The tailored one is grand for suits.

The skirt, in woolen, silk or velveteen, is plain enough to serve as companion for almost any type of blouse you care to have, but particularly the be-furbelowed ones suggested, in sheers, either cotton or silk, and soft, drapable silks.

Style No. 3138 is designed for sizes 12, 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 1⅞ yards of 39 inch material, with 3¼ yards of lace for tucked model; 2¾ yards, with 1 yard of lace, for jabot version with long sleeves.

Style No. 2783 is designed for waist size 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34. Size 30 requires 2⅞ yards of 39 inch material.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Good Morning!

This quietly presented little picture based on a famous book will never set the world afire, but it DOES have a certain old world charm and distinction.

The story told is of a feud between fathers which causes a blight on the lives of children.

Mill Owner Tom Tulliver loses his property to Lawyer Wakem—who employs him thereafter for a meager weekly sum. Tho Tulliver accepts the position and labors faithfully, he doesn't forget his wrongs. In the family Bible he has written that he will NEVER forgive, and it is his wish that his children prove unforgiving also.

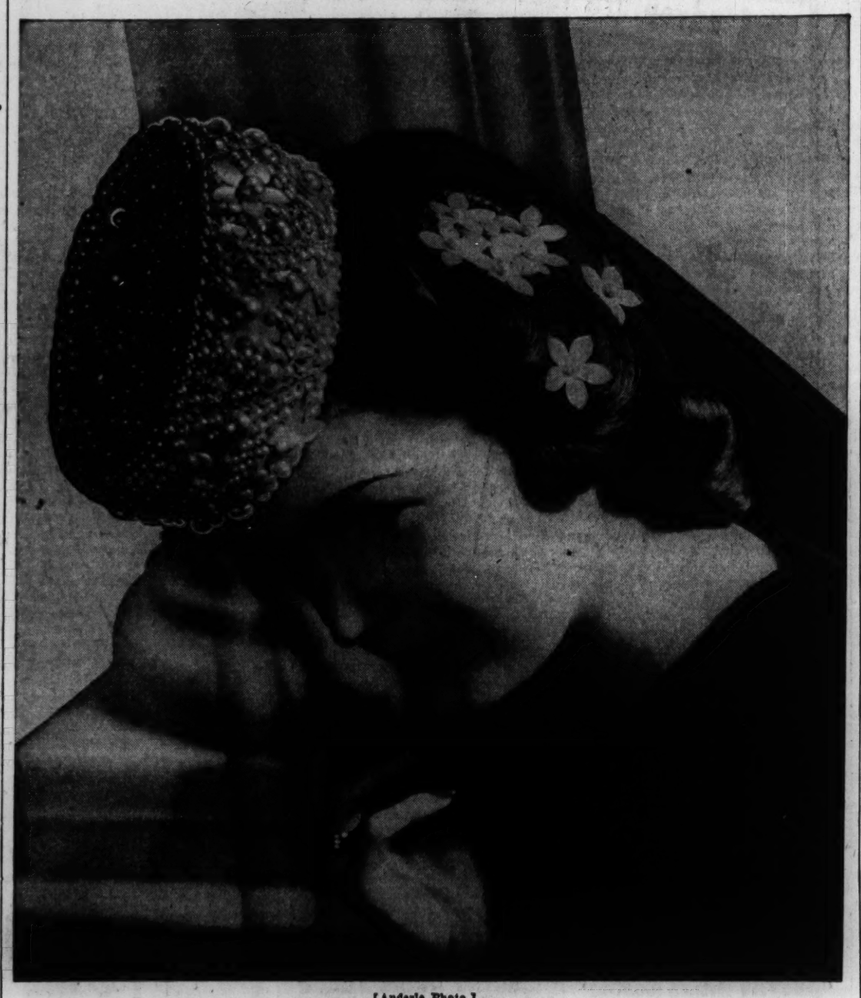
For young Tom Tulliver, this is easy. But there is no hate in the heart of crippled Philip Wakem, who has adored Maggie Tulliver since he and she were children, nor in that of the girl. . . . Willy-nilly these two are blown by the wind of sad destiny into the lap of tragedy.

All of the young people in the cast acquit themselves excellently. Most appealing, I thought, are Victoria Hopper, as Maggie's gentle cousin and Frank Lawton as young Wakem. James Mason as Tulliver gives an effective characterization.

Settings, costumes, and dialog please and the director had a nice touch.

See you tomorrow.

A New Hat in White Soft Felt



[Anderle Photo.]

One of the most provocatively feminine new hats of the season features fine, soft, white felt. The crisp lines of a pill box model shine softly with dozens of different sizes of lustrous pearl beads, with realistic edelweiss blossoms, also of pearl, for contrast. Attached to the hair or caught in the meshes of a fine back veil are seven pearl edelweiss blossoms to repeat the same flowers in the hat.

Yale Poloists Will Play in City on Feb. 10

BY JUDITH CASS.

YALE alumni and polo enthusiasts are looking forward to Feb. 10, when the Yale polo team will arrive in Chicago to play the 124th Field artillery in the latter's armory on the south side. The contest will mark the fourth appearance in Chicago of a Yale team.

The boys in blue have done such a good job of filling the armory for past games that a capacity crowd is expected. The proceeds will be divided between the Chicago Yale club, headed by Kent S. Clow, and the Yale Scholarship Trust, headed by Frederick L. McNally.

It was just a year ago on Feb. 10 that Yale met Harvard before a cheering throng in the armory.

Mr. Clow, Lester Armour, vice president of the Chicago Yale club, and Fred W. Fairman Jr., secretary, will call a meeting soon to start selling boxes and tickets for the game.

Yale to Have Radio Program on Friday.

Yale alumni will tune in on the Mutual network at 8:30 o'clock Friday night for a radio program at which James Rowland Angell, former president of Yale, will preside. The subject of the three speakers of the evening will be "An Endowed University Must Survive."

The speakers will be Charles Seymour, president of the university, Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio and John W. Hanes, former undersecretary of the treasury and a famous polo player while at Yale.

The occasion will mark the semicentennial of the Yale alumni fund.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank Will Take Trip South.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank and her sister, Mrs. Cecil Barnes, are leaving on Monday for a brief stay in New York. From there Mrs. Fairbank will go to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to visit the Frederic C. Bartletts, who have a lovely place on the ocean front. Mrs. Fairbank and the Tiffany Blakes will go to Treasure Island for a visit with the John T. McCutcheons about Feb. 21.

Mrs. Fairbanks plans to return to Chicago in March for a short stay and then she will go to Castle Hot Springs, Ariz., for the spring months.

Mr. and Mrs. McCutcheon and their youngest son, Barr, are leaving on the 24th to spend the winter at their island in the Bahamas. Charles T. Atkinson of Lake Forest is accompanying them. The two older McCutcheon sons, Jack and Shaw, may be able to spend a week or two with their parents some time during the late winter or early spring. Jack is learning to be a reporter and Shaw is a student at Harvard.

Mr. and Mrs. Blake are leaving next Wednesday for Boca Grande on Florida's west coast. They will be there until they join Mrs. Fairbank for the jaunt to Treasure Island.

Mrs. Barnes is not planning to go south; she will spend several weeks in New York and Boston and then will return to Chicago. Miss Janet Fairbank, who came home for the holidays, has returned to New York where she is studying voice.

Dearborn Alumnae Will Met Today.

The Dearborn Seminary Alumnae association will hold its annual meeting and luncheon today at the Fortnightly. Miss Florence D. Bartlett will speak on "The Brilliant Beauty of New Mexico."

The annual tea and election of officers of the senior Hinsdale Infant Welfare society will be held at the home of Mrs. Philip R. Clarke at 2:30 o'clock today. Miss Jeanette Townsend, secretary of the administrative board of the Chicago society, will speak.

Mrs. John R. Nicholson, retiring president of the Glencoe senior center of the society, will entertain members of her group of officers and the new board at luncheon at the Skokie Country club today. The annual meeting of the center will follow at the home of Mrs. Robert P. Fletcher.

Looking at Hollywood by Ed Sullivan

Class Will Tell.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 16.—I see by the papers, as Will Rogers was fond of saying, that for the seventh successive year Jack Benny has been rated the No. 1 radio comedian of the national airlanes. . . . That truly is an amazing record of consistency in a world that is anything but consistent.

Styles and fashions change in everything, residential sections that are popular one year are unfashionable the next, magazines fold up and die from lack of circulation, political parties win one year and are tossed into the discard the next, movie stars and movie directors flourish and disappear from the popular orbit—it is an astounding thing that in a world of flux Jack Benny has held his position for seven years, particularly when those years were as violent and unpredictable as 1933, 1934, 1935, 1936, 1937, 1938, and 1939.

His startling hold on the good will of the country, which is another expression of public opinion, is that in addition to his talent the public recognizes the fact that here is a normal, decent sort of a person.

It is a heartening fact that a performer's true character must come thru in his work. . . . Whether it is on the stage, in the movies, or on the radio, a player can't conceal his innate characteristics. . . . So when a performer lasts for any length of time it is because the public has spotted certain qualities in him, above and beyond his professional skill, that ring true.

The public analysis of Jack Benny is completely true. . . . He is exactly as he appears to be, good humored, loyal, appreciative, generous, and simple in his tastes.

In a related field, take Clark Gable, who is branching into his 11th successful year as a movie star. . . . Movie stars have come and gone, but Gable, at the moment, is bigger than ever. . . . The public likes the fellow, not only for what he represents as an entertainer but because they've regarded him and come to the conclusion that he's all right.

Gable actually is a nice guy, just as the public determined for itself. . . . Here again you have a fellow of simple tastes. . . . Jack Benny's greatest delight is in going on long auto tours; Gable's chief pleasure is working on his ranch and hunting.

From the time that Sonja Henie's cute face was flashed on the movie screens of the country the public "went" for her in a big way that was best expressed in the volume of business that her pictures accomplished. . . . The public didn't care that Sonja lacked quite a lot of Duse's acting ability; they genuinely liked the freshness and cleanness of her face, the dimpled smile, the merriness of her eyes.

Mothers wrote in to say that she reminded them of daughters who had now grown up. . . . In an era of glamor girls, the Norwegian miss was simple and straightforward, and the public liked her. . . . Behind the scenes Sonja is exactly what the public spotted her to be. . . . Her tastes are simple in the extreme. . . . Sonja loves to do the rhumba, or maybe that doesn't qualify as simple.

Ronald Colman has lasted long beyond the span of most movie heroes, simply because the public enjoyed him personally. . . . The public watched him on the screen and came to the conclusion that here was a decent, likable human being.

Colman, off stage, is courteous, reserved almost to the point of shyness and very nice to the people who work with him. . . . Those things come thru to the surface because, after all, class will tell. . . . Colman's design for living is simplicity itself—he and his wife rarely join in the Hollywood whirl.

Greta Garbo has been a Hollywood star for a lengthy interval. . . . The writers kidded Greta about her feet, about her accent, about her desire for privacy; she was the butt of more labored jokes than you can shake a stick at.

The public, however, stuck to Garbo. . . . They liked her, and that was that. . . . When you line up public opinion on your side, you have a pull of herculean proportions. . . . That's why today her current picture is doing more business than her pictures did 10 years ago.

Most amazing to this reporter is that in each case where a performer has maintained his or her popularity for five years or more, there is a hidden factor that must be conquered. . . . Youngsters who are now 18 years old constitute a tremendous proportion of movie audiences. . . . Consider that they were all 8 years old when Gable and Garbo hit the topline class. . . . They were 11 years old when Jack Benny became a radio star.

As they grew up there were a host of things to divert their attention, but these performers who were popular when they were 10 are their current choices. . . . That is a staggering thing to consider because children are a tough audience, and they do not always like the things their parents liked 10 years earlier. . . . Ask dad, he knows.

Most interesting of studies is public opinion, and the study of it is a clinical "must" in Hollywood, where the charting of it falls into the bread-and-butter classification. . . . In the final analysis, however, I think that class will tell—the performer who has it is quickly identified by John and Joan Public.

Trim Ankle Can Keep in Trim in Wool Hose

BY REA SEEGER.

Cold snaps have a way of taming the most hardy gadabout . . . the first dash of the day is to the wool hosiery assortments! Wool stockings in these days of smart hosiery designers are not the dreary looking thick affairs of history.

Wool in stunning street shades and thin enough to better even the service chiffons are plentiful. They come in russet, dark or light neutral beige, and some handsome black and white effects for the sophisticated conservative.

Besides being heating units of amazing warmth they also are decidedly decorative. You will find simple, smart plain affairs that fit supersmoothly over ankle lines and over the visible inches above the ankles.

You can indulge your fancy for clox in the same thin, warm woolens. These flattering, slenderizing stockings have two styles of clox . . . one a lovely embroidered pattern in dark and light shades to blend with the shade of the hose . . . another, a lacy design of delicate pattern.

Since the price marks are as easy on the budget as their good looks are easy on the most critical spectators, the stock of good winter woolies will go out fast.

The smartest women no longer sniff at wool whether in suits, warm wool dresses, or these new smoothies of thin and flattering street hosiery. Nothing is smarter with tweeds, with topcoats of wool or tweed worn over suits or dresses than stockings in the lovely, even textured soft wool. The shades rate the approval of even fussy shoppers.

Fashion photograph . . . a new white felt with a most unusual theme song. The snug little pillbox model is crisp, smart, and extremely eye catching. It glimmers with dozens of varied size pearl beads sewn in a lovely pattern all over the crown and sides. Repeating the Edelweiss motif in the pearl sewn hat are similar blossoms pinned in the hair or thru the meshes of a contrasting colored fine veil over the back hair line. It's a dress parade creation to wear with cocktail costumes or dinner clothes and theater suits of fine fabric in dark colors.

Thru the LOOKING GLASS

"Cosmetic rinses" for the hair are the big excitement at a Chicago salon. And no wonder. They glorify hair, not theatrically but subtly and smartly. They're not dyes, incidentally. These last only from shampoo to shampoo. They don't change the basic color of the hair in the slightest degree, but they do a delightful surface job of "dressing up" that color.

There are five of them. For white hair, with a tendency to yellow, there is a blue. This rinse can be used just to erase the yellow tinge and to heighten the hair's whitness. Or, and this would be our choice, it can be so used as to give the white hair a decidedly blue tint.

Personally, we are enthused about a suggestion of blue or purple for white hair; it always strikes us as being flattering and chic and we can't understand the apathy of white haired women toward it. There is much lovely gray hair in Chicago; blue tints would make some of these heads even loveller. This same blue rinse can be used on dead black hair; makes it look blue-black and beautiful.

For the in-between browns that verge depressingly on the mousy shade there is a dramatizing rinse called "burnt sugar" that highlights the hair miraculously. There is a third cosmetic rinse that has a rosy undertone; it sounds strange to you, perhaps, but you should see what it does for mousy blonde hair. It gives it warm pink-gold tones that make drab hair glorious. Then, for the very light blondes, there is a rinse called "evening gold" that endows pale hair with brilliance and beauty.

The fifth is a steel gray, smart for the type of gray hair that is naturally not pure white, or for black hair peppered with white. It tones down the whiteness and gives an interesting cast to the entire head of hair.

These cosmetic rinses, incidentally, are not for sale. They're used only in the salon. ELEANOR NANGLE.

Canadian Type Bacon Is Solid, 'Hammy' Meat

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Canadian bacon often is rather expensive, but it's solid meat with no waste and, from that standpoint, is fairly economical. Canadian bacon is just another name for smoked pork loin. Its flavor is hammy, it comes in a compact roll, and slices beautifully.

For fruited Canadian bacon in tomorrow night's dinner menu we want the slices cut half an inch thick.

Fruited Canadian Bacon

[Six servings]

6 slices Canadian style bacon
6 slices pineapple
1 cup raisins
1 cup pineapple juice
1 cup water
3 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt

Have bacon sliced half an inch thick. Place in dripping pan with a slice of pineapple over each slice. Simmer raisins in pineapple juice and water for 10 minutes. Mix cornstarch and salt with enough cold water to make a paste and add to pineapple juice and water. Stir and cook until thickened. Pour sauce over bacon and pineapple, and bake at 350 degrees, moderate oven, for an hour. Use no cover.

Choose rather small artichokes with tightly closed leaves for the vegetable. There should be one per person. Wash them, cut off the stems even with the base, and drop into boiling salted water. Boil until the hearts are tender. Test with a toothpick or a fork, piercing the bottom of the artichoke. Twenty-five minutes of boiling is sufficient for small artichokes. Serve them with tiny dishes of melted butter so that the leaves may be dipped in butter one by one as they are picked off by the diner. Only the thick inner portion of each leaf is eaten. The rest is discarded, except for that most delectable morsel, the artichoke heart. It often is wise to serve artichokes on individual small plates so that there is room for the discarded leaves. They are likely to clutter the dinner plate too much.

To make the chiffonade dressing for the endive, start with a thin prepared dressing. Add, to a cup of it, 2 tablespoons finely chopped pimiento, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, the grated yolk of a hard cooked egg, and 1 teaspoon minced onion or chopped chives.

Jan. 17, 1940.

A strong combination. Take the initiative and make positive decisions. Those born on this date come under the strong forces of 8 and such people are usually lucky or unlucky, but seldom tread an even in-between path. They should avoid doing important things on the 4 days. If they check back on 1939 [which was a 22 or 4 year] they will probably agree it was not a negative year. Things happened! This year, however, they have a much better chance to break away from the difficulties besetting them. Be ready for changes.

Old Ideas About Talented Child Are Exploded

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

What were some of these ideas that people had and still do have about the gifted child?

Perhaps the most popular is the one that children are weak in body and undersized in proportion as they are brilliant in mind.

Another superstition is that the gifted child becomes a dullard when he grows up, that all his mental strength is exhausted during childhood.

Still another idea prevails is that gifted children come from among the poor, the manual laborers, and the farmers. And another is that the gifted child is conceited, lazy, and lacking in character.

Let us take the "superstitions" one by one.

The gifted child is not weak and undersized. He is exceptionally well, and is taller, stronger, and heavier than the average child. His well developed, well functioning brain is an asset to his body, not a liability. Science is proving that of adults, too.

The child who is brilliant does not become stupid before maturity. The gifted child becomes the gifted grown-up, provided, of course, that he is really brilliant, not just better than a group who may be barely normal.

Here's another correction. A careful study of gifted youngsters has proved that the majority do not spring from poverty, farmlands, and the homes of manual laborers.

How about the character of gifted children? Are they lacking in industry, responsibility, and so on? The answer is emphatically no. Of course, some few do not show desirable behavior. And school work that is too easy, leisure that provides no chance for their abilities to develop, subnormal companionships, leave the brilliant child at loose ends, bored, or free for mischief. But on the whole, gifted children, are more touched by reason, show fewer faults than the average, are honest and friendly to other children, and get on well with grownups. And the gifted child has an intense regard for justice in his own dealings and in the dealings of others with him. Gifted children have a few surface faults; they often dislike plodding tasks or routine.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

An expert coupled to a pitifully weak partner on the defense of a hand resembles nothing so much as Don Quixote tilting at windmills. With every legitimate device at his command he tries to lead partner along the proper line of defense, but his signal cards, which should be all-revealing, are either overlooked or completely disregarded.

In today's hand a vulnerable slam was stolen from under the defenders' noses despite the proper discarding instructions signaled by the expert.

South, dealer.

North-South vulnerable; 80 part-score.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 spades	3 clubs
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

South's slam bid was due, in some measure, to his misunderstanding of North's bid. On the 80 part-score he took the two spade bid to be a slam-try, whereas actually North had merely attempted a mild preëmpt against East, the next bidder. Incidentally it is well to point out that North was right and South was wrong. Had North intended to give a slam-try there were many other bids at his command better than a single raise.

West opened the seven of clubs. East won the ace and made the safe return of a low club. If declarer's king still were guarded, West would be out and would ruff. Declarer won with the king and saw that nothing but a slip by the defenders could keep him from losing a heart trick, so he set out to make such an error as persuasive as possible.

He led the queen of spades, overtook with dummy's king, and ruffed the jack of clubs with the spade ace. On this trick West discarded a diamond. Three more rounds of trumps followed. West followed to the first round, but despite the all-important fact that East signaled a low diamond and a high heart West continued to discard diamonds on the last two rounds. With one trump left in dummy and none in his own hand, declarer now simply cashed the ace of hearts and returned to his hand with a diamond, to run the entire suit, including the established deuce, throwing off all of dummy's losing hearts. Dummy's trump accounted for the twelfth and contract fulfilling trick.

FRED MANDEL PURCHASES DETROIT LIONS FOR $200,000

POTSY CLARK IS APPOINTED HEAD COACH FOR 1940

William Alfs Named President.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 16 [Special].—Frederick L. Mandel Jr., 31 years old, director of Mandel Brothers department store in Chicago, and two associates bought the Detroit Lions of the National Football league today from George A. Richards for $200,000.

Mandel immediately announced the signing of George [Potsy] Clark, founder of the club, as head coach and the appointment of William A. Alfs, chief counsel for the New York Central railroad, as president.

Clark organized the team in Portsmouth, O., in 1929 under the name of Spartans. It was brought to Detroit in 1934, when Richards acquired 78 per cent of the stock for $15,000, and was renamed the Lions.

Owen, Chaplin Associates.

Mandel said his associates in the transaction are Anthony I. Owen, of New York, a former Chicago newspaper man, and Charles Chaplin, one time Fordham football player who has been employed by the New York football Giants for a number of years. They are minority stockholders.

Alfs, former vice president of the team under the Richards régime, and P. M. Thomas, secretary and treasurer, represented Richards in the negotiations. Thomas also will remain with the team in an executive capacity, Mandel said.

Announcement of the sale was made simultaneously by Mandel in Detroit and by Richards in Beverly Hills, Cal., where Richards, millionaire radio operator, has been under a physician's care for more than a year because of a heart ailment. Richards offered the club for sale at the National league draft meeting in Milwaukee last month.

Henderson Plans Suit.

Mandel said the purchase did not include the contract of Gloomy Gus Henderson, veteran coach, who was brought to Detroit last year by Richards to succeed Earl [Dutch] Clark when Clark and Richards disagreed over the Lions' style of play and its effect on attendance. Henderson, whose contract has two years to run, was dismissed by Richards last month and is said to be contemplating legal action in California to force a settlement on his contract.

The purchase is subject to the approval of the nine other clubs of the league at the annual business meeting in April. It involves 78 per cent of the stock, the league franchise and player contracts on 31 men, including Dutch Clark, at present coach of the Cleveland Rams. The Lions have kept Clark under contract as a player to prevent him from opposing them.

Mandel came to Detroit last week with Owen and Chaplin to conclude negotiations for the purchase. Potsy Clark arrived Sunday from Brooklyn, where he had been coach of the Dodgers since severing his connections with the Lions in 1936. Clark resigned the Brooklyn assignment last month after two disastrous seasons.

No Mention of Anderson.

Detroit is regarded as one of the better franchises in the league. Its income last season exceeded $250,000, despite a disappointing finish after Henderson had gotten the team off to a running start with four consecutive victories. The Lions finished third in the western division with six triumphs against five defeats.

No mention was made of Heartly [Hunk] Anderson, former head coach at the University of Notre Dame, who served as Henderson's assistant. It was expected that Clark would bring his own assistants with him, turning the line over to George Christensen, former Lion star who was line coach at Brooklyn. Christensen makes his home here now. Anderson is understood to have been Richards' choice for head coach if no buyer had been found for the club.

Armstrong's 22 baskets give him the lead in that department, while Joe Stampf, Chicago forward, is setting the pace in free throws made with 15.

LANDIS TELLS MAGNATES HOW TO DODGE GRIEF

Gives Them Instructions in Five Easy Lessons.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner who warmed up Sunday by knocking the props from beneath the Detroit club's farm system, yesterday spoke thru a communique to magnates and club officials who might be tempted to cheat in the future.

Admitting that he doesn't like the farm system because of the temptations it offers for cheating and because it works an injustice on young players, the commissioner in a bulletin issued by Secretary Leslie M. O'Connor set a price on the head of any official caught in his dragnet.

The rate for a club caught hiding a working agreement will be $1,000 and the guilty official will be placed on the ineligible list. The penalty for "covering up" player transfers remains at $500 and free agency for the player, but with the added threat of ineligibility for the club official involved.

The commissioner decided to set up rules for the conduct of officials because he became convinced his liberation of more than 100 St. Louis Cardinals' chain store players in March of 1938 hadn't been taken seriously enough. At that time he inflicted no cash penalty on the offending club.

Cites Rules, Warnings.

Early last fall he caught Brooklyn and a few other clubs in "covering up" maneuvers and added the $500 fine to the rule providing free agency for the player.

Because he had been asked by the minor leagues to clarify his interpretations of rules Landis included in his bulletin explanations of the different forms of cheating on players. Then in plain language he cited the rules which, if observed, will keep everybody out of trouble. He divided these into five "don'ts" and two clauses setting forth his new prescription for offenders. The warnings were sent to all clubs as follows:

1. Players must not be signed to blank contracts and a true copy of the contract must be delivered to and left with the player.

2. Players must not be signed for other clubs, directly or indirectly, whether owned, affiliated, or independent.

3. Players must not be placed with other clubs, except under proper transfer agreements, duly filed for promulgation, which agreements must be optional assignments if the assignor desires to retain a right of acquisition exercisable before the player has passed thru a selection period at which he is subject to selection.

Must Give All Facts.

4. Working agreements must truthfully set forth in the officially filed document "the actual consideration, terms, and conditions" of that agreement and there must be no "agreement not embodied in the document as filed."

5. Working agreements must be executed by the club actually making same and must not be executed in the names of affiliated or subsidiary clubs to whom the major or other higher classification club supplies the necessary funds therefor by loans, advances, capital stock subscriptions, player purchases, or other methods whatsoever.

6. In every instance of secret player transfer or other player cover up hereafter effected, the player concerned will be declared a free agent, each club concerned will be fined $500, and each club official of employé participating therein will be placed on the ineligible list.

7. In every case of certificate of club relationships, affiliations, and connections hereafter filed, which is found to misrepresent or untruthfully report any material fact, the club will be fined $1,000 and the official executing such certificate will be placed on the ineligible list.

Armour Tech Is First Team to Join Golden Gloves Army

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Armour Tech amateur boxers, coached by Bernard [Sonny] Weissman, are first to enter the Golden Gloves tournament this year. While several hundred individual entries have been received for the meets which start Feb. 5, Armour Tech is the initial team entry received.

Armour will have 20 boxers in the novice tournament and they will compete in six weight classes. All will receive letters of instruction this week to report for physical examinations at Trafton's gymnasium.

First Exam Jan. 26.

The first physical examination will be held at Trafton's, 180 West Randolph street, between 6 and 8 o'clock on Friday evening, Jan. 26. Each boy who receives instructions to report must bring the parental consent card properly signed. Each boxer sending in the entry blank which is printed daily in these pages is mailed a consent card as well as instructions to report.

Open and novice boxers will be examined Jan. 26. On Jan. 29 the boxers of the Catholic Youth organization will report at the C. Y. O. gymnasium, 31 East Congress street, for examinations. The last examination for novice boxers will be held at Trafton's gymnasium on Jan. 31 between the same hours, 6 to 9 p. m.

The schedule for the novice tournaments follows:

WEST—Madison A. C., 4711 Madison street, Feb. 5, 6, and 7.

SOUTH—White City, South Park avenue and 63d street, Feb. 6, 7, 8.

NORTH—Loyola university, Loyola avenue and Sheridan road, Feb. 12, 13, and 14.

Novice entries will not be accepted after midnight Jan. 27. At the three physical examinations, Jan. 26 and Jan. 31 at Traftons' gymnasium, and Jan. 29 at the C. Y. O., these boys will be assigned to one of the three tournaments.

The entry blank will be continued until Feb. 4 for experienced amateur boxers who wish to enter the open division tournament in the Coliseum. This tournament will be held Feb. 20, 21, and 22 and the eight champions will represent Chicago in the Tournament of Champions the latter part of next month.

Finals on March 6.

This Chicago team of eight champions, which will be outfitted with uniforms, will be the only entrants from the city in the Tournament of Champions. In other years 32 boys qualified from the four Chicago sectional tournaments and the C. Y. O. champions also were admitted. All C. Y. O. boxers now will compete in the Coliseum Golden Gloves tournament.

Forty-four cities outside of Chicago will be represented in the Tournament of Champions Feb. 26, 27, and 28. The finals of this tournament will be held in the Stadium March 6.

SORENSEN WILL COMPETE AGAIN IN NORGE MEET

Harold Sorensen, who has become one of the most popular ski jumpers among Chicago followers of the sport, despite the fact that he comes from Norfolk, Conn., has filed his entry for the Norge club's tournament next Sunday at Fox River Grove. The meet will start at 1 p. m.

Harold Sorensen.

Harold's smile, coupled with his spectacular ski style have won him many cheers altho he has yet to win the title. This will be his 10th appearance in a Norge tournament and he has one second, two thirds, and a fourth prize to show for it.

He will arrive here Friday with Thorger Tokle, star eastern jumper. On the same day Olaf Ulland and Lief Flak of Seattle will check in at Norge headquarters.

Many of the skiers who were to have participated in the Beloit, Wis., meet which was postponed by the blizzard last Sunday remained there for the week when the date was set back to next Saturday. With plenty of snow remaining on the Beloit hill they have been getting in a good period of training and the best prepared field ever to battle for the Norge title is assured.

For this reason many veteran followers of the sport are looking for a surprise when the class A contest is run off at Fox River Grove. Several midwestern skiers who are benefiting from this prolonged training session have been contenders for first honors for several seasons.

Chapman, Ross Return Signed Contracts to A's

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 16 (AP).—Signed contracts for the 1940 season were returned to the Athletics today by Outfielder Sam Chapman and Pitcher Buck Ross. Connie Mack has indicated that Chapman may be a regular this year.

3 CHAMPIONS WIN 1ST BOUTS IN I. A. C. MEET

Bausone, Noto, Thomas Advance.

Three 1939 Illinois Athletic club amateur boxing champions survived the preliminary rounds of the eighth annual tournament in the I. A. C. last night. Noto, who finished second to Vic Saccoia for last year's Golden Gloves 112 pound title, defeated Richard Kinedrew of the Savoy Athletic club in three rounds. SNEAD SIGNS AS PROFESSIONAL AT SHAWNEE CLUB

Hot Springs, Va., Jan. 16 (AP).—Sammy Snead announced at his home here today that he had signed as professional at the Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., club, succeeding Jimmy Thomson, whose contract expired last fall.

Snead said that his one year contract at Shawnee is "effective now," and added that he will rejoin the winter circuit of tournament play in the Texas open at San Antonio Feb. 8-11.

"I'm feeling in the pink of condition," Sammy said in answer to a question about the "misery in his back" which hampered his competitive play last year and kept him from accompanying the pros to the Pacific coast this winter.

Snead, after winning the $10,000 Miami open before Christmas, returned to his home here to rest and recuperate before continuing tournament play. His contract with the Greenbriar Golf and Tennis club at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., expired Jan. 1.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 16 (AP).—Boston's "Kitchener Kids," Woody Dumart, Milt Schmidt and Bobby Bauer had another big evening tonight, accounting for half the world champions' goals and a total of eight points as the Bruins swamped the Montreal Canadiens, 6 to 1. The victory gave Boston a clear hold on first place in the National Hockey league standing, breaking a tie with the idle New York Rangers.

It took the Bruins less than two minutes to score their first goal, and from there on the fifth place Canadiens never had a lookin.

Bauer passed to Capt. Dit Clapper for the first tally. Herb Cain, ex-Montreal player, made it 2 to 0 about five minutes later. Schmidt made Boston's only second period on Bauer's assist in the second period after Lou Trudell had banked home the Montreal goal near the end of the first session.

THOMPSON WARNS HAWKS

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Blackhawks yesterday started looking into the future with hope instead of the past with elation. At the noonday practice Manager Paul Thompson told the lads it was time to quit chortling about last Sunday's triumph over the New York Rangers and start preparing for next Sunday night's encounter with the New York Americans in Chicago Stadium.

Skipper Thompson faced the rather difficult task of pepping up the boys for the American meeting, but he has no such theme song as he had during preparation for the Rangers, who came to town trying to fatten a world record they had established last Saturday night in Toronto. There are certain items, however, he can use in repointing for the Americans. If the Hawks win, in their 26th game, they will tie their last season's victory total of a dozen for the calendar of 48 games.

Then, too, there's the matter of the way the Americans gummed up Goalie Paul Goodman's Hawk debut by beating the Hawks, 4 to 2, in Madison Square Garden on Dec. 27.

Slippery Rock Wins Every Game, but Prexy Loses

Butler, Pa., Jan. 16 (AP).—Dr. Charles S. Miller, president of Slippery Rock Teachers' college, who twice was convicted of nonfeasance and misfeasance, was sentenced today to pay the costs of the trials by a judge who praised the educator for turning out an unbeaten football team.

The charges against Dr. Miller grew out of irregularities in the management of school funds and property. In imposing sentence Judge John H. Wilson, a trustee of the college, said:

"The evidence does not show that the college or the commonwealth sustained any loss or that any officer or any other person profited by reason of the irregularities.

"This same evidence shows that the college prospered and grew in every department, educational and physical, under the presidency of the defendant Miller, and as a crowning scholastic achievement, at least in the minds of many people and alumni, developed a football team that won every game it played last season and gave the college and the team nation-wide fame. The foregoing is a fair statement of the facts."

NAGURSKI TAKES ON MARSHALL IN COLISEUM MATCH

Old Troupers Meet Tonight in One Hour Bout.

Bronko Nagurski, former Minnesota and Chicago Bears football player, and Everett Marshall, well known Colorado rancher, two of the most accomplished heavyweight wrestlers in the business, will meet in a one hour bout tonight in the Coliseum, 15th street and Wabash avenue. If the encounter goes the limit no decision will be rendered, in accordance with the rules of the Illinois athletic commission.

Bronko Nagurski.

The men originally were scheduled to meet in the Coliseum Dec. 15, but Nagurski was forced to delay his appearance when he underwent an emergency operation. Nagurski disregarded his doctor's advice by returning to action in Minneapolis Jan. 9 against Steve Dusek, and was declared the winner after 32 minutes.

In a secondary feature Ray Steele of Nebraska, who gave up corn husking for wrestling, will oppose Ralph [Ruffy] Silverstein. Silverstein, west side athlete, was named to meet Joe Savoldi in a substitute feature for Marshall and Nagurski on Dec. 15, but a few hours before the bout Silverstein was said to have suffered an injury and the match was canceled.

The card:

Bronko Nagurski vs. Everett Marshall, 60 minutes.
Ralph [Ruffy] Silverstein vs. Ray Steele, 30.
Louis Thesz vs. Hans Schnabel, 30.
Herb Freeman vs. Cliff Gustafson, 30.
Reuli Samara vs. Eddie Virag, 30.

Tommy Thomas, referee of the heavyweight championship fight between Joe Louis and James J. Braddock in Comiskey park in 1937, will officiate at the sectional Golden Gloves tournament sponsored by the Bloomington Pantagraph in Bloomington Feb. 1 and 2. . . . Johnny Brown, 1935 Chicago Golden Gloves bantamweight champion, who has been out of action since last July 26, is prepping for a comeback in C. Y. O. center gymnasium. Brown, now a contender for the professional featherweight championship, will be ready to resume his career next month. In his last appearance Johnny lost a disputed decision to Frankie [Kid] Covelli of Brooklyn in White City. . . . Ted Bogan and Bill Bonnetts, proprietors of a gymnasium at 5445 South Ashland avenue, have offered the use of their gym to Golden Gloves candidates free of charge. The gymnasium is open only in the evening. . . .

Thirteen amateur fights, three of five rounds and 10 of three rounds, will be held under the auspices of the Kewanee Star-Courier in Kewanee Jan. 31. Proceeds will go to the Finnish relief fund. Hayden [Young] Stuhley is arranging the contests. In addition to the fights there will be a wrestling exhibition.

List Wisconsin, Iowa Ice Stars in Elgin Meet

Wisconsin's fastest ice skaters, headed by Maddy Horn of Beaver Dam, filed their entries last night for the Tri-State meet to be held in Lord's park, Elgin, Sunday afternoon.

The Badgers are expected to be a serious threat to the Chicagoans, Vic Ronchetti and Elaine Bogda, senior title holders in the men's and women's classes. Wisconsin's fastest men skaters include Jerry Guttormsen of Milwaukee and Harley Herbrichtsmeier of Kenosha, while Peggy Barber, also of Kenosha, is another of the Badger state's girl title contenders.

Shimek an Entrant.

Among other entries received is that of an Iowa contingent that promises to offer additional contention. Cedar Rapids will send a pair of that state's speediest in George Shimek and Rose Vunanek. Shimek, who was the United States 10,000 meter Olympic candidate, won the Silver Skates two mile test last Sunday in Garfield park and defeated in that event such stars as Lowell Miller, Tony Neberz, George Spalten, Tom Baacke, and Leo Freisinger. Ronchetti did not compete.

Maddy Horn, national girls' champion and holder of most of the speed records in this country, last weekend shattered her own half mile mark by covering the distance in 1:25.9 in a meet at Escanaba, Mich. Her old national time for the half was 1:26, set in 1938 in Minneapolis.

Kalteux to Be M. C.

Frank M. Kalteux, former president of the United States Skating union and originator of the Tri-State meet ten years ago, has been named by Merrill O. Calame, Tri-State meet director, as master of ceremonies at the tournament.

The park meets Friday night in Garfield park and Saturday afternoon in Humboldt park, and will include four open races for skaters of the Illinois Skating association, it was announced by Pete Miller and Sid Novak, co-directors of the park tournaments. They will be for senior men, intermediate boys, junior boys, and juvenile boys. Beside the individual park relay events there will be a club relay for the I. S. A. participants. Friday night's event is for west parks only, while Saturday's program is open to all Chicago parks skaters.

MIDWEST A. C. HANDBALL.

A singles handball tournament to determine the club champions in classes A and B will open tonight in the Midwest Athletic club, 5 North Hamlin avenue.

HIRSCH SENIORS WIN, TAKE LEAD; HYDE PARK LOSES

Calumet Five Triumphs in Overtime, 33-31.

The Hirsch senior basketball team took undisputed possession of first place in the south section of the Chicago Public High School league as Hyde Park lost an overtime decision to Calumet yesterday.

Hirsch had little trouble with Englewood, winning, 40 to 13, for its third straight victory, while Hyde Park was faltering before Calumet, 33 to 31, for its first loss in four division starts.

Junior division activity was featured by Marshall's 42 to 35 triumph over Tuley. The defeat was Tuley's first and the third straight victory for Marshall, which went into a leadership tie with Crane. Crane defeated Foreman, 49 to 34.

LAST NIGHT'S SCORES.
Detroit, 45; Hammond, 32.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Chicago Bruins, who some time ago lost the combination to free throw making and with it their last three contests, tonight will attempt to regain the penalty line sesame, not to mention a .500 rating, when they meet the Detroit Eagles in a National Basketball league game in the 132d Regiment armory, Madison and Rockwell streets.

Not only will the Bruins endeavor to hoist themselves back into the running in the league's western division via more free throwing accuracy, but they also will present a few important lineup changes. Wibs Kautz, former Loyola high scorer who has been in considerable of a slump of late, will be benched, at least as a starter. His place in the opening lineup will be taken by George Hogan, one of his old associates at Loyola, who played a great game Sunday in the Bruin's 34 to 33 defeat by the Hammond Ciesars. Kautz, of course, will see action tonight, but will go back to his old collegiate post of guard.

Bears' End Joins Bruins.

A new addition to the Bruin forces will be George Wilson, Chicago Bears' end, who played prep basketball at St. John's Military academy. Wilson has been working out with the Bruins for a week, having been signed with a view of instilling more aggressiveness in the team, a lack of which has been responsible for the last three losses, according to Coach Sam Lifschultz.

Continuing the practice of preceding the Bruin games with a college game, the management tonight will present Wilson and Wright, two of the leading junior college feudists of the state. This game will start at 8 o'clock, with the Bruin-Detroit game scheduled to begin at approximately 9 o'clock.

Bruins Lose Three Close Ones.

The Bruins have lost their last three games by a combined margin of only four points—20 to 19, 47 to 45 and 34 to 33. How well a bit of sharpshooting might have adjusted those results can be seen by the fact that in that span they have hit for a percentage of .231, making good on just 15 tries out of 50.

The Bruins and Eagles already have met twice, each team winning on its home floor. A scoring battle is in prospect tonight between Mike Novak, Chicago center, and Nat Frankel of Detroit. Ben Stephens of the Akron Goodyears is leading the league scorers with 170 points, Novak is second with 125, and Frankel third with 121. Incidentally, four of the Eagles—Frankel, Irving Torgoff, Urgel Wintermute, and Harry Jeannette—are among the fifteen top scorers in the league. Tonight's lineups:

DETROIT.		BRUINS.
Torgoff	F	Hogan
Jeannette	F	Johnson
Wintermute	C	Novak
Frankel	G	Oram
Opper	G	Linskey

Three college stars with different views on the pro sport. John Kimbrough (left), Texas Aggie full back, says he will spurn offers. Nile Kinnick (center), Iowa back, says a $15,000 offer might lure him. Ken Kavanaugh (right), L. S. U. end, would welcome a chance to play with the Chicago Bears.

Three College Stars See Pro Football from Three Angles

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Three of the country's leading football players took different views today on the professional game as a profession. The three received awards at the Touchdown club's annual dinner tonight.

John Kimbrough, Texas A. & M.'s 220 pound full back, honored as the nation's "back of the year," says he wants no part of the game in which they play for pay.

Nile Kinnick, half back from Iowa, given the Walter Camp memorial trophy as "the player of the year," says he won't play, but with a reservation.

Kavanaugh Votes for Pros.

Ken Kavanaugh, end from Louisiana State university, who received the Knute Rockne memorial award as "the lineman of the year," likes professional football and plans to play it.

Kimbrough, who is only a junior and hence not eligible for pro ball, wants to be a rancher or maybe take a chance at the movies.

"None of this professional football for me," he drawled, "I know how much pay they get. I mean I know how much they don't get."

Kavanaugh Favors Bears.

Kinnick plans to become a lawyer and says he will turn down an offer to play with the Brooklyn Dodgers next fall. Asked if he'd turn down $15,000 a year, Kinnick said:

"Well, that puts a different angle on the situation."

The Dodgers have been reported as willing to pay $15,000 to get him.

"Professional football," said Kavanaugh without hesitation, "is a great game and I intend to play it for the Chicago Bears."

The club presented two other awards—a special trophy for courage to Don Herring Jr., Princeton tackle, who lost a leg from a football injury, and a cup as "coach of the year" to Dr. Eddie Anderson, University of Iowa coach.

Herring's Father Talks.

Called on before the presentation, Herring's father, an All-American of 1907, said:

"Our boy hasn't done anything especially unique. His courageous attitude toward football in his particular injury is exactly what we would expect from any decent young American."

Accepting his award, Kinnick brought the audience to its feet when he said:

"I thank God for America and that I have been dodging tacklers instead of bullets, and throwing passes instead of hand grenades."

LUTHERAN FIVES COMPETE IN 3 GAMES TONIGHT

The Augustana Lutheran Athletic Association Basketball league will continue play tonight in Calumet High school gymnasium, 8100 South May street, with Salem meeting St. Matthew in the first game at 7:30 o'clock.

In the second game of the evening, Gustavus Adolphus will seek its third consecutive in a game with Messiah. Bethel plays Tabor in the third game. Standing:

Yale Polo Team to Play Feb. 10 in So. Side Armory

Yale university's polo team will make its fourth annual appearance in Chicago on the night of Feb. 10 when it will meet the 124th field artillery trio in the armory at 5200 Cottage Grove avenue. Yale has won two of three previous games. It defeated the All Stars in 1937, lost to the 124th field artillery in 1938, and last year beat Harvard university.

Arrangements to bring the Yale riders to Chicago were made by Col. C. C. Haffner Jr., commanding officer of the 124th regiment; the Yale club of Chicago, headed by Kent S. Clow; the Yale Scholarship Trust, of which Fred L. McNally is president, and officials of the university.

The Chicago team will be made up of Lieut. Don Rice, Capt. Romeo Mura, and Lieut. William D. Fergus. This is the combination that played intact for two seasons, winning western and Metropolitan league indoor titles.

LIBBY-M'NEILL BONDS WILL BE OFFERED TODAY

Part of Plan Is to Divest Swift of Control.

Public offering of $11,000,000 of 15 year sinking fund 4 per cent bonds of Libby, McNeill & Libby is being made today by an underwriting group headed by Glore, Forgan & Co. The bonds are priced at 100 and accrued interest.

Libby, McNeill & Libby is a $62,000,000 food canning and packing enterprise with headquarters in Chicago. It is now controled by Swift & Co.

Swift to Give Up Control.

Swift is preparing to divorce itself from Libby in accordance with a federal court consent decree. The bond offering is part of a recapitalization plan designed to carry out the terms of the decree.

The recapitalization program, calling also for changes in the Libby stock, was approved by the company's stockholders Monday at their meeting in Portland, Me.

Of the proceeds from the bonds being offered today, $9,197,930 will be used to retire Libby's first mortgage 5 per cent 15 year bonds, which will be called for redemption April 1, 1940. The rest of the funds will be used as working capital or applied on bank loans.

May Offer Swift Holdings.

It was announced that Glore, Forgan & Co. and associates also may make a public offering later of Libby common stock representing the shares owned by Swift & Co. Swift owns nearly all of the preferred stock of Libby and 75.35 per cent of the common.

Libby, one of the principal companies in its field, had a sales volume of more than $55,000,000 in the fiscal year ended Feb. 28, 1939.

Furniture Mart Reports 10,350 Buyers Registered

Registrations of buyers at the National Home Furnishings exposition at the American Furniture Mart last night reached the 10,350 mark, officials reported. This attendance figure, with four days of the midwinter market remaining, exceeded previous attendance figures for the full two weeks except for the markets of 1939 and 1937. Officials estimated that the 11,000 or more buyers who will register before the market is over will spend $660,000 in Chicago, in addition to the purchases at the market.

RCA.

Radio Corporation of America stock appears to be a good investment, but before I buy any I would like to see a report on its earnings record, dividends, and operations—V. E. L.

Answer: Radio Corporation of America is the dominant unit in the radio industry in this country. As parent company in a wide-flung organization, it owns companies operating in manufacturing, communications, broadcasting, and research fields. The top company handles general financial supervision, research, patent protection, and royalty collection for the subsidiaries.

The activities of the operating firms are as follows:

RCA Manufacturing Company, Inc., produces radio transmitters and receivers, phonographs and records, motion picture sound apparatus, and accessories.

RCA Communications, Inc., operates an international radio communications system linking the United States and possessions with 47 other countries and furnishes connections for transmission of radiophotos.

Radiomarine Corporation of America provides wireless communication between ships and land stations.

National Broadcasting Company, Inc., operates a leading network of 176 domestic radio stations to which it furnishes programs. It also conducts short-wave broadcasts to foreign countries.

RCA Institutes, Inc., conducts training schools in New York and Chicago for radio operators, service men, and dealers.

Capitalization of the company consists of $4,000,000 in 1¾ per cent bank loans due 1941, 900,845 shares of $3.50 cumulative first preferred stock of no par value, 13,693 shares of $5 cumulative preferred B stock of no par value, and 13,881,016 shares of no par common stock.

Regular dividends have been paid on the preferred stocks. Dividends of 20 cents a share on the common stock were paid in 1937 and 1938; none was paid in 1939, and 20 cents a share was disbursed yesterday to common stockholders of record last Dec. 8.

The manufacturing and broadcasting operations have shown the best profits. The communications division lagged somewhat in 1938, but showed improvement last year. Total income from operations, net income, and earnings per common share compared as follows in recent years:

	Total income.	Net income.	Earned per share.
1934	$ 77,303,000	$4,249,000	*$ .10
1935	87,647,000	5,127,000	*.03
1936	100,230,000	6,156,000	.21
1937	111,853,000	9,025,000	.42
1938	99,201,000	7,412,000	.30

*Loss.

Net income for the first nine months of 1939 dipped to $4,066,000, equal after preferred dividends to 12 cents a common share. Net income in the corresponding 1938 period was $4,141,000, or 12 cents a share.

CHICAGO TO GET ONE OF WORLD'S FASTEST TRAINS

15 Minutes Lopped Off St. Paul Run.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

One of the fastest trains in the world was created for the Chicago area yesterday when the Burlington railroad announced that its Morning Zephyr, effective Jan. 28, will run the 431 miles between Chicago and St. Paul in 6 hours, 15 minutes faster than now. This is an average speed of 72 miles an hour for a run that includes seven stops.

The train will reach speeds of 100 miles an hour between Victory and La Crosse, Wis. Before 1935 the fastest runs between Chicago and the Twin Cities were 10 to 12 hours.

Coincidentally with the Burlington, the North Western and the Milwaukee railroads announced they will also reduce the time of their fastest trains 15 minutes effective the same date. The Milwaukee's Hiawatha and the North Western's 400 now make the trip to St. Paul in 6½ hours.

Other trains average 65 MPH.

The distance to St. Paul via the Milwaukee is 410 miles and via the North Western is 406.7 miles. The average speed of these 6¼ hour trains will be approximately 65 miles an hour.

All three trains continue to Minneapolis, arriving there 30 minutes later than at St. Paul. The Morning Zephyr and the 400 are drawn by Diesel-electric locomotives. The Hiawatha, which attains more than 100 miles an hour between Chicago and Milwaukee, is drawn by a steam locomotive.

In a run of comparable distance the Santa Fe's Kansas Cityan makes the 451 mile trip between Chicago and Kansas City in 7½ hours, at an average speed of approximately 60 miles an hour.

Among the notable speed records by trains in recent years was a 133 mile an hour speed sustained for 25 minutes on a straight 186 mile stretch last June between Berlin and Hamburg, Germany. The Coronation, English express train, was reported to have reached 125 miles an hour in June, 1938. The Pennsylvania's Broadway Limited ran at 127.1 miles an hour for two miles in June, 1905.

Denver Train a Fast One.

On longer runs the Burlington's Denver Zephyr streaked 1,017 miles from Chicago to Denver in October, 1936, in 12 hours, 12 minutes and 27 seconds, at an average speed of 83.4 miles an hour. The Santa Fe's Super Chief in May, 1937, traveled 2,228 miles from Chicago to Los Angeles with an elapsed time of 36 hours and 49 minutes, or at an average speed of 60.8 miles an hour. Excluding 1 hour and 56 minutes consumed in making 17 stops, the average speed was 63.9 miles an hour.

One of the fastest dashes made by a passenger train in regular service is that of the Detroit Arrow of the Pennsylvania. For the 148 miles between Chicago and Fort Wayne it travels at an average speed of 69.4 miles an hour. For the 37.6 miles between Warsaw, Ind., and Junction Tower, Fort Wayne, the speed is 83.5 miles per hour.

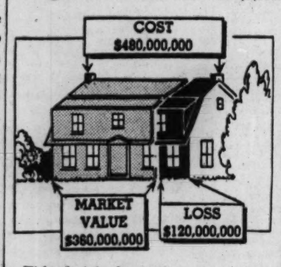
This diagram shows the loss taken by the Home Owners Loan corporation on the 72,000 properties it acquired by foreclosure and sold. The average loss on each sale was $1,139.



This sketch shows the potential loss on 81,237 homes owned by the HOLC, the cost of which has been 480 million dollars, while the present market value is estimated at 360 million dollars.

Bankers Beat Competitors to Draw for Quiz

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Morgan Stanley & Co., New York investment banking firm, beat competitors to the draw today and asked the Securities and Exchange commission to investigate the propriety of the company's underwriting a proposed $25,000,000 bond issue of the Dayton Power and Light company.

Attorneys for the bankers told the commission that the question of Morgan-Stanley's relation to the utility probably would come up anyway and they wanted it settled as soon as possible. They indicated they did not want a repetition of their experience in handling financing for the Consumers Power company of Michigan which was held up several days by hearings.

SEC Orders Hearing Jan. 24.

At the bankers' request the commission ordered a hearing on Jan. 24, saying:

"It appearing to the commission that Morgan Stanley & Co. may stand in such relation to the Dayton Power and Light company that there is liable to be or to have been an absence of arm's length bargaining with respect to the transaction whereby the Dayton Power and Light company proposes to sell in excess of 5 per cent of the total offering of the bonds to Morgan Stanley & Co., it [the hearing] is ordered."

[Arms length bargaining is a term used by the SEC to determine whether negotiations between a security issuer and the underwriter have been conducted without collusion and otherwise comply with SEC regulations.]

Former Case Undecided.

Otis & Co., Cleveland banking firm, and other competitors raised the question of arm's length bargaining in the Consumers Power case. This question has not been decided yet.

After the Consumers flotation had been delayed several days, the commission and Morgan Stanley & Co. agreed to permit financing to proceed, with distribution of underwriting fees to be determined later whenever the commission decided whether the bankers and the utility arranged the financial deal by arm's length bargaining.

B. & O. AWARDS EQUIPMENT TO COST $5,876,500

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad advised the Interstate Commerce commission yesterday that it has awarded contracts to three manufacturers for new equipment costing about $5,876,500.

The contracts included one of $2,720,000 for 1,000 hopper cars, one of $1,625,000 for 500 gondola cars and another of $1,522,500 for 500 box cars. The purchases will be financed mostly thru sale to the Reconstruction Finance corporation of $5,330,000 of 2½ per cent equipment certificates.

CITY TURNS DOWN POWER OFFER BY BONNEVILLE DAM

Eugene, Ore., Jan. 16 [Special].—The water board controling this city's municipal power project has voted to proceed at once with construction of a $510,000 steam standby plant. The action is coupled with the decision to reject offers of Bonneville dam power over the new distribution line built from Vancouver, Wash.

The Bonneville administration had counted on Eugene sales to aid in its load building program but the city determined that the best offers did not equal the price at which the city could furnish its own additional needs.

The question has been under consideration for two years.

Okin Elected President of 12th Street Store

Harry Okin, chairman of the board of the 12th Street store, Roosevelt road and Halsted street, was elected president of the company at a meeting of directors yesterday, replacing James A. Walsh. Isadore Shalowitz, secretary and treasurer, was appointed general manager, the company announced.

DIRKSEN PLACES LOSSES OF HOLC AT 82 MILLIONS

Sum Even Larger if Properties Sold.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—The Home Owners Loan corporation, largest money lending agency of the Roosevelt administration, has incurred losses of 82 million dollars thru the foreclosure and sale of properties. A further loss of approximately 120 million dollars would be incurred by the corporation if the properties it now holds were liquidated at the present market value.

These figures were disclosed to the house today by Representative Everett M. Dirksen [R., Ill.], a member of the appropriations committee. Dirksen revealed facts he had gathered from questioning John Fahy, chairman of the HOLC, at a recent closed meeting of the committee.

Made Over Million Loans.

Originally, the HOLC made 1,017,827 loans, totaling slightly over 3 billions of dollars, Dirksen said. On Oct. 31, 1939, there were 207,000 borrowers in default on loans aggregating $91,667,000.

"At the present time, the HOLC owns 81,237 homes," he said. "The capital value of these properties is 480 million dollars. The estimated current market value is 360 million dollars. If these properties were liquidated at the present market estimates, the loss would be over 120 million dollars.

"On the 72,000 properties which HOLC has acquired and sold it reported total losses of 82 million dollars which is an average of $1,139 per property or an average recapture of 74 per cent. The cost of these properties to the HOLC was about 316 million dollars.]

Losses Vary in Localities.

"It is interesting to note that the loss per property varies widely in different states. In New Mexico, the average loss was $547. In the state of New York, which leads the list, the average loss on 24,765 properties was $3,015, or an average recapture of 59.9 per cent.

"In Illinois, 14,594 loan accounts involving $7,061,134 are in default. There has been transferred to the property account 8,465 Illinois properties, aggregating $43,138,352. The cumulative report for Illinois indicates that from the beginning of operations to Oct. 31, 1939, HOLC acquired 6,939 homes in Illinois. The capital value of the properties sold was $26,596,000 and the sales price, $23,516,000, reflecting a loss of $3,080,000, or an average of $661 per property. Sales expense and commissions for Illinois totaled $1,438,201, making an overall loss of $4,517,000, or an average of $979 per property.

Average Loss in Illinois.

"However, for the period from July 1, 1939, to Oct. 31, 1939, the average loss of 956 pieces of property sold in Illinois was $1,220.

"One of the heaviest items of expense where properties are taken over is reconditioning that they might be rented or sold. Up to June 30, 1939, total reconditioning expense on properties in Illinois reached a total of $8,879,340.

"HOLC is an independent corporation which has authority to issue bonds and which meets the administrative expense out of its own funds. In 1939, the administrative expense was 30 million dollars and for 1940 it was 24 million. This does not include nonadministrative expenses such as the acquisition of property."

IMPORTS OF GOLD INCREASE; JAPAN SENDS IN MOST

Imports of gold into the United States during the week ended Jan. 10 aggregated $67,168,787, compared with $57,668,620 in the preceding week, the commerce department reported yesterday. Japan was the largest shipper, with $32,217,754. Other countries making the principal shipments during the week were the United Kingdom, Canada, the Netherlands, Norway, and India.

Gold deposited in the federal reserve banks by foreign governments and central banks declined $13,115,983 during the week, according to the department. This lowered the amount of "earmarked" gold to $1,139,310,000.

The treasury department announced that the nation's monetary gold stock totaled $17,776,353,355 on Jan. 13. This was an increase of $330,000 over the preceding day's total and compared with $14,586,344,802 on Jan. 14, 1939.

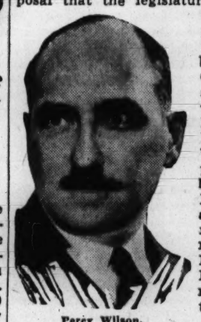
Wilson Urges New Drive on Slum Problem



Percy Wilson.

The Chicago building congress' proposal that the legislature authorize the use of private capital in rehabilitating Chicago's slum areas was praised last night by Percy Wilson, vice president of Marshall Field & Co., and former regional director of the Federal Housing administration.

Wilson spoke on "Housing and Democracy" before the John P. Altgeld forum in the Merchants' and Manufacturers' club. The proposal was passed last summer by the state senate but killed by filibuster in the house.

Plan "Deserves Attention."

"A plan for the organization of state chartered and privately owned and financed public service housing corporations controled for the protection of public investors by a commission similar to public utilities proposed by a group of leading realtors deserves attention," Wilson said.

"Any plan to create by enabling legislation a vehicle thru which private capital awaiting investment could be employed to achieve housing rehabilitation and slum prevention is constructive."

Wilson criticized government low cost housing projects launched to date as insufficient to cure the evil of blighted areas. He said it was more important to prevent the blight of disrepair, depreciation, and obsolesence of buildings from spreading into surrounding areas.

New Ordinances Suggested.

He suggested that city ordinances may be necessary "to protect the city against the continuing insidious infection of property disrepair." Establishing methods of keeping old dwellings in good repair is a community responsibility, he said.

Wilson endorsed the rôle of the Federal Housing administration insofar as it makes available long term, low interest credit for the modernization and rehabilitation of existing dwellings.

He pictured American democracy as founded in home ownership.

Safeguard to Democracy.

"A wide diffusion of land ownership among the people is a prerequisite of democracy," Wilson asserted. "A falling ratio of home ownership means danger ahead."

"It is the right of every family to a home of its own and not government or other monopoly owned community buildings that will best safeguard democracy in America. Publicly owned community dwellings tend toward collectivism."

SOUTH. PACIFIC PLANS TO MAKE STOCK NONPAR

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—A proposal to change the authorized 5,944,518 common shares of $100 par value of the Southern Pacific company to a like amount of no-par common will be put before stockholders at the annual meeting at Spring Station, Ky., April 3.

There are outstanding 3,772,763 shares of the common. A. D. McDonald, president, explained the company desired to have available capital stock for use if financial needs require. Under Kentucky law the unissued stock cannot be issued for less than $100 a share, making its use impracticable under present conditions, McDonald said.

It also was announced the management at the meeting would propose the nomination of Henry L. Corbett, Portland, Ore., business man, for election to the board of directors in place of Clarance Stanley, president of the Union Trust company of Pittsburgh.

Mid-Continent Petroleum Starts $2,500,000 Program

Tulsa, Okla., Jan. 16 (AP).—A $2,500,000 refinery expansion program was started today by the Mid-Continent Petroleum corporation. F. B. Koontz, vice president, said new equipment at the company's West Tulsa plant would make it "the most complete in the world." Facilities for making gasoline with an octane rating as high as 90 and 100, will be in operation by June 1, he said.

Experts Vision Vast Sales in Latin Nations

More than 500 manufacturers last night received first hand information on foreign trade and the advice of five experts on how to capture for America part of a billion dollar shift in markets caused by the war.

The meeting was a discussion and forum at the Hotel Sherman sponsored by the foreign trade committee of the Illinois Manufacturers' association. Consular representatives of seven central and South American nations attended the meeting, which was keynoted by approval of Secretary of State Hull's reciprocal trade treaties.

The manufacturers were urged to go after hundreds of millions of dollars of potential trade with Latin American countries, whose business with Germany, France, the United Kingdom, and other European nations has been wholly or partially cut off.

Advised to Shun Europe.

They were advised against seeking to develop markets in Britain and France, and were warned that Japanese-American trade relations may be in for "stormy weather."

Foreign sales managers who spoke at the meeting included Knud Nielsen, Belden Manufacturing company; F. L. Marshall, Montgomery Ward & Co.; O. N. Wilton, Bell & Howell company; G. C. Whipple, Quaker Oats company, and J. D. Fletcher, Caterpillar Tractor company. Nielsen is chairman and Marshall vice chairman of the association's foreign trade committee.

"I do not know of a single exporter who is not a strong supporter of Secretary Hull's reciprocal foreign trade agreements," Fletcher said. Every member of the association's foreign trade committee favors the program, he added.

Treaties Stimulate Exports.

Fletcher said that exports from the United States last year to trade agreement countries were 61 per cent above the level of 1934, when the treaties first became effective, while exports to nonagreement countries had gained only 38 per cent. Asserting the treaties have not hurt the American farmer, he said that in 1933 the farmer supplied 93 per cent of the American market for farm products, and in 1938 he was still supplying the same percentage.

Nielsen said that the United States supplies 36 per cent of all Latin American imports, and that these sales constitute 16 per cent of our total foreign sales. To increase Latin American purchases in this country we must buy more of the noncompetitive products of the Latin nations, such as Bolivian tin and Peruvian long staple cotton, he declared.

Britain to Limit Buying.

Wilton predicted that Great Britain will probably ban all except necessary imports if the war continues for long, and that any markets which might be developed there now may be lost in a year or two. In this war the empires are doing everything in their power to provide all their own needs, he said, and American hopes of huge war purchases have already dwindled.

Marshall said that Japan may be forced to alter her "new order in Asia" policy due to dependence on the United States for military and strategic materials, and for a silk market to provide foreign credit. The next two or three months may be "stormy," but settlement of diplomatic differences would probably result in considerable expansion of Japanese-American trade, he said.

Whipple declared honesty and good will must be the rule in foreign trade, particularly at present when many foreign buyers are seeking new sources of supply.

CELOTEX NET INCOME 43 PER CENT HIGHER DURING FISCAL YEAR

The Celotex corporation yesterday reported net earnings in the year ended Oct. 31, 1939, increased 43 per cent to $741,755 from the 1938 fiscal year's profit of $518,358. Bror Dahlberg, president, said earnings in the latest period equaled 93 cents a share, compared with 58 cents a share the year before, on the basis of the shares outstanding Oct. 31, 1939. On the basis of shares outstanding a year earlier 1938 earnings equaled $1.19 per share.

Net sales for the year, totaling $12,317,935, were the largest in the history of the corporation, Dahlberg said. They were up $3,191,446, or 35 per cent, over the preceding year.

Prospects for the sale of building materials which Celotex makes are good, Dahlberg declared. He said that for every 10,125 families in the United States, there are now only 10,000 homes due to the deficiency in building since 1932. Expansion in home construction will be necessary soon "unless the American people are going to be satisfied with lower standards of living," he asserted.

GILLICK, KEMPER JOIN MERCANTILE BANK'S BOARD

James T. Gillick, chief operating officer of the Milwaukee railroad, and H. G. Kemper, executive vice president of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company, were elected directors of the Mercantile National Bank of Chicago yesterday. Vacancies on the board had been created by the deaths of J. A. Roesch Jr. and W. W. K. Sparrow. The other directors were reëlected. The board will meet Friday.

W. L. Taylor retired as a director of the Evanston Trust and Savings bank, and no successor was chosen at the bank's annual meeting. Other directors and all officers were reëlected.

Arthur Horton of the Chicago Bridge and Iron company was elected a director of the Beverly State bank to succeed the late Frank D. Reed. Other directors and all officers were reëlected.

Attorney Edward M. Herman was elected a director of the Glenview State bank, succeeding J. J. Peters, who remains as cashier. Other directors were reëlected and officers reappointed.

Officers were reappointed by the Drexel State bank of Chicago.

War Business Lifts Exports to 10 Year Top

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Large shipments of airplanes, petroleum and metals to England and France helped boost United States exports in December to $358,000,000—the largest sum for any month since March, 1930.

The commerce department said today the total was $71,000,000 more than for November and about $92,000,000 above December, 1938.

Airplane exports to England and France alone amounted to $29,000,000, accounting for most of the increase in Anglo-French purchases from $44,176,000 in November to $85,780,000 in December.

Shipments of cotton, which had been so low this year as to cause considerable official worry, increased from $30,288,000 in November to $43,000,000 in December. Italy, Spain, China, and India were the principal purchasers.

Latin Purchases Increase.

Latin American countries now buying in the United States some of the things not obtainable in Europe because of the war boosted their purchases about $7,600,000 to $75,405,000. Purchases from Asiatic nations increased about $15,000,000 to $68,434,000.

One of the few decreases in December exports was in trade with Canada, normally this country's second best customer, ranking next to England. Canada reduced its purchases from $48,993,000 in November to $41,085,000 in December, but officials said the drop was due mostly to a seasonal decline in shipments of coal and petroleum.

Russia was a better customer last month, buying more ferro-alloys and copper. Blockaded Germany got virtually nothing from the United States.

Purchases in Canada Doubled.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 16 (AP).—With most European markets curtailed by the war, Canada's products flowed into the United States more freely than ever last month, more than doubling the total of December, 1938.

Figures released today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics showed the total value of the exports was $101,021,522, compared with $68,887,665 in December, 1938. The United States took $53,995,864 of Canada's products, compared with $24,360,460 in the same 1938 month.

The United Kingdom was in second place with an increase of $3,775,820 to $29,310,587. Smaller purchases were made by Italy, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, Sweden, China, Japan, and Egypt. There were increased exports to 54 countries or groups of countries.

TVA OFFICIALS ADMIT TAX LOSS OF 4½ MILLIONS

Formerly Paid Each Year by Utilities.

BY JOHN FISHER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—Officials of the Tennessee Valley authority admit an annual tax loss of more than 4½ million dollars to federal, state, and local governments thru TVA operation of former private property.

Leland Olds of power commission also paid by TVA.

This was disclosed today in hearings before a subcommittee of the house appropriations committee on the independent offices appropriation bill for 1941. The bill was introduced in the house today.

The bill recommends an appropriation of 40 million dollars for TVA operations in the 1941 fiscal year, the same as recommended in the President's budget message. The total estimated cost of the TVA project, including navigation, flood control, and power, is fixed at 535 million dollars. Of this amount, more than 270 millions has already been appropriated and the amount in the bill will bring the total to more than 310 millions.

Dirksen Probes Tax Losses.

Information on tax losses was demanded from TVA officials by Representative Everett M. Dirksen [R., Ill.], a member of the subcommittee, during the hearings on the TVA's budgetary requests. TVA officials reluctantly furnished the information as evidenced in the committee's records showing that they sidestepped some of the specific requests.

It was shown that the federal government was deprived of $1,108,000 in 1938 on power property and operations acquired by the TVA and municipal and coöperative power contractors, the latter being tax exempt.

It estimated that annual state and local taxes formerly levied on electric utility property and business acquired or intended for acquisition by the TVA and its electric power contractors amount to $3,538,321, on a 1938 basis. This brings the total estimated loss to federal, state, and local governments to $4,646,321.

Private Estimates Higher.

Private estimates have placed the loss much higher. One survey showed that the total tax loss to the state and nation in Tennessee alone amounted to $4,685,000 in 1937. The TVA figures include not only Tennessee, the principal tax source lost, but Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, and North Carolina, all in the scope of TVA operations.

The record also showed that Leland Olds, chairman of the Federal Power commission, vice chairman of the national power policy committee, and member of the delegation sent to Canada to discuss the proposed Great Lakes-St. Lawrence power project, was paid $2,336 last year by the TVA as a consultant on power policies.

The federal tax loss was accounted for as follows by the TVA in data supplied the house committee: On TVA purchases 400 million dollars, of which Tennessee accounted for 352 millions; on contractor purchases, 708 millions, of which Tennessee accounted for 670 millions.

TVA begged off from including all taxes in the list. In furnishing the

New York Stocks.

New York, Jan. 16. (AP).—After four consecutive declining sessions the stock market enjoyed a quiet rally today that lifted selected issues fractions to around a point and a few isolated favorites as much as 3 or so.

While numerous speculative handicaps were still present, the lengthy decline brought in some short covering and light buying on the theory the list was due for at least a temporary comeback. Business news also was fairly cheerful.

The list edged forward at the start and jogged along with minor advances during the larger part of the proceedings. Best prices were posted in the final hour, altho a number of stocks, up at one time, ended behind minus signs.

Dealings were exceptionally sluggish thruout. Transfers totaled 526,280 shares, smallest for any full day since Dec. 4. The aggregate compared with 861,800 the day before.

Among gainers were Allied Chemical, du Pont, Westinghouse, Owens-Illinois, Johns-Manville, Eastman Kodak, J. C. Penney, Cluett-Peabody, Sears Roebuck, Boeing, Sperry, General Motors, Chrysler, Great Northern, Texas Corp., Consolidated Edison, and Kennecott.

Unchanged to a shade lower were United States Steel, Bethlehem, N. Y. Central, Montgomery Ward, Loft, Anaconda and United Aircraft.

Many traders maintained sideline positions as Europe's sea warfare was intensified, and fears were still felt that market repercussions might follow possible invasions of neutral [illegible].

New York Bonds.

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—Further losses were recorded today in bonds of neutral countries threatened by Europe's war. While some domestic bonds rallied a bit from the new year decline, the foreign list at the finish showed numerous losses ranging to 4 points.

Down fractions to more than 3 points were Copenhagen 4½s, Belgium 6½s and 6s, Denmark 5½s, Norway 4½s and 6s. Norway 4s of 1963 broke 4 points in sizable dealings. A better stock market encouraged bond traders to try for a rally but trends were mixed in quiet trading.

Commonwealth Edison 3½s rose 2¾ in brisk trade, closing at 127½. Gulf States Steel 4½s dropped 1¾.

Buying expanded in Canada 4s, lifting it for a gain of ¼ at 100½, following announcement from Ottawa the dominion's first war loan received strong support.

Most United States Treasury issues sold down a share.

Chicago Stocks.

One stock reached a new 1939-'40 high price on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. It was Central and South West Utilities prior lien preferred, which advanced 1 point to 118 on a ten share sale. Price movements on the exchange generally were irregular.

Bank Stocks.

The bid price of Continental Illinois shares rose 1 point to 92 in yesterday's Chicago bank stock trading. Other shares remained unchanged.

C. & O. CHAIRMAN TO RETIRE AFTER 45 YEAR CAREER

Fitzpatrick Once Headed Van Sweringen System.

Herbert Fitzpatrick, chairman of the board of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway company and one time head of the vast railroad and real estate empire formerly controled by the late O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, will retire as C. & O. chairman on April 15, the road announced yesterday.

Herbert Fitzpatrick.

He will also retire as vice president, but will retain his membership on the board of directors. A company spokesman said the retirement was requested by the 67 year old executive, who has been connected with the C. & O. for 45 years.

Seeks to Calm Discord.

Fitzpatrick had previously told intimates that he would probably resign when he believed the action would calm discord on the C. & O. board of directors between the Young and Baille factions.

Robert R. Young and Earl Baille have kept their differences from the public eye since the board membership was increased from 9 to 11 over Young's protest two years ago. At that time Young, A. P. Kirby, and their associates were engaged in a struggle for control of the C. & O. with the Guaranty Trust company of New York.

A successor for Fitzpatrick has not been named, the company announced. He has been chairman of the board since Feb. 16, 1937, the position having been vacant for seven years prior to his election.

Williams Heads Lehigh Valley.

Albert Nathaniel Williams was elected president of the Lehigh Valley railroad at the annual meeting yesterday. Williams is also chairman of the board, and since last August has been executive vice president at an annual salary of $40,000.

He succeeds Duncan J. Kerr, who was elected president in 1937. Kerr's retirement was forced by illness.

Williams, 52 years old, started railroading in 1904 with the Denver and Salt Lake City railway, and spent 30 years with western roads before joining the Lehigh Valley last August.

TWA FILES PETITION FOR DIRECT CHICAGO TO BOSTON AIR SERVICE

Jack Frye, president of Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., yesterday announced that the company has made application to the Civil Aeronautics authority for permission to extend its coast to coast service to Boston, Mass., by a branch line leaving the main Chicago-New York route at Pittsburgh, Pa.

This would establish direct Chicago-Boston service for the airline. Running into Boston via Williamsport, Pa.; Binghamton, N. Y., and Springfield, Mass., it would cut one hour off flying time from the Pacific coast to Boston, and would bring Binghamton its first scheduled air service. Addition of this route plus the proposed purchase of Marquette airlines by TWA will add 1,069 miles to its system, Frye said.

United Air Lines recently announced it planned to establish direct Chicago to Boston service. Passenger traveling between these points are now routed thru New York.

The number of passengers leaving Chicago aboard planes of United Air Lines in December was the largest for the month in the company's history, according to R. F. Ahrens, regional trafic manager. Departures totaled 4,194, compared with 2,856 in the 1938 month, an increase of 46 per cent. The December figure showed an increase of 92 over November departures.

TVA OFFICIALS ADMIT TAX LOSS OF 4½ MILLIONS

Formerly Paid Each Year by Utilities.

data it attached the following commentary in part:

"The list of taxes used to calculate tax reductions does not include social security taxes, gasoline taxes, taxes assumed on bond interest, or regulatory fees.

Explains Tax Exclusion.

"Social security taxes are excluded because they are, in effect, a labor cost designed to provide a special service to the employés of power companies not provided for the employés of the TVA and the municipal power contractors. Gasoline taxes are only included for the bus department of the Tennessee Electric Power company. They have been excluded because the gasoline tax, altho generally considered a benefit levy shifted to consumers, is legally a privilege tax on dealers.

"The tax assumed on bond interest is more of a capital cost than a tax. None of the payments finds its way directly into the treasuries of the states and localities affected. The utility commission fees are special charges for a regulatory service to protect the public interest. The fees are excluded because the service is not provided for publicly owned power plants."

Dirksen's Questions Unanswered.

But Dirksen had specifically asked for data on the following taxes lost: Federal income, capital stock, 3 per cent energy, Social Security, and miscellaneous federal taxes, state and local taxes on real estate and personal property, and miscellaneous taxes applicable to the properties acquired.

The record of hearings also shows that Democrats on the house subcommittee barred Dirksen from entering an article from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in the record of proceedings. This article of Nov. 2, 1939, was dated Florence, Ala., under the caption, "TVA falls back oh use of coal to make power; low river slashes output at dams; dam's capacity curtailed; four steam plants added."

Dirksen was quizzing T. B. Parker, chief engineer of the TVA, on this article when Representatives Joe Starnes [D., Ala.], and James M. Fitzpatrick [D., N. Y.], the latter a fervent New Dealer, objected.

Procedure Termed Unusual.

"I think this is a most unusual procedure," said Starnes, "that a witness on the stand, who should be called upon to answer questions with reference to the budget, should be confronted with statements from newspapers, and particularly THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE."

"And after all," added Fitzpatrick, "if we let all this go in, newspaper articles and criticisms, it will cost the government hundreds of dollars to print the record."

"I don't have to be reminded what the propriety of a budgetary hearing is," replied Dirksen. "I have served on this committee long enough not to be alarmed about that. We should worry about expense, with a 45 billion dollar debt."

DECEMBER RAIL REVENUES GAIN OVER YEAR AGO

An increase in December gross revenues of 92 class 1 railroads and improved earnings for individual carriers in November or the first 11 months of 1939 were reported yesterday.

BLAMES TRADE TREATY FIASCO ON ARGENTINA

Tariff Head Says U. S. Was Denied Equality.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 [Special].—Negotiations between Argentina and the United States for a reciprocal trade agreement were broken off because this country could not obtain equality of treatment for its products in the Argentine market with like products from Great Britain and France, the house ways and means committee was informed today by A. Manuel Fox, a member of the tariff commission. Fox was completing his testimony in favor of renewing the trade agreements act for three years from next June 12.

A. Manuel Fox.

Fox's explanation of the breakdown of the negotiations added that the state department has protested to Great Britain and France for offering unfair trade concessions in order to divert Argentine foreign commerce in their favor.

Grady Makes No Comment.

As he made this statement, Fox looked appealingly at Henry T. Grady, assistant secretary of state, who was waiting to testify, but Grady gave no sign of confirmation, discouragement or denial to the witness.

The explanation Fox gave is at variance with the official reasons for stopping the negotiations, and there has been no previous intimation that Great Britain and France had been chided for their part in the affair.

The official account placed most of the blame for the failure to agree on the insistence of the United States negotiators to place quotas on imports from Argentina under any reduced tariff rates.

Cites Argentina's Attitude.

Argentina announced, said Representative Woodruff, that she would buy from no other country anything she could obtain from Britain and France.

"That indicates," he said, "that she had an agreement with those two countries so favorable that she couldn't afford to accept any proposition presented by our secretary of state."

Republican congressmen who have charged that administrators of the reciprocal trade program were politically biased in its favor questioned whether Fox actually was a Republican.

President Roosevelt appointed Fox to a Republican membership and Fox himself says he is a Republican who likes the trade program.

"Did you vote Republican in 1932?" demanded Representative Knutson [R., Minn.]. Fox's eventual reply was that he voted Republican "in part."

LAW TEACHERS NAMED ADVISERS TO MORGENTHAU

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Secretary Morgenthau has retained Lloyd Garrison, dean of the University of Wisconsin law school, and James Landis, dean of the Harvard law school, as special advisers on banking matters.

Officials declined to define the "banking matters" involved, but hinted that the current controversy between the treasury and the Bank of America, San Francisco, might be one about which Garrison and Landis will consult.

"Hope" for an amicable settlement of the dispute was expressed. The treasury and the bank have differed principally over dividend, real estate evaluation, and capital ratio policies.

TRUCKS COMBAT SNOW TO BRING IN LIVE STOCK

Set Record for Volume; Prices Are Lower.

Live stock receipts at the Chicago stock yards yesterday exceeded expectations as a result of a record run of trucks from sections of the country not completely tied up by snowstorms. During the day 1,411 trucks arrived. The former record for one day was 1,349 trucks, established Feb. 23, 1937.

Monday's substantial rise in the markets for all classes of meat animals caused by the small supply, which was curtailed by snow and icy highways, was the incentive for farmers to get in with their stock. Farmers and truckers on the market with live stock also attributed the big run to radio announcements that another light run was probable yesterday.

Dig Snow Thru Night.

Many told stories of hours of digging and fighting snowdrifts thru the night to get into the yards with their stock. Supplies kept pouring into the yards all forenoon, but the line of trucks, which at times was a mile or more long, moved rapidly without congestion. Part of a division of the hog alleys which had been closed for many months because of light supplies was reopened to take care of the increased flow of hogs. Several large commission firms moved their business into the pens in the reopened section.

Aggregate receipts of hogs were swelled to about 32,000 head, or 13,000 above the advance estimate released by the department of agriculture the preceding day. Included in this total were 26,392 hogs by truck, the largest truck run on record.

Prices of Hogs Decline.

Prices fell mostly 25 to 35 cents under pressure of the supply, with some of the lightest weights off even more. All of Monday's gains were erased and some kinds fell below last week's closing rates.

Cattle receipts exceeded the advance estimate by about 4,000 head, totaling 11,000. The run by truck, at 7,328, was second largest on record. Short fed steers and medium to good kinds comprised a large part of the supply. These slumped fully 15 to 25 cents, with some off 30 to 40 cents for the day. Best grades were steady to slightly lower. The $12.10 top equaled the highest for 1940 to date.

Lamb offerings also exceeded the needs of the trade and prices dipped 10 to 25 cents.

Crude Oil Output Shows Increase for Last Week

Crude oil production in the United States averaged 3,592,200 barrels daily during the week ended Jan. 6, the American Petroleum institute announced yesterday. This compared with 3,548,430 barrels in the preceding week. Illinois output increased 7,350 barrels to 337,400. Refinery operations advanced to 82.2 per cent of capacity, against 78.1 per cent a week earlier.

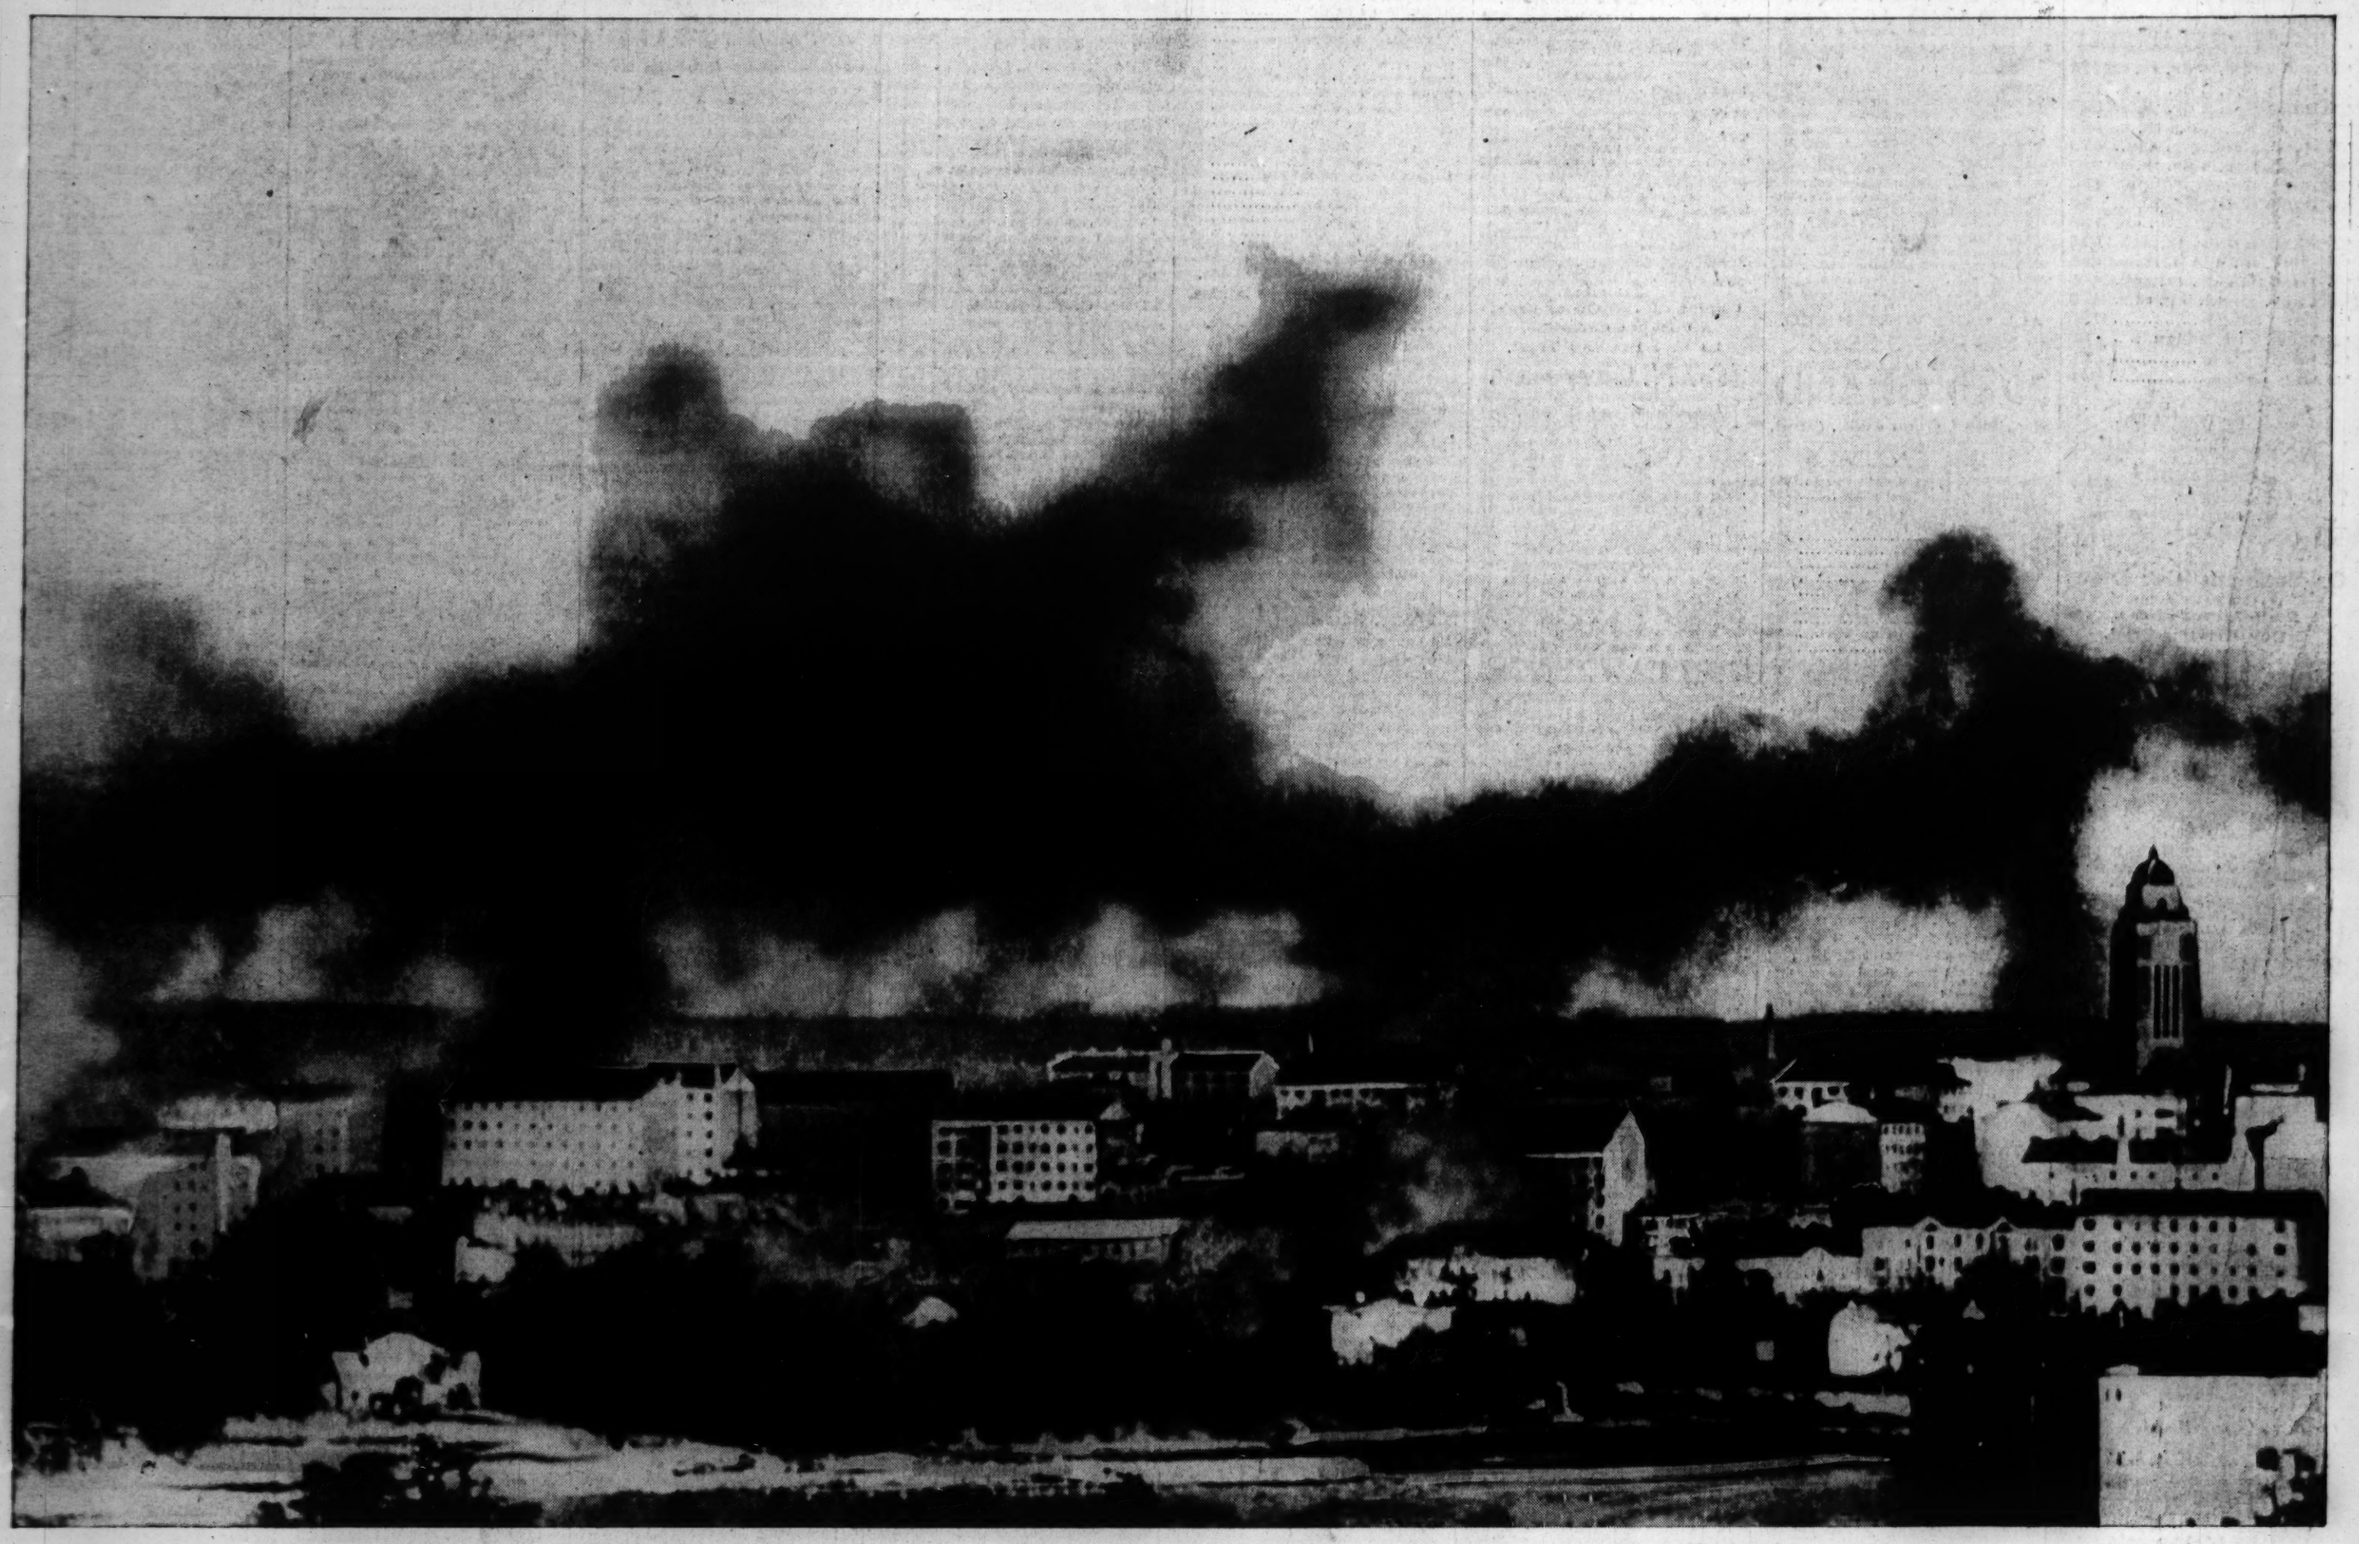
The Finnish-Russian War in Pictures—Defenders' Capital Bombed from Air as Soviet Armies Are Thrown Back



CLOUDS OF SMOKE OVER HELSINGFORS AFTER RUSSIAN AIR RAID ON DEC. 21, THE BIRTHDAY OF STALIN

[Associated Press Wirephoto: From Paramount News. Received on Clipper plane.]

This Finnish field piece, tucked away in woods on Karelian isthmus and camouflaged with branches and snow, has done its part in fighting the Russians.

[Associated Press Wirephoto: From Paramount News. Received on Clipper plane.]

Finnish soldiers, camouflaged in white, shield a light gun in a white shroud against Russian planes. Finland's defenders use white wherever possible because of snow.

[Associated Press Wirephoto: From Paramount News. Received on Clipper plane.]
